CONGRESS OPENS.

An Animated Scene on the Floor of the House of Representatives This Morning.

A REPUBLICAN HOUSE IS CONCEDED

The Late Election the All Absorbing Topic of Conversation Among Members.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 3.—Long before the hour of meeting of the second session of the fiftieth congress, the galleries were filled with spectators, and the bright dresses of the ladies formed a brilliant frame to the picture presented on the floor below. There handshaking was indulged in, and congratulations on re-election, or condolences on defeat were exchanged among the members. Of course the recent election was chief topic of conversation, but there was no bitter feeling manifested, jocose railiery on the part of Republicans and patient resignation on the part of the Democrats being everywhere evident. The Republican members who are promently mentioned in connection with the speakership of the 51st congress came in for an extra share of facilitations, it being generally conceded on the floor that the new house will be Republican with from three to seven majority. The speaker's desk was ornamented with a handsome floral piece while other prominent members were not forgotten by their friends, and numerous floral designs added a pleasing feature to the scene When Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, entered the chamber, which he did at a few moments before noon, he was surrounded by friends desirous of expressing their pleasure at seeing him once more able to resume his congressional duties. At precisely 12 o'clock the fall of the gavel stilled the tumult which exi ted in the hall. Silence reigned while Dr. Millburn, chaplain, offered prayer.

Mrs. Cleveland now entered the executive gallery and became an attentive spectator. The call developed the presence of 236 members, there being 88 absentees On motion of Mr. Mills, of Texas, a resolution was adopted directing the clerk to inform the senate that a quorum of the house had appeared and the house was ready to proceed to busines.

In accordance with a resolution, adopted on motion of Mr. Holmes, of Indiana, the speaker appointed Messrs. Holman and Turner, of Georgia, and O'Neill, of Pennsylvania, as a committee to join a similar committee appointed by the senate to wait upon the president and inform him that congress was ready to receive any communication he might desire to transmit. The house then at 12:30, took a recess for an hour.

After recess Mr. Holman announced that a committee appointed to wait upon the president had performed that duty and that he would communicate with congress forthwith. One of the president's secretarys was then announced and the annual message was delivered to the house.

THE SENATE.

It was an unusually full senate that responded to President Protem Ingalls call to order at 12 o'clock today. At that time all galleries were full except the presidential and diplomatic departments. The desk of the presiding officer was decorated by a very handsome pyramid bouquet, and Senators Blodgett, Daniel, Pugh, Voorhees, and Beck had before them emblems of the esteem of friends. Not a flower bloomed on the Republican side of the chamber. As the clock indicated noon Mr. Ingalls dropped the gavel and Chaplain Butler opened proceedings with prayer.

Senator Sherman offered the usual resolution that the secretary notify the house that the senate is ready to proceed to business.

Mr. Cameron offered a resolution that the body meet daily until further ordered at 12 m. Adopted.

At 12:47, on motion of Mr. Sherman, the senate took a recess till 1:30 p. m.

At the conclusion of recess a message from the house announcing the fact of its being in session was delivered. That was followed by a report from the committee to wait on the president to the effect that he would communicate immediately and his message was delivered.

DEATH OF MRS. ROLAND REED.

Proposition to Kill Her Pet Dog and Bury Him With His Mistress.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The talk of feminine theatrical circles yesterday was the shockingly sudden death of Alice Hastings, wife of Roland Reed, Saturday morning. With their mourning for her there was no small measure of sympathetic astonishment over the proposed killing of Mrs. Reed's favorite pet black and tan dog "Chic" in order that he might be buried with its mistress in Odd Fellows cemetery, Philadelphia, on Tuesday.

Remarkable Case of Surgery.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Both the operation of tracheotomy and that for the removal of the larynx have been performed in this city and on the same man. The man is now at a New York hospital where he has been since his larynx was taken out over seven months ago. He is one of the liveliest patients in the institution.

Three Killed.

MERRILTON Ont., Nov. 3.—A coal train ran into an engine which was taking water this morning. Fireman Michael Sherry, Engineer James Williams and Brakeman Allen, of the coal train, were killed. It is said that the body of a tramp who was stealing a ride is in the debris.

Relations Strained.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—The Cologne Gazette declares that diplomatic relations between Russia and Persia threatened to become strained almost to the point of breaking, owing to the ascendency of England in Persia, from a military standpoint as well as commercially.

Bright Worse Again.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—John Bright had a bad night, and his condition is worse this morning.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Minnesota and Dakota, fair, warmer, southwesterly winds.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ELECTS ITS OFFICERS FOR THE YEAR.

The annual meeting of the chamber of commerce was held this morning and officers and directors elected. The list is a remarkably good one and is as follows: President, M. R. Baldwin; vice-president, G. G. Hartley; directors, A. W. Bradley of Bradley, Hanford & Co., A. B. Chapin of A. B. Chapin & Co., J. D. Ensign of Ensign, Cash & Williams. C. H. Graves of C. H. Graves & Co., J. T. Hale, R. H. Harris of Harris Bros., C. F. Johnson, F. H. Kennedy of Triggs & Kennedy, R. S. Munger of Munger & Markell, R. C. Mitchell of the Tribune, C. C. Prindle, of the Wells Stone Mercantile company, W. E. Richardson of Richardson, Day & Co., Judge O. P. Stearns, J. D. Stryker of Kimberly, Sterkie & Manley, B. Silberstein, of Silberstein & Bondy, C. E. Shannon of White Shannon & Reynolds, S. F. Snively of Snively & Craig, Mayor Sutphin, S. A. Thompson of the News, Dr. S. S. Walbank, S. F. Wadhams. The regular weekly meeting of the chamber will be held tomorrow.

A New Dredge Firm.

W. H. Fitzpatrick, of this city who recently secured a $35,000 goverment contract at Grand Marais is now making arrangements to purchase dredges, tugs and scows and will go into the general dredging business. He has had much experience in this branch of contracting, having been engaged in dredge work before coming to Duluth. He will secure one dredge for the Grand Marais contract and others for use at the various Lake Superior ports where he may secure contracts, both public and private, and will keep his headquarters, as heretofore, at Duluth.

THE PUBLIC PULSE

Rev. Dr. Ringland: In my own pastoral duties I have noticed the great diminutive of typhoid fever and other diseases. I have noticed, too, that of the severe cases of fever this year and last, last season was much the more fatal and the disease is not apparently of so severe a form.

Armour Packing company's general agent: Talk about the sale of butterine for butter, it is nonsense. Our agent at Barnum was recently arrested for selling butterine. I don't think the law's constitutional that stops the sale of oleo and butterine. If a man wants to eat molasses on his bread, or glucose or butterine as long as he knows what it is and the substance is perfectly healthful, I don't see why he cannot do it. All butterine is branded and cannot be bought by one not knowing its character. On account of the furore against it all butterine factories are perfectly clean and as fresh and nice as the best dairy. The butterine makers can't afford to make poor stuff. If butterine is to be interdicted why not tackle the mustard and spice factories a d other food industries. When I was travning for a flour milling firm I sold car after car of the refuse flour, worse stuff than graham, meal, the sweepings of the mill to the Colburn mustard factory. This being baked into crackers, and it was such vile flour as to make a biscut as black as your hat. This they ground up and made into table mustard. I have sold tons and tons of buckwheat and refuse to spice mill, and the Flint coffees mills of Flint Mich., use car after car of Buckwheat ground in their pulverized coffees. There is mighty few things in a grocery store that would stand the test if all adulteration was stopped.

Denied by the Pope.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Relative to the Rome cispatch stating that Cardinal Gibbons had been instructed by the pope to congratulate Gen. Harrison on his election on the ground that Catholic interests in America would be safe under his administration, a special cable under date of of December 2, received by the Boston Pilot's correspondent, says: "The Vatican today firmly denies the report relating to Gen. Harrison's election. The report reproduced here produced a painful impression. The Vatican denies it and declares that the pope never interferes with national politics.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs Budden and family returned Saturday from a four weeks visit in Tower.

Professor Morrison of mental science of Marietta college, Ohio, and formerly president of Drury college is in Duluth.

Mrs C. C. Salter left yesterday morning for Waverly, Illinois, to attend the funeral of Dr. Salter who died there a day or two ago.

There will be a meeting of the Imperial Mill company next week Monday to make an increase of capital stock and do certain other important business.

A. C. Gilbert, late chief clerk of the Howe Lumber company at Tower will take a similar position here in the office of the Minnesota Car company.

WEST DULUTH.

You can buy stoves at cost at Knobloch's, 2022 West Superior street. Call and look at them.

The District lodge will meet in session with the Northern Light lodge I. O. G. T. 42 on Tuesday afternoon in K. of L. hall. A basket sociable will be held on Wednesday evening. W. DONALDSON, Chaplain.

Ainu Prayers for the Sick.

When very sick, an Ainu man (the women may not pray at all) will call upon the fire goddess, who is reckoned a great purifier, thus, "Abe kamui, Yekoingara wa en-kore" ("O fire goddess, condescend to look upon me.") Upon the approach of death, the master will lie close to the fire on his own side of the hearth, partly for the sake of the warmth, but probably in a measure for any possible benefit to be gained from propinquity to the realm of the fire goddess. Then the village chief and elders and the sick man's friends, all come to see him; the men to pray and "drink to the gods," while the women weep and wail in rather a noisy fashion, since they are denied the comforts of religion. There are times when the patience of the praying men becomes exhausted if no favorable answer is given to their petitions.

M. Batchelor tells of one death scene which he witnessed when two men were praying to the goddess of fire and another toward the sun rising through the eastern window; while a fourth was looking toward the northeast corner of the hut (which corresponds in a measure to the latrine of Japanese houses) and swearing most vehemently at all the gods, something after this fashion: "You fools! why don't you pay some attention to us? Can't you see that this man is in great danger! Here we've been praying and praying for him, and yet he doesn't get well. What's the matter? Are you deaf? Can't you hear us?"—J. K. Goodrich in Popular Science Monthly.

THE DAY IN THE CITY.

Lumbermen are complaining and kicking for snow.

A regular meeting of the chamber of commerce is held tomorrow.

The Friends in Council inaugurate their carnival tomorrow evening.

Nine drunks, one of them a woman, paid the penalty of their sprees at court today.

General officials of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic will be in the city Tuesday.

The excursion of Ishpeming business men to Duluth will probably take place tomorrow.

The city council meets this evening. Considerable important business will be transacted.

Gas and water mains on Michigan street between First and Second avenues west have been completed.

A reduction of storage rates on wheat, applying to wheat received prior to winter storage, was made today.

Activity in West Duluth real estate is apparently growing in force daily. It will soon be felt more strongly all over town. Real estate at West Superior is now very dull.

Today being return day in the Minneapolis court 93 civil cases were listed for cipal, a number much greater than the average.

The Standard Oil company are clearing off their dock in Bay Front as rapidly as possible and are shipping large quantities of oil daily.

J. H. Nordby, the little Norwegian contractor, is the best man for any kind of carpenter work. Fine antique sideboards made to order. 627 East Second street.

A grand total of 45,000,000 feet of logs will be put in by the C. N. Nelson Lumber company this winter, and the company has an army of nearly 500 men in the woods.

Chas. T. Abbott's excursion to West Duluth will take place Friday of this week. He will have a special car, which will leave here at 10:30 returning in the afternoon. Dinner will be had at West Duluth.

Several Duluth men went up to Cloquet this morning to watch the commencement of tracklaying on Duluth's new road. There will not be such bluster about the work as was inaugurated at the premature commencement years ago.

W. C. Tyndall, of Cloquet, has stared a general store at the town called St. Louis, at the mouth of the Cloquet river. He is doing a good business as there are a large number of men working on the railroad on the opposite side of the river.

O. Stenson & Co.; through whose efforts the Scandinavian excursion from Duluth was gotten up, are forming a grand New Year's excursion party to the peninsula of Northern Europe. They have secured an agency for Northern Pacific lands and will open an office soon in the St. Louis hotel

The Water Power company of Cloquet this year cut 12,780,000 feet of lumber, 1,191,000 shingles and 3,344,000 lath. They have on hand 11,110,000 feet of lumber, 1,165,000 shingles and 2,822,000 lath. Their log cut this winter will be but 4,000,000, the company having a quantity of logs on hand.

In police court this morning Frank Jones, at one time a member of the Duluth ball team, Duncan Clow and E. Falconer, were up for running a game of chance. They were three of the baker's dozen who were pulled Saturday night at Jones' rooms, the others being allowed to go free by the police. Each was fined $10 and costs.

Fox & Wisdom, who were burned out at Moose lake a few weeks age, will erect another mill a few miles south of their former location at Willow river, also on the St. Paul & Duluth road. It will be a single circular mill of about 12,000,000 feet capacity, with shingle mill and planer attachment, and will probably be fitted with electric lights.

Several of the iron mines in the Marquette district are preparing to ship ore this winter via the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, one having 20,000 tons to forward, another 10,000 tons and others smaller quantities. The road will have a lively winter with its iron and copper traffic and an unusually heavy logging business to take care of.

Saturday morning the Spokane went to the flour docks, Sunday morning 28 hours later, she cleared with 20,000 barrels for the lower lakes, thus being the last vessel to leave Duluth for the year. The Herald's total of flour shipments of 1,700,393 barrels must be increased making receipts 1,724,693 barrels, shipments 1,720,393 leaving in store a few thousand barrels.

Duluth has in store today of wheat a total of 570,960 bushels as against 3,416,183 same date last year. The decrease for last week was 60,584 bushels. A year ago the week's increase was 200,000 bushels more than our total stock today. Of the amount here 335,727 bushels are 1 hard. There is also 5,074 bushels corn and a small quantity of oats and barley here also.

The wrecked steamer Osceola, late of Ward's line, has been extensively repaired at a cost to the present owner of $45,000. She will next year be placed in the Sarnia and Duluth line, although the Vermont Central line may charter her for the Chicago and Ogdensburg route. All of the machinery and other outfit taken from the Osceola early in the season by Grummond's wreckers was promptly given up by Grummond when threatened with replevin proceedings.

This week a lot of supplies, including flour, pork, vegetables and other necessaries, together with some cook stoves, the use of which probably will have to be explained to the Indians, will be distributed to the Bois Fortes Chippewas at Tower. The government owes these Indians nothing, its twenty years annuity having expired some time ago but it continues to give them supplies as of yore. These Indians are now so accustomed to the gifts that they would probably rebel if the supply should be shut off.

The massive work going on at First street, both at Sixth avenue east and between Ninth and Sixteenth avenues west, is well worth a visit of inspection. On the western work a tremendous amount of work has been done, and the retaining walls built up are of the most solid character. At the east work, Contractor Emery has been hauling away a large quantity of rock to be used next year in the paving, in addition to the tens of thousands of yards used by himself in filling ravines.

There is probably no field of manufacturing holding out more flattering inducements for location at Duluth than an establishment for the manufacture and sale as well as the repair of saw mill machinery and engines. The constant growth of the milling industry in the country tributary to Duluth and the expense and delay of sending away for material often wanted in a hurry as well as the low freights te to this point on all classes of mill machinery, make Duluth a favored point for this business.

GROVER'S VIEWS.

The President Reiterates His Opinions on the Tariff and Believes They are Right.

HE STANDS BY THE SINKING SHIP.

The Sackville Letter Claims His August Attention and Gets a Little Airing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 3—The president's message was delivered to congress today. The following is a synopsis of some of the most important recommendations: After some generalities the president approaches the

TARIFF QUESTION

and says: As we view the achievement of aggregate capital, we discover in existence trusts, combinations and monopolies. While a citizen is struggling far in rear, or is trampled to death beneath an iron heel, corporations, which should be the carefully restrained creatures of the law and the servants of the people, are fast becoming the people's masters. Instead of limiting the tribute drawn from our citizens to the necessities of its economical administration, the government persists in exacting from the substance of the people millions which unapplied and useless, lies dormant in its treasury. This flagrant injustice, this breach of faith and obligation, add to extortion the danger attending the diversion of the currency of the country from legitimate channels of business. People must still be taxed for the support of the government under the operation of tariff laws, but to an extent that the mass of our citizens are in ordinately burdened beyond any useful public purpose and for the benefit of a favored few. The government, under pretext of an exercise of its taxing powers, enters gratuitously into partnership with favorites to their advantage and to the injury of a vast majority of our people. This is not equality before the law. The existing situation is injurious to the health of our entire body politic. The necessity of the reduction of our revenue is so apparent as to be generally conceded, but the means by which this end shall be accomplished and the sum of direct benefit which shall result to our citizens present, a controversy of the utmost importance. There should be no scheme accepted as satisfactory by which the burdens of the people are only apparently removed.

EXTRAVAGANT APPROPRIATIONS of public money, with all the demoralizing consequences should not be tolerated either as a means of relieving the treasury of its present surplus or as furnishing pretexts for resisting a proper reduction in tariff rates. Existing evils and injustice should be honestly recognized, boldly met and effectually remedied. There should be no cessation of the struggle until a plan is perfected, fair and conservative toward existing industries, but which will reduce the cost to consumers of the necessaries of life, while it provides for our manufacturers the advantage of freer raw material and permits no injury to the interest of American labor. The cause for which battle is waged is comprised within lines clearly and distinctly defined. It should never be compromised. It is the people's cause.

A REVISION OF OUR PENSION LAWS

could easily be made which would rest upon just principles and provide every worthy applicant, but while our general pension laws remain confused and imperfect, hundreds of our private pension laws are annually passed which are sources of unjust discrimination and popular demoralization.

A LAW IN AID OF INDIAN MANAGEMENT,

recommended by those well informed as containing valuable features in furtherance of a solution of the Indian problem, has thus far failed of legislative sanction.

THE QUESTION BETWEEN GREAT BRITIAN

and the United States relating to the rights of American fishermen under treaty and under national comity, in the territorial waters of Canada and New Foundland, I regret to say, are not yet satisfactorily adjusted. I now again invoke the earnest and immediate attention of congress to the condition of this important question, for the settlement of which I am deeply solicitous. Near the close of the month of October last, occurrences of a deeply regretable nature were brought to me, knowledge of which made it my painful, but imperative duty, to obtain, with as little delay as possible, a new channel of diplomatic intercourse in this country with the government of Great Britain. Correspondence in relation to this incident, will in due course be laid before you and will disclose the unpardonable conduct of the official referred to in his interference by advice and counsel with the suffrages of American citizens and also in his subsequent public declarations to justify his action, superadding impugnment of the executive and senate of the United States in connection with important questions now pending in controversy between the two governments.

WITH RAPID INCREASE OF IMMIGRATION

to our shores and facilities of modern travel, abuses of the generous privileges afforded by our naturalization laws call for their careful revision. The easy and unguarded manner in which certificates of American citizenship can now be obtained has induced a class, unfortunately large, to avail themselves of the opportunity to become absolved from allegiance to their native lands, and yet by foreign residence escape any just duty and contribution of service to the country of their professed adoption, thus, while evading the duties of citizenship to the United States, they may make prompt claim for its national protection and demand its intervention in their behalf.

INTERNATIONAL COMPLICATIONS of a serious nature arise, and the correspondence of the state department discloses the great number and complexity of the questions which may be raised. Our law regulating the issue of passports should be carefully revised and the institution of a centreal bureau of registration at the capital is again strongly recommended.

THE SURPLUS

expended for the purchase of bonds was money drawn from the people in excess of any actual need of government and was so expended rather than to remain idle in the treasury. If this surplus under operation of just and equitable laws had been left in the hands of the people it would have been worth in their business at least 6 per cent per annum. This calculation would seem to demonstrate that excessive and unnecessary taxation is continued and the government is forced to pursue this policy of purchasing its own bonds at premiums which it will be necessary to pay. The loss to the people will be hundreds of millions of dollars.

REGARDING THE REPORT of the secretary of the interior, I cannot too strenuously insist upon the importance of proper measures to insure a right disposition of our public lands, not only as a matter of present justice, but in a forecast of consequences to future generations.

IT IS GRATIFYING

to know that something has been done at last to redress the injuries to our people and check the perilous tendency of reckless waste to the national domain, that over eighty million acres have been arrested from illegal usurption, improvident grants and fraudulent entries. Our dear experience ought sufficiently to urge the speedy enactment of measures of legislation which will confine the future disposition of our remaining agricultural lands to uses of actual husbandry and genuine homes.

THE CONDITION OF OUR INDIAN POPULATION

continues to improve. Allotments in severalty have been made on some reservation, until all those entitled to land thereon have had their shares assigned, and the work still continues. No measure of general effect has ever been entered on from which more may be fairly hoped, if it shall be discreetly administered. But no agency for the amelioration of this people appear to me so promising as the extension urged by the secretary, of complete facilities of education.

AGITATING ANARCHY.

Outspoken Declarations Denouncing the Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—"We are going to teach socialism—anarchy the papers call it—openly if we can, if not then anyway"—said William Holmes, a local agitator, at a meeting last evening. Several hundred socialists of the English section were present. Holmes went on to say that the press has made more anarchists in this city in six months than he and his co-laborers had succeeded in doing in five years. "They are condemning our Sunday schools," he continued, "and already threaten to provide laws for their suppression. I've no doubt this will be done before long, but let them remember this the more they follow this line of policy the harder they make it for this movement to have a peaceable solution."

A FLY COP.

He Fires at a Fleeing Burglar and Kills a Servant Girl.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—The young woman accidently shot and killed last night by a policeman in pursuit of a burglar, was identified as Mattie Olson, a domestic. Policeman Edison is under arrest pending an investigation. The thief escaped.

THE WEATHER.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE FINEST NOVEMBER EVER KNOWN IN DULUTH.

The signal office furnishes the following report of last month's weather: mean barometer, 30.144, highest 30.69 on the 20th, lowest 29.70 on the 1st; Mean temperature 33.4 degrees, highest 57.6 on the 13th, lowest 4.5 on the 17th; mean daily range of temperature 10 degrees; mean daily temperature for the month since the establishment of the bureau has been as follows showing this year to have been exceeded by two in the past eighteen:

1871, 26.6; 1872, 26.9; 1873, 24.1; 1874, 27.1 1875, 24.5; 1876, 31.3; 1877, 32.5; 1878, 36.1; 1879, 29.6; 1880, 20.1; 1881, 27.1; 1882.34.3; 1883, 29.7; 1884, 29.1; 1885, 31.9; 1886,27.8; 1887,30.2; 1880, 33.4.

The prevailing direction of wind has been northwest, with a total movement of 4,605 miles, and a highest velocity of 28 miles, on the 1st. Total rainfall has been .87 of an inch, falling on seven days. For eighteen years the fall of rain has never but once, in 1878, been less, often going as high as 2 inches, and in one year to 2.89. Sixteen days were fair or clear.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DULUTH.

Henry George is in England lectaring on the evils of landlordism in the United States. But there is no doubt that the tenantry of that country would be perfectly willing to swap land systems with the people of this.

It would seem from the expressions of late and frequently attributed to him by the New York papers, that the Haytien minister to this country has but small respect for the American flag. He should be driven out of the country; and especially so for his censure of the courageous American captain of the captured vessel, "Haytien Republic," who stands by his ship and keeps the stars and stripes floating, defying the armed revolutionists to remove the flag while he is yet alive.

Two more Anarchist Sunday schools were opened in Chicago yesterday, making a total of eight now in operation and with an aggregate of some 1200 scholars. The works of Johann Most are used as text books and the children who range in age from three to fourteen are taught that capitalists are the enemies of the pepole, that the working classes today are worse than slaves and that Spies and his comrades are martyrs whose memories should be revered and teachings followed. A meeting of representatives of the various gronps yesterday afternoon decided to establish similar schools in every section of Chicago and a fund was started for that purpose.

The Chicago News says: "The 'sweater' is a man who has crowded himself into the tailoring and other trades, and who takes small contracts for work which he sublets to the unfortunate unemployed at starvation wages, and under conditions so cruel that were they not told under oath by many witnesses they would be incredible." The News supposes the 'sweater' to be a product of England only. It speaks in optimistic terms of the condition of our laborers. Had it read the report of Mrs. Barry to the assemblage of the Knights of Labor at Indianapolis a few days ago it would have learned that the "sweaters" are to be found in all of our cities, and working women and girls are subject to conditions as cruel as those which are imposed on them in England.

The California supreme court has just decided a case involving the validity of a contract entered into for the purpose of creating a trust combination. All the lumber dealers in a certain city formed a trust by the terms of which all lumber was to be turned over to one particular dealer, and all sales to customers made by him. By the agreement a heavy fine was put on any other dealer making sales. One dealer broke the agreement by making such sales and suit was brought against him to recover the penalty. The supreme court holds the trust agreement void as against public policy, being a combination "to take trade out of the realm of competition and thereby enhance or depress prices." The courts of at least half a dozen other states have made similar decisions, but, so far, have gone no farther than to refuse the aid of the courts in enforcing trust agreements. The case against the sugar trust, however, now before the New York courts involves a point which, if held good, will deal a much heavier blow against these combinations—as suit is brought to annul the charters of the corporations on the ground that they have forfeited them by forming the trust.

Corkscrews are made by the million in the United States. Newark, N. J., is the principal seat of the industry of corkscrew making, one firm in that city making and selling 150,000,000 in a single year. But this was only one firm. Could all the corkscrews made last year be known, there must be enough manufactured to supply every man, woman and child on earth with one. To make the 150,000,000 of the Newark firm, required seventy-five men simply for the twisting of the screws, to say nothing of the making of the wooden and other styles of handles. They worked the year round at it. Another Newark firm made 300,000 pocket corkscrews a year. The question naturally arises, what is done with them all? Lots of them are broken, of course, and all saloons keep dozens of them on hand. Large New York restaurants, like Delmonico's, the Brunswick and St. James buy corkscrews direct from Newark, and get them by the hundreds at a time. It is no unusual thing for the big hardware houses in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati and the big western cities, to buy one thousand corkscrews at a time. If the corkscrew is any sign of the prevalence of intemperance, and of the drinking habit in general, then the Prohibitionist would better get more alarmed than ever. If one firm finds a market for 150,000,000 a year, how many bottles do they help uncork? Certainly one corkscrew will open at least a dozen bottles before its usefulness is ended. If that be true, then the Newark firm referred to furnished material for the opening of 1,800,000,000 bottles.

THE MANUFACTURING RECORD.

The report's from the various manufactoring industries show that the general state of activity is not only sustained, but that every week adds its quota of mills, furnaces and factories in which fires are being started. The comparatively few factories which shut down are more frequently actuated by special causes than by unfavorable trade conditions.

The iron trade holds its activity. The output of pig iron is contracted for till the end of the year, and the indications are further orders. Steel rails, while still low, are in better request. The machine shops continue busy. The textile mills are well employed, the outlook for cotton goods being satisfactory, while some of the woodon mills are running their machinery overtime. The shoe factories are still turning out a great many fall goods, and the orders already booked for the spring trade give promise of a busy season. The activity of the paper trade is reflected in the erection of new mills and an increase of productive capacity. The glass works throughout the country are in full operation. An item of interest is the constant replacing by roller machinery of the old methods of grinding in flour mills. The ship-building industry appears to have fallen upon better times; not only are the Delaware ship-yards well supplied with orders for iron steamships but the rise in freights has instilled new life in the coastwise trade, and the Maine ship-yards are at present quite busy, and anticipate a good season for the construction of wooden vessels.

No Let Up.

Chas. T. Abbott, the enterprising real estate dealer, reports the sale of eight lots Saturday on Fifth avenue, West Duluth. Mr. Abbott has an office in Phillips' hotel at West Duluth. He is on the spot ready to point out to purchasers the desirable locations. He knows where they all are. Do you want a home? Are you thinking of investing? Call on him, make a date with him and the best possible opportunity to invest in dirt is yours.

BOYCOT A PROF.

HIGH SCHOOL SCHOLARS AND AN INSTRUCTOR—A DULUTH DOCTOR AND UNIVERSITY MEDICS.

The misunderstanding and difficulties of the scholars in the Duluth high school and Mr. G. H. R. Plumb, their principal, difficulties that have been troubling the school for a month, came before the school board Saturday evening at its regular session. The question brought up was as to the propriety of keeping Mr. Plumb as principal of the high school or as instructor after the protest made against his methods and the refusal of the senior class to appear before him. In order to give the public a little insight into the matter, which has by the way, been kept as quiet as possible for some weeks, a certain amount of history is necessary. The present principal came to Duluth early in 1887, and bought the flourishing private school of Arthur L. Taylor. He ran the school for nearly a year until it was no longer profitable. He was then engaged as principal of the High school on six months trial. That time is now nearly over.

For several months there has been great friction between Mr. Plumb and his scholars, particularly the senior class. Matters finally reached such a stage that a month ago this class held a meeting at which Prof. Denfeld, superintendent of schools, was invited. At this meeting complaints were made, resolutions drawn up and the class voted to attend no more recitations under the, to them, obnoxious principal. This decision they have stood by and since that time Mr. Denfeld has heard the recitations heretofore made to Mr. Plumb. At the meeting Saturday night of the board of education no definite step was taken and it was thought best to delay the whole matter. Some members of the board were in favor of taking extreme measures with the senior class but this will hardly be done, as it would naturally injure the high school much more than the recalcitrant class.

Mr. Plumb denies the allegations of inaptitude for teaching, laziness and general disqualifications made by the classes, and accuses them in turn of impudence, willfulness and a desire to injure him. The facts in the case, carefully gathered, are not such as to lead to the probable reengagement of that gentleman after his present term of service expires. He is a man of more than ordinary intelligence and knowledge and that any such difficulty should have arisen is much to be regretted.

AT MINNEAPOLIS TOO.

"Prof. Ritchie may be a good anatomist, but he does not know how to teach the science," say the medics of the state university in reference to Dr. Ritchie, of Duluth. The doctor was appointed this fall as lecturer on anatomy to the medical students of the university, his reputation as a distinguished surgeon and anatomist being known at Minneapolis. He succeeded Dr. Stewart. The students last week refused to attend Dr. Ritchie's lectures longer, thus virtually boycotting him, and went back to Dr. Stewart as private lecturer The regents met Saturday evening in reference to the matter, and it will probably end in a victory for them. As Dr. Ritchie gave up a lucrative position in Duluth, and moved to St. Paul in order to be near his classes, this absurd prejudice against him is liable to work much injury to a man of high attainments, and more than local distinction in his profession.

CELEBRATED CASE.

The Trial of San Francisco's Sensational Murder Case Begins This Morning.

A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE EVENTS.

A Physician Who Used Poison Promiscously Where it Would do Good.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—After numerous delays the extraordinary case of John A. Dinnig who is charged with the murder of Henry Benhayon was placed on the docket this morning and the preliminaries of the trial commenced. Not in the most sensational of Zola's novels can there be found a parallel to the stirring events in real life which rest back of this case and to tell the story by wire in detail would involve the labor of a day. Briefly it may be recapitulated that three years ago the wife of one Dr. J. Milton Bowers died suddenly as was supposed of affection of the liver. After her burial it was discovered that three previous wives of Bowers had died under similar circumstances in Chicago and elsewhere. The body was exhumed and indisputable evidence found that death had been occasioned by poison. The Hebrews of the city took up the case, Bowers was arrested, convicted of murder and sentenced to death. While he was in prison Henry Benhayon, a young brother of his dead wife, was found dead in a lodging house a bottle of poison, pen, ink, paper, and three notes, one to Bowers and the other two to the coroner were on the table. The notes stated that Bowers was in nocent of the murder, and that he (Benhay on) had committed the crime in order to secure the insurance of $14,000 which had been on his sister's life and which she had made over to him in her will. He also gave the names of six men who had been intimate with his sister. These developments for a day turned the tide of sympathy toward Bowers. But an astute detective made the discovery that the letters were not in Benhayon's writing, that the pens and ink had not been used, and that he had been drugged first and the poison administered afterwards. Further developm enis led to the arrest of Dunmiz, a traveling book agent and particular friend of Bowers, whom he visited frequently in prison. It was proven that he had been with Benhayon up to a late hour on the night before his death, and that for some time afterwards he was well supplied with funds. He was arrested and tried for murder, but the jury disagreed because some important links were missing in the chain of circumstantial evidence. Today his second trial begins. Meanwhile Bowers has appealed to the supreme court and his appeal has been rejected. The outcome of the present trial therefore will either seal his doom with that of Dunnings, or give the couple a new lease of life. Leading lawyers say that unless the prosecution has some new evidence, another disagreement or acquittal is certain. In that event the mystery surrounding the deaths of Mrs. Bowers and Henry Benhayon will be as profound a mystery as when they were the reigning sensations of San Francisco.

IT IS IMPRACTICABLE.

Gen. McNulty Says the Big Railroad Trust Can not be Formed.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—There are forty four presidents and managers of railroads in the city at the present time endeavoring to figure out a basis upon which to organize the gigantic "trust" of western roads. Among their number is Gen. McNulty, receiver of the Wabash system, and in conversation with a friend at the Grand Pacific today he said:

"I don't believe we will ever come to an agreement concerning the proposed plan. The various interests of the many roads involved in the scheme are too diverse to allow of their ever working together in one combination. Still, on the other hand, it is absolutely necessary that something should be done to protect the interests of many of the western roads. It is my firm opinion that unless some suitable plan is speedily adopted the 'granger roads'—such railways as the Northwestern and Rock Island—have nothing before them but bankruptcy. They positively cannot live and make money under the interstate-commerce law."

A number of railroad men standing near laughed at the general's gloomy views, but were unable to make him think differently.

A SWEET SINGER.

Another Nightingale from Norway Makes her Debut in America.

CHICAGO Dec. 3.—Musical circles in this city have been thrown into quite a flutter by the advent of Miss Anna Smith, the Norweigan prima donna who made her first appearance in America unheralded, at Central Music Hall a few nights ago. Like Jeunie Lind and Nilsson, she is another of the Northern Nigh ingales having been born at Chistiana, Norway in 1862 She made her debut in Berlin, has appeared in concert with Bernhardt, Cogneliu, Mille Nevada and Sivon, the violinist, and has just completed a tour of Russia with Martna Remmert, the Court Pianist of Saxony. She comes to this country on a visit at the request of prominent Scandinavian residents, and being wealthy in her own right, has refused several propositions to go on a starring tour. The musical and press critics agree that, although still young, she is superior to Emma Thursby in her prime, that her voice is of extraordinary purity, smooth as velvet and flexible and brilliant as the notes of a nightingale, and that her success was immediate and complete. She will be tendered a brilliant reception by Mr. Jevyne, the millionaire grocer, at his La Salle avenue mansion on Wednesday night.

The Meeting Postponed.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 3.—The meeting of the executive committee of the national council of administration of the Grand Army, which was to have been held in this city today, has been suddenly postponed until a later date for reasons not stated. This afternoon, however, there will be a meeting of prominent citizens and residents of the state, including ex-Grand Commander Lucius Fairchild, for the purpose of discussing the plans for the national encampment of the Grand Army, which is to be held in this city next year.

Completely Dissolved.

LEBANON, Ind. Dec. 3.—The last chapter of the once powerful and prosperous order known as the Patrons of Industry has been disbanded in Perry township. The order at one time was very strong in this region and established a co-operative store which however went to pieces some time ago.

For rent, two stores on Superior street. Four houses, centrally located, thirteen rooms, on Superior street. Apply to MENDENHALL & HOOPES.

CONSTRUCTION NOTES.

STEEL LAYING BEGINS ON THE DULUTH & WINNIPEG ROAD—THE CAR WORKS AND THE EASTERN ROAD.

Boarding cars and construction trains were sent up to Cloquet, Saturday, and this morning the work of tracklaying on Duluth's new road began. It will be pushed rapidly as possible and if good weather holds, Foley Bros. hope to get the twenty miles already graded, ironed before the new year. There are not so many men employed on the road as has been stated, though the construction force foots up a goodly army. The medical pay roll a week ago showed 1,350 men and Saturday it was increased to 1,500. This number of men is sufficient to do a great deal of hustling.

Dr. Ramsey, of St. Cloud, who has the medical contract on the Duluth & Winnipeg now has two physicians at work on the line, and expects to put on four in the spring. He states that the general health of the men is excellent, though there has been a little fever and the diseases consequent on a crowd of laborers together, often drinking bad water.

At the works of the Minnesota Car company another week of good weather will see the frames of the wooden buildings of the company well in place, and a much greater appearance of business than ever before. Including carpenters and laborers, there are now 250 men at work on the buildings. All the foundations are completed, that for the brick rolling mill being the last and just in place. Brick work on the brick buildings already under way is nearly completed and the heavy roof trusses of it and the large wooden structures are in frame. The company is pushing things with all the rapidity that plenty of energy and money and a thorough knowledge of what they want can give.

Piles for the Terminal road are driven nearly as far as the St. Paul & Duluth round house at the base of Rice's Point and the contractors are rushing as fast as possible to get all the work done along the point before the cold weather comes. Contracts for the rock cutting between Twelfth and Eighth avenues will be let in a few days and a number of heavy local contractors are figuring on them.

Five stories of brick work on the Imperial mill are now built, and work is running along on the top story. The roof timbers will be in place by the end of next week in all probability, and the structure will be enclosed at once and fitted with heating apparatus to allow of interior work all winter. The sixth story is about 25 feet high. Owing to the long and severe illness of Mnnager Church, the contracts for the nilling machinery have not been let, though Allis & Co. and M. W. Glenn are busy on engine and boilers. Brick work on the smoke stack has not been begun, but that will be pushed up in the spring. The building now going up is but half the ultimate size of the mill.

EXAMINING SLATE.

EXPLORERS IN THE EMPLOY OF A $500,000 PHILADELPHIA COMPANY REPORT ON DULUTH SLATE.

One of the early dreams of Duluth and the towns of Thomson and N. P. Junction was that the slate found in great quantities near the latter towns would turn out to be very valuable and would be extensively quarried. Eighteen years ago examinations were made of this slate and fine specimens taken out, but owing to several causes, among them the panic of 1873, nothing was done in developing. Now, however, there is apparently some chance that these deposites of slate may be utilized and add to the material wealth of this section. A month ago a party of Philadelphia mining experts arrived at the Junction and spent two weeks in looking up the state outcrops near the town. They examined one location near Cloquet, another near Thomson and a third about 4½ miles northeast of Thomson on the Midway river. Before leaving for the East they stated that the slate exceeded their expectations, and they examined it thoroughly for they went down 50 feet in shafts, and that they should recommend the company by which they were engaged to go to work. This company is capitalized for $500,000 and the experts thought that $50,000 would be required for developmeut.

They were the more willing to see work done as the formation was in their opinion almost identical with that of the coal bearing region of Pennsylvania, and they believed that in quarrying for slate they would find a much more valuable substance in the shape of coal. This is, however, not credited by the natives of Cloquet and Thomson and they do not bank on coal. In their opinion if there were coal to be found at all some indications would have been met with in the Fond du Lac gas well which pierced 1,600 feet with no result except to find water strongly impregnated with medicinal salts.

A SONG OF THE SEA.

O sing of the sea. O sing of the sea!
The world and the sun of it all for me;
Where the salt spray strikes the smile of my lips,
And down from the hair to the feet of me drips;
While the east wind smites me across the face,
And the waves flash past in a thundering race.
Sing of the sea! O sing of the sea!
The wealth and the health of it all for me.

If ever the summer comes back again,
And I stand new crowned 'mid the sons of men,
I'll hurl to the dogs all books and plays,
All poets and poems of dream spawned days,
To lie in the sun on the sloping deck,
Wrapped close by the spray from heels to neck,
Made strong with the blood of the mad, wide sea:
The wealth and the health of it all for me.

Throw wide thine arms, O mother of mine;
Throw wide wet arms for this child of thine:
He grows too faint on the pale, dull shore
With hunger and thirst for thee evermore.
Save kisses for me, and a great white sail,
To wrap me in love that shall never fail;
O well loved sea! O faithful sea!
The soul and the body of thee for me.

—W. J. Henderson.

A BREAK FOR LIBERTY.

In as nearly his own language as I can remember it, this is the story, and I have no doubt the true story, that Peter Landis, a clerk at the East St. Louis stock yards, told to me.

People who picture a bloodhound as a massiff magnified about two diameters, tawny colored, with a muzzle like a keg, and paws the size of small hams, have derived their idea from Uncle Tom's Cabin troupes, and know nothing about the real article. Bloodhounds are used in the penal institutions of all the southern states, but nowhere as extensively as in Texas, where the raising of them and their sale to sheriffs and wardens forms quite an industry. I happen to know a good deal about the beasts, although I was never a dog fancier or an officer The truth is I was a convict.

I look back on it with sorrow, but without shame, for I was convicted of something I do not consider a crime. I had been employed as a cow puncher on a ranch south of Fort Worth, on the Rio Grande, and we were taking a bunch of cattle north to the Panhandle district. At a little town called Haymun Junction a sheriff's posse stopped us to search for some stolen horses, and one of the deputies claimed my pony. I had raised the animal from a colt, but the deputy was obstinate, so we had words, and he finally snatched up a Winchester. I protest I had no wish to hurt the man, but I believed I was in danger, and, to make a long story short, I shot him in the shoulder, was arrested, tried, and, in spite of all my friends could do, sentenced to the Northern penitentiary for two years. The charge was "assault with intent to do great bodily harm," and there was considerable prejudice against cowboys in the place where I was tried.

I had never been a bad young fellow, and this was heartbreaking to me, but I had still my self respect and determined to serve out my sentence patiently. The penitentiary was at Huntsville, 400 miles away by rail, and there were eighteen of us to go. The method used in transporting us is the method still in vogue in Texas, and I challenge penal history, with the exception of that of the galleys of Toulon, to furnish a parallel to it in brutality Iron collars, weighing at least five pounds, were riveted around our necks, we were stood in double file and then yanked, two and two, to a long chain that ran down the center. Imagine a screw with eighteen ribs, and one has a fair idea of the arrangement, but no words can convey the sense of degradation, the brutalizing horror and shame that even the most callous feel upon becoming part of this sad and sinister procession. Handcuffs were snapped on each man and, bending and stumbling under our chains, we were driven through the jeering crowds up to a smoking car side tracked for us, and the journey began.

It was a terrible one. The central chain was long enough to stretch from seat to seat as we sat, two abreast and nine rows deep, but if any man moved his head he would jerk the necks of those before and behind him, and a quiver would pass along the whole line. In fact, the last two men were chained up so short that they could barely sit on the extreme edge of their seat by craning their necks as far front as possible, and in this posture they rode the whole 400 miles. To sleep was out of the question, and when one moved the whole clanking, cursing, miserable mass oved with him. We got some bread and m t once on the trip, which lasted exactly t nty-six hours.

When we finally reached Huntsville, I was trembling like a child, tears of sheer agony were running down my face, and I tried as best I could with my manacled hands to hold the cruel collar away from my neck, which it had chafed raw. The rest of the men were in scarcely better shape, and our joints were so stiff from sitting nearly motionless for a day and a night, that we could with difficulty walk. As we were getting out of the car I stumbled and pulled over another man, half strangling myself at the same time. Instantly the nearest guard rained down a shower of kicks upon me.

"I've noticed you shamming," he shouted. "Wait till we get you in the walls."

"The walls" was the slang name for the prison, and this little episode fixed my status. I was reported as a sly, cunning rascal, fond of subterfuge, and in this light my conduct was viewed, and all my little mistakes and failures were prejudged. It was not long before the constant misery of my life blotted out every sentiment except a dull determination to escape at the first opportunity.

I was put to work for a while in the stove factory at Huntsville, but as the summer opened a gang of us were let out to a contractor to work in a wood camp about fifty miles away.

"Be careful of this man," said one of the deputies, pointing me out to the contractor; "he's a slick conniver and apt to make you trouble."

"I'll bore a hole through him if he does," replied the other

So with this recommendation I was introduced to the camp. It lay in the midst of a thick belt of woods, and was guarded by a cordon of sentries, exactly as a military post. The men slept in log barracks, and the work consisted altogether of chopping and cording. The tasks were severe, the punishments excessive, and the food and sanitary arrangements of the place abominable. Although chains and shackles were dispensed with, there were no escapes, for not only were the guards instructed to fire unhesitatingly in such a case, but in one corner of the camp was a kennel containing twenty bloodhounds. None of the convicts were allowed to give these dogs food or become familiar with them on pain of a lashing, but I often saw them, and they looked very much like setters, dead liver colored, small in size and sleek of hide, with rather sharp pointed noses. Thier was nothing at all formidable about their appearance, but dreadful stories were circulated of their ferocity.

Fall was coming on and it was getting cold, when one evening I escaped. It was unexpected. I had gravitated into a water carrier, and had gone, just about dusk, to a spring near the outskirts of the camp. As I neared it the guard at that point passed me and said as he passed me: "Jim, I'm glad you're here. I've been feeling sick." Then it flashed on me that he mistook me in the gloam for the relief guard; it was a chance that might never come again. I dropped my bucket and quickly walked away.

Now, this was my position; I was in a wood in a strange, thinly settled country that I did not know. I had convict's stripes on my back, and not a cent or a weapon in my pocket, and I knew that my absence was sure to be discovered in less than an hour, when the roll would be called. They were long chances, but death, it seemed to me, would be preferable to recapture and punishment. The thing was to put as much space as possible between myself and the camp before the alarm, and I plunged ahead, taking a southeasterly direction from the stars. I chose the thick of the wood rather than the open, for from the time I passed the guard the bloodhounds had never been out of my mind an instant, and I knew that the trees would seriously embarrass the riders who follow the pack. It is generally supposed that bloodhounds track and tree fugitives for hours before the pursuing party comes up, but as a matter of fact, the riders always aim to be right on the flanks of the dogs. There was a good deal of underbrush and it was hard progress, but excitement kept me up, and I never paused until I reached a clearing a good six miles away, where I threw myself down and listened. The wind was still yet, the night was full of the interminable stir of the woods, the flutter of leaves, the snapping of twigs, and the scamper of some belated squirrel, and in every sound I fancied I could hear the faint, far baying of the hounds. Stories I had heard in camp of the savage beasts swarming over poor wretches and tearing them open as they fought, came back to me, and every revolting detail leaped into horrid picture in my mind until my scalp began to creep and sweat started out all over me like water. It had grown very dark, but I dived into the woods again, thrusting my hands in front of me to keep the branches out of my eyes.

I kept on pretty steadily all night, and when morning dawned it found me on the fringes of the wood belt, with a sparsely grown, undulating country before me. There was a thicket near by; I crept into it and panted there for a while. I was dead tired, and my feet were swollen so that my shoes seemed bursting; but I could not sleep for the haunting thought of those dogs yelping along my trail, and getting nearer and nearer. I made a club from the limb of a tree, and dragged myself on. It would be tedious to rehearse the experiences of that day and the next in detail. I was weakened by punishment and bad food, and fatigue began to tell terribly upon me. I slept in uneasy snatches, waking with a start, and took extraordinary pains to break my trail, swinging from branches of trees and jumping from stumps. My brain was so distraught and preyed upon that often I stopped stock still with the agonizing conviction that the hounds were right behind me, and at times I could make sure I saw them crashing through the underbrush. On the second day, when I was half famished, I managed by great good luck to knock over a rabbit, and ate some of it raw, carrying the rest with me. On the third day I had as yet seen no house, but struck into a disused road, which made me hopeful that there were some habitation near. I had determined to throw myself on the mercy of the first man I met.

It must have been about noon, while I was passing through a well wooded strip, that I heard a mournful note that made my hear stand still. It was no hallucination this time, but the unmistakable wail of bloodhounds that I had heard often enough from their kennel in the camp. As I stood there, terror stricken and thrilling, the baying sounded again, now right at hand, and an instant later, three dogs appeared over a little rise and made straight at me. There was no tree near that was large enough to bear me, so I gripped my bludgeon and prepared to fight. But when the dogs came within a dozen feet they stopped and began to fawn and wag their tails. They were hounds from the camp—they were the Lone Star collar—but it was plain they wanted to be friends even with such a poor wretch as I. Then I noticed that the brutes were starved and trembling and threw them half my rabbit. By the time they devoured it I was patting their heads and they were licking my hands.

My theory was then, and is now, that early in the chase the rest of the hounds took the wrong trail, and these three alone stuck to the right one. Their famished condition lent itself to this conclusion, at any rate. I never saw or heard of the rest of the pack or any of the guards. But I soon found that bloodhounds are not to be despised as traveling companions, for I wandered aimlessly for eight days longer, and, had it not been for them, would most certainly have starved. They ran down rabbits for me, and one day, by great chance or dexterity, caught a wild turkey, and thus we managed to keep alive. At night time we all slept in a heap, and the dogs kept me warm. Moreover, I knew that it would be impossible for any one to surprise me before they would give the alarm.

On the eleventh day out I and my three bloodhounds walked into a cow camp, and when the good natured cow punchers heard my story and satisfied themselves that I had been one of them once upon a time, they undertook to spirit me over the state line. I hated to part with the dogs, for we had conceived a great esteem for each other; but the cowboys kept them as loot, and, I afterward learned, sold one of them for $75 to an English tourist. After a couple of months of vicissitudes I made my way north, and, although the authorities of Texas have assured me that there will be no effort made to prosecute or rearrest me, I have never had any craving to revisit the Lone Star state.—New York Sun.

The Sultan and His Musicians.

It is told that one day the sultan, in an hour of idleness, called for soft music, and bade his court pianist play a polka. The latter, thinking to please his sovereign more, sat down at the instrument and thumped out the Imperial march with all due energy and fervor. Not a word escaped the lips of the sovereign, and the pianist never gave the matter a thought until that evening, when a messenger from Yildiz informed him that the sultan had no further need of his services. In other words, he was cashiered—deprived of his appointment, his house and a salary of $3,000 a year.

Another time, during a pantomime at the Court theatre at Yildiz, Dussap Pacha played the Imperial march while a jibbering jackass brayed and pranced about the stage. The sultan was furious at hearing his own sacred and particular march played as an accompaniment to the dancing of a common donkey, and he dismissed poor Dussap on the spot. The penitent Pacha was, however, afterward restored to imperial favor, as the whole affair proved to be nothing more than a court intrigue to work his disgrace.—New York Tribune.

The Freight Engineer's Duties.

The freight engineman's every day thoughts are largely about the care of his engine and the perplexities incident to getting out of it the minimum amount of work with the maximum amount of fuel. The constant aim of his superiors is to have the engine draw every pound it possibly can. To haul a train up a long and steep grade when the cars are so heavily loaded that a single additional one would bring the whole to a dead standstill requires a knack that can be appreciated only by viewing the performance on the spot. Failure not only wastes time and fuel it may necessitate a return to the foot of the hill or going to the top with only half the load, but it raises a suspicion that some other runner might have succeeded better. The runner whose engine "lays down on the road" fails to draw its load because of insufficient fire and consequent low steam pressure) is liable to the jeers of his comrades on his return home, if not to some sharp inquiries from his superior.—B. B. Adams, Jr., in Scribner's Magazine.

Salutation on the Street.

When you are walking with your friend Brown, and the latter bows and smiles to an acquaintance on the other side of the street, watch Brown very closely and you will see his lips move as he says, barely above his breath, but loud enough for you, who are by his side, to hear: "How d'ye do?" The person he is addressing is entirely out of hearing, and Brown knows it, but he will murmur his query just the same. And when you have done wondering at his folly and meet an acquaintance to whom you wish to bow, note what you do yourself. No matter how far off your friend is, you'll murmur "How d'ye do?" just like Brown did, although you won't notice it unless you try to. If you don't do this you will be an extraordinary person, for scientists tell me that nine-tenths of the human race possess this eccentricity of accompanying a street salutation with this whispered query, which no one is intended to and certainly does not hear.—Chicago Journal.

INTERVIEW WITH MRS. GRANT.

Her Life During the War—A Picture—The Final Surrender.

"Now tell me something of your life while Gen. Grant was winning his honors as a soldier during the rebellion."

"I was like one in a delirium all through the war," she said with enthusiasm. "I love the army and I was the first to urge Ulysses to go to the war, and after that I don't think I was very patriotic. I was a southerner, born in Missouri, and when I was married my father gave me six slaves for my own property. All my relatives, and my brother, Judge Dent, were on the rebel side, but I did not care for them or for the Union men. All I thought of was my husband—that he should win and gain new victories.

"I had everything prepared for a long winter—fruit canned, beef smoked, and enough wood cut to last the whole winter at our home in Galena—when Ulysses sent for me to come to him at Cairo. I turned the lock in the door, leaving everything as it stood, and I never went back.

"I want to show you a picture that I value very highly," and she brought up a little water color in a gold frame. She stood it on her knee, and pointing with her finger she said: "You see all these tents? This way to the end is the general's headquarters. This is City Point, where we were encamped, and this," pointing to a blue stream at the edge of the painting, "is the James river. There was a nice flight of steps led down to it, but it had been cut off by the frame. Now, one Sunday, a lovely, clear day, we all got on a boat—I think it was the Mary Powell—and went down the James river. We landed, and climbing a hill took our field glasses to view the rebels, when we found they were doing the same with us. We all laughed, and some were afraid of their firing on us, but the general said the ladies' bonnets would keep off the shot. It did, too. On our return trip, when just about here," pointing to a place distant from the camp, "we found a string of boats had been fastened together to make a bridge for our soldiers to cross over the James. I will never forget Gen. Sheridan that day. When we saw him he was lost in what looked like a letter. He would read a few lines and the red would creep up in his cheeks like in a girl's. He was so blushingly happy that I said, 'I'll wager you have received a love letter.' He blushed the more and smiled. A few moments afterward I learned that it was not a love letter, but an order to go to battle.

"The second Sunday following one could not tell that lovely City Point was the same place we had been in on the day of our excursion. The women had been put on the Mary Powell for safety, and it was lying at anchor right in front of the steps of City Point, which I told you led down the bank to the shore. A number of other vessels were also anchored here. The men had gone to take Richmond or to die. The general said to me in parting: 'If Lee surrends I will return and we will go to Washington together. If he takes to the mountains make your way back home—you will be alone.' 'I will wait for you,' I replied. That Sunday was one of suspense. We had no news and were all sitting in a group waiting—waiting. At last a messenger boy came running out and said, all breathless and gasping, 'Mrs. Grant, may I speak to you?' 'Certainly, my dear,' I said, and patted his cheek, which was as dainty as a girl's. We went into the cabin, and he whispered: 'You mustn't tell; it's as much as my head is worth to tell you, but I caught it as it was going over the wires. Gen. Lee is just surrendering to Grant.' I went on deck and everybody wanted to know what the boy said, but I would not tell. I just laughed, and while they were urging me, we heard the dull roar of voices shouting away down the river. Closer and closer it came, and swelled in volume until it was on City Point opposite us. Then the cannons were fired and the steamers blew their whistles in chorus, and every tongue was crying, 'Lee has surrendered!'"

"What did the general say when first you met afterwards?"

"He did not say one word. We just kissed each other in silence, but there was a great deal in that kiss."—Nelly Bly's Interview in New York World.

MOXIE Nerve Food. This is a liquid food to strengthen and build up the overtaxed nervous system. It will relieve old drinkers of the thirst for liquors, though it is neither a medicine nor a stimulant. It cures nervousness and mental exhaustion at once if not from inflammation. The Moxie Nerve Food plant was first discovered in South America by the late Lieut. Moxie, and first given to the public by Dr. Augustine Thompson, Leadville, physician of Lowell, Mass.

CHAPTER ON TENORS.

NO OTHER PROFESSION DEMANDS SUCH REGULARITY OF LIFE.

Great Care Taken of His Valuable Throat. What the Public Thinks of Him—Fastidiousness in Regard to Physical Conditions—The Prima Donna.

"There has been," says Sims Reeves in his autobiography, "for some time past a decided fall in tenors; not that there is no demand for the article, but because the demand which really exists cannot be supplied. For in art the great principle which rules in commerce does not hold good. On the contrary, instead of the demand creating the supply, it is the supply which creates or at least stimulates the demand. Quotations for first rate prima donnas were never so high as they are now, yet never before were prima donnas so numerous. No one, on the other hand, goes to the opera to hear a tenor, simply because there are none of the highest distinction to hear.

HIS VALUABLE THROAT.

"Think how every tenor, who wishes at all times to do his best, must regulate his life, must protect his valuable throat against all possible and impossible draughts. He eats in the most sparing manner, when all London sets him down as a glutton; drinks nothing but claret and water, when by universal consent he is a flaming, fiery drunkard. You get your feet wet, are hoarse, and are well the next day. The more delicate, more susceptible tenor gets his feet wet, is hoarse and is not well the next day; and so long as he is unable to sing not only loses his money—if he happens to be a concert singer—but is usually regarded as an impostor, because he frankly and conscientiously declines to torture the ears of a public he has been in the habit of delighting. Tenors have their faults like other men. But they can scarcely, with any fairness, be accused of irregular habits. There is no profession, indeed, which demands such absolute regularity of life, such punctuality in the performance of duties, as that of the actor, and above all, of a singer, who, besides his general health, has his voice—often a very delicate one—to think of. Indeed, the care the tenor takes of himself amounts in many cases to fastidiousness.

"When he is on his travels, especially in our capricious, changeable climate, the tenor does really incur risks, and the care these delicate voiced singers are obliged to take of their valuable throats is something incredible to those who have not witnessed it. There are some tenors who seem to keep themselves constantly enveloped, as if in cotton wool, and I have known more than one who would not start even on the shortest journey but he must take with him a collection of scarves, wrappers and other bandages. Notwithstanding some drawbacks, the position of a tenor is, all the same, a fine one, and if the great tenors are disappearing it cannot be said that such enthusiasm as they were wont to excite is now called forth by baritones or basses.

THE PRIMA DONNA.

"The prima donna is not only as great a favorite as ever, but is often the only member of an operatic cast to whom every sort of favor is shown. For her exclusively is reserved the admiration which was formerly shared by the prima donna, contralto, tenor, baritone and bass. In these matters there is no dictating to the public; but, whatever the fact may signify, a fact it is that, whereas Mme. Patti, Mme. Nilsson, Mme. Albani and Mme. Gerster are sought for in all countries, and travel in the character of stars to the most distant lands, none in any part of the world seem to care much for the voice of any tenor, baritone or bass now on the Italian operatic stage."

Amateur and struggling genius will do well to ponder over these remarks about singing masters. "I should like," says Mr. Sims Reeves, "to make a short digression, and comment on the great evils arising from the pretensions of musical quacks, who offer to teach singing without possessing one of the necessary qualifications; indeed, I could count the really clever professors of singing on my fingers. A carpenter, house painter, or any other mechanic has to serve an apprenticeship in order to learn his craft, but all that the charlatan 'professor' of singing requires is a brass door plate, and an unlimited amount of 'cheek.'

"Many a voice, which was naturally sweet and sympathetic, has been irreparably ruined by this system; yes, and I regret to say, the monstrous evil is growing, by reason of advertisements, which offer unwary musical aspirants lessons at a rate less than is paid for the most ordinary kind of mechanical labor. With teachers professing to hold conservatoire diplomas and to be able to teach proper production of voice and phrasing, within a given time, at a less price than vermin powder costs, good singers ought to be plentiful, but unfortunately the reverse holds good; we have few eminent vocalists, and unquestionably it is not for the lack of good voices."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Abram S. Hewitt's War Services.

When the war broke out Mr. Hewitt placed his services at the disposal of the government at Washington. He was not fitted either by nature or training for military position, but he possessed a technical knowledge of iron manufacture and remarkable skill in diplomacy which made his services of far greater value to the government than if he had been a graduate of West Point or Annapolis. On two occasions he was sent abroad by President Lincoln as the accredited representative of the government. On both occasions he was the bearer of letters from Secretary Stanton to Minister Adams in London, who was directed to co-operate with Mr. Hewitt in everything that the latter did. When Secretary Stanton came into office he found himself confronted with a great civil war and discovered to his consternation that there was no gun iron made in the country. The position of the government was a perilous one. Mr. Hewitt's technical knowledge of the manufacture of iron made his services in this juncture of great value. It was necessary to have the gun barrels made here and the secret of their manufacture must be discovered.

When he arrived in England Mr. Hewitt adroitly managed to effect an entrance into the gun iron works of the Marshall Iron company. Visitors were not allowed to enter the works and he had to resort to strategy in order to effect his purpose. He watched the process of making gun iron, mastered it, and on his return home introduced it into the United States.

With several large mills under his control Mr. Hewitt immediately set to work to make gun iron, and with such success that he produced all that was used during the last three years of the war. In the making of this gun iron Mr. Hewitt extricated the government at Washington from an exceedingly embarrassing position and enabled it to place arms quickly in the soldiers' hands. Not only did Mr. Hewitt make no profit on his work, but he actually incurred a heavy loss. The secretary of war offered to secure him indemnity, but Mr. Hewitt declined it, as he also did the proposition that congress should tender him a vote of thanks.—New York Times.

Except by Personal Experience.

It is all very well for the papers to discuss the question, "Is Marriage a Failure?" It amuses their readers and adds to their sale. But there is not a woman in America who will be convinced either one way or the other except by personal experience. Nor a man either.—Fort Worth (Tex.) Gazette.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.

SOME VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS IN REGARD TO BREATHING.

Results of Inhaling Impure Air—A Physiological Explanation—Give the Lungs Plenty of Pure Air—A Few Exercises for the Lungs.

Some of our readers who may be far removed from any opportunity of gymnastic work in regular gymnasiums, may feel that there is little use in their trying to undertake such work, however much they may need physical development. But they are mistaken. If one really is in earnest, much can be done. It may be something like taking medicine, for certainly there is less fun in home exercise than in the gymnasium, but it will soon become interesting and enjoyable.

One of the first and most important things for any one to do is to put into your lungs, several times a day, as large an amount of pure air as possible. On this depends so much the absolute oxygenizing of the blood, which carries nutriment to every part of the body. The amount of impure air which people are willing to take into their lungs is perfectly marvelous. Half a dozen people will sit in an ordinary sized room, with one or two kerosene lamps, perhaps, which are eating the same vital principle from the air that the lungs need, a whole evening, with windows and doors tightly closed, and wonder why they feel so sleepy or headachey! Could they be required to measure the air capacity of the room, and compare it with the amount of air vitiated by one person in a given time, they would be surprised to find, perhaps, that, during the first hour, so much oxygen has been taken from the air, and so much carbonic acid and so many impurities thrown into it, that, from that time they had been breathing and rebreathing vitiated air, which each respiration renders more and more impure.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL EXPLANATION.

Could they only watch the change in the flow of the blood, they would not only not wonder they did not feel brilliant, but they would be astonished that the brain worked at all, with such insufficient nourishment. The blood that flowed freely at first, and of a bright scarlet color, would gradually grow more sluggish in its action, and the color would change slowly to a more and more purple hue, indicating that it carried less and less oxygen, the life giving principle, and more and more of the clogging and poisonous elements. It is unfortunate this process cannot be watched, but, if you really want to be strong, see to it that you give your lungs plenty of good air, sleeping and waking.

Another point you may not have thought of. It is one thing, and the first one, to have the air you want to breathe pure and abundant; the next thing is to know how to take it properly.

"Why, we breathe all the time," you say.

Very true, but most people breathe very badly, giving only the upper cells of their lungs any refreshment, while the lower cells are panting, so to speak, or, rather, it is the middle cells which get the most nutriment, while the upper and lower lack it.

In ordinary inspiration the lower part of the lungs should be inflated first, and the upper chest should move little or not at all. While this process is going on, a certain set of muscles is constantly at work. There is another set that is not needed except in case of forced inhalation and exhalation. The lungs need this extra feeding, and forced inhalation and exhalation should be indulged in two or three times a day.

Unless you are sure you are a good breather, you will best accomplish the desired end by lying flat on your back. In this position the back muscles are kept stationary and the shoulders held down, while the diaphragm will more surely be depressed. When your forced inspiration is taken as it should be, the lower chest will rise strongly first; then the side muscles will swell, causing at the same time a slight depression again in front; then the muscles of the upper chest. Many people suck the diaphragm up, apparently, actually making the lower chest smaller. Raise the lower chest muscularly first, if you have this habit, and then force the breath in.

EXERCISES FOR THE LUNGS.

Here are a few movements:

Take a strong, full breath, as nearly right as may be, through the nostrils, hold a second, and expel the same way. Repeat several times.

Now, inhale strongly, hold, then, making a small aperture with the lips, as though you were going to whistle, blow it out vigorously, inhaling again the second it is out. Repeat several times, and you will probably find, by the time you have taken the third or fourth breath, you are breathing properly; the lower part of the chest will move normally at first, while the upper chest will move later without thought on your part.

Next, take a strong breath, and hold it while you count twenty, then gradually increase the count to forty or fifty. Do not repeat this more than twice.

Again, take a full breath and exhaust very slowly. Then inflate as slowly as possible. Count while you are at work, thus diverting your mind and giving you an opportunity of testing your gain. After working on your back long enough to know you are working in the right way, try the same movements standing, raising the arms at the same time slowly over the head.

When the blood is circulating freely by this process, rise vigorously on the toes twenty or thirty times, increasing as you can; then lift the toes strongly, keeping the heels firmly down; then stoop very low, separating the heels, throwing the knees well apart and out, and keeping the back as straight as possible. This will keep up the circulation and develop the legs.—Mary R. Allen in Youth's Companion.

Checks on the Metropolis.

It must be remembered that the tendencies of the age, while leading people toward towns, do not lead them to concentrate to any single center, but rather to the creation of a series of detached points. Railways and telegraphs make it easier to live in cities, but they also make it easier to go away from them and create new cities. New York is far less of a metropolis on the American continent than was the case forty years ago. I can remember when in traveling at the west any intelligent person would buy a New York daily paper twenty-four hours' old in preference to any western paper of that very morning. The telegraph instantly changed all that; the Omaha or Kansas City paper contains substantially the same telegraphic news with the New York dailies, and the latter have shrunk to a mainly local circulation. The same process goes through everything, and no matter how the self styled metropolis grows, it is checked and limited by all other cities. The same thing is true, to a smaller extent, in England itself; the American visitor is surprised to find that to know even the political currents of the nation one must now look outside of London; Edinburgh is reasserting itself, while Manchester and Birmingham have emphatically their own opinions.—"T. W. H." in Harper's Bazar.

THE JEWEL OF CONTENT.

There is a jewel which no Indian mine can buy,
No chemic art can counterfeit;
It makes men rich in greatest poverty,
Makes water wine, turns wooden cups to gold,
The homely whistle to sweet music's strain;
Seldom it comes—to few from heaven sent—
That much in little—all in naught—content.

OPINIONS DIFFER.

What the Papers of New York Have to Say of the President's Message.

A PLAIN BUSINESS-LIKE DOCUMENT.

Says One---The Tribune Believes it to be Mischievous and Carelessly Prepared.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The Sun, in its editoriol comments on the president's message, says:

"The main fact is that no where does Mr. Cleveland specify or even suggest a line of policy to be pursued dealing with the question of surplus and taxes."

The Herald says:

"It is a plain, business like report of the condition of the various departments prefaced by a few paragraphs in which Mr. Cleveland speaks for more impartial laws and stricter adherence to constitutional methods. That monopolies and trusts shall not increase but that all Americans shall have a fair chance in the race of life. What he says on this head is sensible."

The Tribune says:

"The message is not so carefully written as the president's other official papers, but its crude or awkward phrases count for nothing in comparison with its mischievious tone."

The Times says:

"The wholesome important truths lying at the base of some of Mr. Cleveland's remarks are, in our judgment, somewhat obscured by over statement."

Not Americans.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 4.—A majority of the members of the board of education have decided to refuse the offer of the Patriotic Sons of America to present to the body a number of United States flags to be hung in the schools for the purpose of inculcating thoughts of patriotism in the pupils, on the ground that certain elements might be antagonized thereby and that other nationalities might demand the display of foreign flags. In this connection it is an interesting fact that every member of the majority is of foreign birth or parentage. They are appointed by the mayor as the price of political activity.

A Blue Blooded Murderer.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Despite the advice of the priests and the efforts of the government agents, Prado who suffers death under the gullotine this week for the murder of Marie Aquetant, refuses to disclose his real name or antecedents. The story of his life of crime and murder was given in these dispatches some weeks ago. According to his wife he was born in Mexico, and is the son of Don Luis Linska de Castillion, a noble of high degree. On the other hand it is stated that he is a son of Don Ferdinanz Leal and a brother-in-law of General Ponfiro Diaz president of the Mexican republic.

A Prominent Wedding.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The wedding of Miss Grace Farwell, daughter of United States Senator Charles B. Farwell, and Dudley Winston, son of Hon. F. H. Winston ex-minister to Persia, will be solemnized to-night at the Fourth Presbyterian church with surroundings of consinerable brilliancy. A large number of invitations have been issued and numerous guests from the east arrived this morning. After the ceremony there will be an equally brilliant reception at the magnificent Farwell mansion on Pearson street and the Lake front.

Railroad Magnates.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Railroad magnates by the score are in this city today for the purpose of attending the meeting of the committee on uniform classification. There are delegations of three each from the Trunk Line, Central Traffic, South Western, International and trainscontinental associations, as well as representatives of the New England and Southern Mississippi lines.

Want a Place for Sewage.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—An important conference of delegates from every town between Chicago and Peoria, including Joliet, Ottawa, Marseilles and La Salle, opened here today for the purpose of considering the various plans proposed for a new water way for the purpose of disposing of the sewage of the city. The conference is being held in the council chamber, and will result in the appointment of a commission to formulate a bill for presentation to the general assembly.

Found Dead in a Straw Stack.

LEBANON, Ind., Dec. 4.—Excitement is at fever heat here today over the finding of the body of Doc Montgomery imbedded in a straw stack on John Routh's farm, four miles west of this city. Montgomery had been missing since election day. He was last seen in a drunken condition, and it is generally believed he committed suicide.

Half Killed by Foot Pads.

DANVILLE, Ill., Dec. 4.—As James Smith, a tailor of this city, was walking on the east side of the public square last evening about 6 o'clock, he was attacked by two foot pads. They pounded him fearfully over the head, and made their escape without securing any booty. Ed. Crosby and Wash White were soon afterward arrested for committing the offense.

The Association.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 4.—The regular meeting of the board of directors of the American base ball association preceding the annual meeting is in progress today at the Lindell Hotel. Secretary Wheeler C. Wipoff says that the contracts of Ollie T. Beard with Cincinnati and E. B. Sutton and L. Shield Rudent with Milwaukee will be approved.

Her Death a Mystery.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, Dec. 4.—Mrs. George Morehouse, of Bush Creek, aged 19, was found dead in bed Saturday. Her husband went to work in the morning, leaving his wife in her usual health, and on returning to the house about 10 a. m. he found her in bed cold in death. Her little child, about 2 years old, was dressed as though for a journey. The cause of Mrs. Morehouse's death is still a mystery.

The British Navy.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—A profound sensation has been created in Parliamentary circles by the statement which has been revealed prematurely from a high source that Lord George Hamilton will shortly announce in the house of commons that the government has decided to expend upon the navy an additional sum of fifteen millions of dollars, principally in shipbuilding.

FIGHT BETWEEN CHINESE.

Rival Highbinders Shoot to Kill, Four Being Fatally Hurt.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Dec. 4.—Today a bloody and murderous fight took place in the streets of this city between factions of Chinese highbinders. The trouble between the two crowds has been brewing for some time. Thursday night a street fist fight occured between several highbinders and this afternoon a sanguinary meeting took place on the streets. About twenty Chinamen all armed with pistols participated and over fifty shots were exchanged, the row lasting some ten minutes. Four highbinders were shot down and two others badly wounded. The four were removed to the receiving hospital, where one died very soon after. The other three cannot recover. Two other wounded men were carried away during the fight by their countrymen and can not be found by the police. Several more are believed to have been wounded. Five highbinders have been arrested, charged with being connected with the bloody affair. At the time the streets were filled with crowds, but no spectator fortunately, was struck by the many random shots. The most intense excitement prevails in Chinatown, where several thousand Chinese are congregated, and it is feared that the trouble is not yet ended.

STORY OF A SILVER WATCH.

Its Theft by a Palace Car Porter Raises Nice Points of Law.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 4.—Harry Lee, a Pullman palace car porter, was convicted this morning of the larceny of a silver watch the property of John C. Sheppard, of Washington. He was released on bail pending the determination of a law point raised. Lee was the porter of a car which was chartered by a private party to go from New York to Chicago and Mexico and return to New York. When the car arrived at Chicago on the return trip, John C. Sheppard, of Washington, who was one of the party, missed a small silver watch he had been carrying and which had his name engraved upon the inside of the case. He left the car at that point and informed the porter of his loss. That was in the early pare of last summer. The watch was subsequently traced to Lee's possession through a woman in Philadelphia, to whom he says he had loaned it, and his arrest followed. The point of law raised during the trial upon which a decision is awaited was as follows: The car in which the watch was missed did not leave Philadelphia, but its point of departure and return was New York. The rules of the company are that articles found by the porters in the cars must be returned to the company at the point of departure on return of the car in which the property is found. Therefore, in this case, if there was any larceny committed it was either at Chicago or New York, and the defendant could not be convicted in Pennsylvania, for he had violated no law of this state.

RUN DOWN BY A FREIGHT.

Three Pennsylvania Coal Miners Suffer Horrible Deaths.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 4.—At Summer Hill last night at 12 o'clock Harry Paul and two other young men named Orr and Patterson were walking home on the Pennsylvania railroad, when a freight train coming west ran over them. The first intimation of the accident was given when several engines came to Conemaugh with blood on their machinery, when a telegram was sent to an engineer with surroundings of consinerable brilliancy. A large number of invitations have been issued and numerous guests from the east arrived this morning. After the ceremony there will be an equally brilliant reception at the magnificent Farwell mansion on Pearson street and the Lake front.

INNOCENT BUT PLEADED GUILTY

Remarkable Story of Reich, the Condemned Wife Murderer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Alex S. Rosenthal, counsel for the committee of Hebrews engaged in an attempt to save the life of Adolph Reich, who is convicted of wife murder, and respited by Gov. Hill until January 9, today made public a number of affidavits tending to show that the confession of Reich, given on his trial, was virtually extorted from him by counsel, who thought his story of innocence would not be believed. Herman Roth, who assisted the lawyer, swears that Reich persistently refused to say that he killed his wife, until persuaded he would fare worse if he denied it.

Valuable Land Contest.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 4.—News has been received from Berryville that Philadelphia parties have laid claim under an old Spanish grant to 20,000 acres of land near that town, embracing some of the most valuable farms in that country. Over 100 persons occupy the land, which is valued at considerably more than $200,000. The matter is causing the greatest excitement.

Typhoid Fever in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Typhoid fever is now raging in this city to an unusual extent. While the records of the board of health show a large number of deaths from that cause, they fail to show the widespead existence of the disease. Only the fatal cases are reported to the city authorities. During July, August, and September, the months in which this fever holds carnival, 159 persons died of it in this city, and no one knows just how many cases there were that did not succumb to death. In October there were fifty-two deaths, and in November thirty. The total number of deaths up to last Saturday was 325 for this year—two more than during the whole year of 1887, just as many as in the whole of 1886, and twenty-nine more than in 1885.

The Railroad Trust Falls.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—It is officially announced this morning on Wall street that all of the negotiations for the settlement of railroad troubles west and southwest of Chicago have been broken off, and the great clearing house plan has fallen through. The failure of the clearing house scheme was caused by the opposition of President Hughitt, of the Northwestern road.

China's Emperor to Wed.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The formal betrothal of the youthful emperor of China takes place today at Pekin. On the 5th of January the final arrangements will be made and the marriage will take place on February 26th.

Small Pox in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—South Chicago is greatly alarmed over the discovery of two cases of small pox on board the steamer W. H. Gratwick which arrived from Buffalo coal laden November 27th.

THE LOCAL DAY.

A New Dry Dock of Large Size now Ready for Business in Duluth.

DULUTH'S ISHPEMING VISITORS.

Who Will Arrive Tonight.---A Year of Iron Mining On Lake Superior.

Grignon's new dry dock, which has been building on Park Point for some months, was launched today The dock is larger than the old one belonging to the same man, and is the largest on Lake Superior. It will give Duluth a dry dock capacity for lifting any small vessel clear out of the water, by the use of both the new and old dock, and will lift either end of most of the larger vessels, so that ordinary repairs can be made to their bottoms, forward or aft. The dock is of the ordinary floating pattern, with high chambers reaching up on the sides, and fitted with pumps. These chambers are filled with water, and the structure, thus sunken, floated to place; they are then pumped out and the whole thing rises. The new dock will be of great value to Duluth and her maratime interests, and in the absence of extensive dry dock or marine railways, will do good service.

There is no certainty as yet, concerning the building here of a dry dock by the Detroit Dry Dock company, as published in morning papers. The matter has been in contemplation for months, tests have been made of the soil and the character of the bottom, as stated last summer in the HERALD, but no decision has been reached.

ISHPEMING VISITORS.

THE EXPECTED EXCURSIONISTS FROM THE MICHIGAN MINING TOWN AND THEIR RECEPTION.

The Ishpeming delegation of business men will arrive here early tonight, under the guidance of F. W. Salisbury, traveling passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic. They will be received by committees from the chamber of commerce, consisting of Messrs. Baldwin, Seville, Sutphin, Munger, Ole and Stryker, and of the council, consisting of Messrs. Armstrong, Thomas and Louden. Tomorrow they will be taken to an excursion to West Duluth, and probably about the harbor, while they will be driven about the city in carriages. There will be about fifty in the party, all of them well known business men and iron miners of Ishpeming, and their coming marks the beginning of closer trade relations between Duluth and neighboring towns along the south shore. It is the leading town of upper Michigan, with a population of about 7,000, and is the center of the vast iron mining region of which Marquette and Escanaba are the outlets.

LAKE SUPERIOR MINES.

THE LARGEST YEAR IN THEIR HISTORY—FULLY HALF A MILLION TONS OF ORE SHIPPED.

Lake shipments for the season are practically at an end, and the figures show that the Lake Superior mines have sent more ore to market by water this year than in any previous year in their history. At this date a year ago, says the Marquette Journal, the last cargo for the season had gone forward. This year's shipments to date are 210,577 tons in excess of that total, and this will be slightly increased by a few cargoes yet to be reported from Escanaba. Compared with the shipments of 1886, the difference in favor of the current year is 1,107,248 tons. Rail shipments this year are known to be larger than ever before, so that it is entirely safe to estimate the output of the Lake Superior mines for 1888 at 5,000,000 tons, or about 300,000 tons more than their production in 1887.

The depression that prevailed during the earlier months of the season, and the improvement that set in later, can be traced from the following figures, showing how the shipments of this year and last compared, month by month. On June 1st the mines were 90,837 tons behind the shipments by water on the corresponding date in 1887; on July 1st, 161,095 tons; and on August 1st, 245,065 tons. The reaction then set in, and September 1st saw the difference in favor of last year, reduced to 222,887 tons. By October 1st it was cut down to 130,880 tons, and by the first of November it was not only wiped out, but a gain of 27,973 tons over last year had been made.

By ranges the shipments are as follows: Marquette, range, 1,815,402 tons; Gogebic range, 1,229,337 tons; Menominee range, 1,111,220 tons, and the Vermillion range, 450,475 tons.

CONGRESS.

The House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Mr. McDonald, of Minnesota, presented a petition from citizens of North Dakota for the immediate admission into the union of South Dakota and Montana, and for constitutional convention, in North Dakota, Washington and New Mexico. Referred to the committee on territories.

The speaker laid before the house the annual reports of the secretary of treasury and comptroller of currency, which were appropriately referred. On motion of Mr. Sayers, of Texas, leave was grated the committee on appropriation to sit during sessions of the house.

The Senate.

The motion to take up the Union Pacific bill was not pressed by Mr. Frye, who said he would ask to have it made a special order next Tuesday; and then the senate proceeded to consider the tariff bill.

On motion of Mr. Vance the tariff bill was further postponed till tomorrow, and the senate at 12:55 adjourned.

A Big Robbery.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 4.—Leopold Hubert, an old German about seventy-five years of age and a temporary guest at the Washington hotel, was last night robbed of $200 in cash and $800 worth of good notes. He put up at the hotel several days ago and was about to start for his home in Wisconsin this morning. On retiring last night he rolled up his coat and vest containing a large leathern pocketbook and put them under his pillow. When he awoke this morning the clothing was where he had put it, but the pocketbook was gone. Two young men occupied the room with the old German. They had valuables with them which were not molested, and there is some suspicion that they might know something about the mysterious disappearance.

Some One will Suffer.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Dec. 4.—Detectives are still working on the mysterious incendiary case of the Calumet & Hecla copper mine, and think they have clues. The bell rope was cut and the water pipe disconnected, and there is no doubt that the mine was fired. A short time before the fire the company had adopted a plan of giving a number to every miner and person entering the mine, requiring a surrender of the same on reappearance at the surface. It is now thought that the mine was fired by some employee of the company. The fire is still burning fiercly. The prospects are that it will not be extinguished this year.

Not Making Money.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 4.—Last week an assessment of $500 a share was declared on the stock of the Washington base ball club. There are about fifteen shares, of which Mr. Hewitt, the president, has a majority. It is said the club has lost $23,000 in three seasons.

Opposed to Pollution.

MORRIS, Ill., Dec. 4.—The committee appointed by the mayor of Morris to attend the sewerage meeting at Chicago today, are unanimously against the pollution of the Desplaines and Illinois rivers by Chicago sewerage. There is liable to be considerable of a row over this question.

Shinney on Your Own Side.

ZUMBROTA, Minn., Dec. 4.—Yesterday while some young men were engaged at the game of shinney on the pond Elmer Halling and a young man by the name of Huff ran into each other. They were both picked up insensible. Halling was badly bruised about the face and will not be able to get out for several days.

Died to Save a Comrade.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 4.—Willie, the 16 year old son of the Hon. George C. McConley, auditor of Humboldt county, was drowned last evening while skating on the Des Moines river. He lost his life in heroically saving the life of another boy named Frank Jay.

A West Superior Mystery.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Dec. 4.—The body of an unknown man was found on the road about four miles from the city. No particulars can be learned, but the man was apparently killed for his money, as his body bears evidence of foul play.

Died to Save Others.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y. Dec. 4.—As the fast mail whizzed through Herkimer this morning two girls were on the track and in danger. Flagman Wolver rushed to their rescue and saved them but he himself was killed.

A Russian Surplus.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 4.—The minister of finance states that the surplus in the Russian treasury for 1887, was 56,600,000 roubles.

There was not a criminal case before the municipal judge this morning, and but one cure case. Duluth is certainly reforming.

David Burbank, whose skull was reported fractured by a fall while skating, is not severely injured and is recovering rapidly.

Today is the date for the sending in of all quarterly pension certificates to Washington, and Clerk of Court Pressnell and City Clerk Budden are both busy making them out.

Dr. D'Unger, at one time a Duluth resident and publisher, is owner of a patent telephone which is in competition in Chicago, his present home, with the Bell and other systems.

Linnell the younger, of Tower, who charged his uncle with the rape of his wife, is said to be about to begin libel suit against a Duluth paper for asserting the suit was for blackmail.

Suit was brought to-day by the city against Albert Swenson to test the ordinance compelling sewer connections to be made. Order was also served on St. Mary's hospital to compel the building of an underground box drain from the hospital.

Miss A. F. Struckmeyer, of Ashland, Wis., is in the city organizing dancing classes, for children and adults. Miss Struckmeyer comes well recommended as a teacher in the art of dancing, and her classes will be conducted strictly privately. Parties wishing to become members will please call or leave names at No. 15 West Second street with Mrs. F. Doran.

ON 'CHANGE.

A STRONG AND HIGH MARKET ENTIRELY ON OUTSIDE INDICATIONS OF STRENGTH.

Opening at yesterday's closing prices, our wheat market has ruled strong and higher, but very dull, with fair business in cash wheat early at irregular prices. With trading in futures almost entirely in the May deal, the session dragged tediously with wide interv[illegible] between transactions, advances in [illegible]ices. By 11 a. m. [illegible]ve the opening, and [illegible]th slow business at unfigures to the close, which was dull, at 1¾c above the opening on May wheat and nominally 1¾c above the opening quotations for cash No. 1 hard.

No. 1 hard cash sold at 1.21, later at 1.20½ and at 1.20, with last sales at 1.21. No. 1 northern 1.08, No. 2 northern 97c and no grade at 96c. No. 3 wheat at 84c. December wheat very firm, but dull, sold at 1.23¾. May wheat opened at 1.26, was quite weak early and was offered at 125¾ without buyers, under advancing quotations from other markets, it was quickly marked up here, so that the second transaction was at 1c over the first at 127, with next dealers at 127¾. It advanced to 127¾, and closed nominally at 127¾.

CURB NOTES

The Chicago close today is as follows: wheat firmer, cash 1.02¾; January 1.05; May 1.10 5-16. Corn firmer; cash 35¾; January 35 7-16; May 38 1-16.

Minneapolis closing quotations in wheat are as follows: No. 1 hard, December 120, January 121¾; May 127; on track 120 and 121; No. 1 northern, December 109; January 110¾; May 115¾, on track 110@113; No. 2 northern December 102, January 103¾ May 109, on track 102@105.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DULUTH.

Hronek, the Chicago murderer, has been found guilty and sentenced to twelve years imprisonment. There are many more in Chicago who deserve a like punishment for similar crimes.

Senator Ingalls believes that Canadian annexation will surely be brought about in time. He says: "The present boundary line between Canada and the United States can no more continue to exist than can a hole in water."

Senator Ingalls says: "If there will be more than 40,000 Democrats in office on the 4th of March next, about which I know nothing, they should all be removed before the going down of the sun on that day, and more than 40,000 Republicans appointed in their stead."

Henri Watterson combats the theory of Ella Wheeler Wilcox that we are to successively inhabit other planets. He doesn't belive in progressive immortality, since the election, and says: "If the troubles of the other planets are anything like those of this world, let us, by all means stick to our old-fashioned hell."

A project to erect East Tennessee into a separate state would find favor among Republicans were it not for the reasonable assurance now offered that its enlightment and progressiveness will henceforth overcome the mental darkness of West Tennessee, and bring the entire state into the Republican columns.

Senator Allison is now the most prominent subject of discussion by the cabinet makers. F. L. Campbell, an intimate friend of Senator Allison, said: "It can be put down for a certainty that Senator Allison has been invited to President Harrison's cabinet, and that the portfolio offered him is that of secretary of the treasury."

The EVENING HERALD'S poetess gets in her fine work today, and those who delight to revel in the fields of poesy will have abundant opportunity to enjoy themselves this evening, and when this runs out, and the readers of this paper feel that they are able to stand it, we will give them another installment. There is lots more where this came from.

The Washington Post, which for a long time claimed a majority in the next house for the Democratic party, now admits that the Republicans will have the disputed Tennessee district and at least one of the four districts in West Virginia, and that the roll of the house will bear the names of 166 Republicans and 159 Democrats—a Republican majority of seven.

Here is another iconoclast after Washington, and a most heartless and reprehensible idol smasher he is, although a clergyman named Smith. He has collected a lot of alleged facts and printed them in the Episcopal Record, showing that Washington was never a communicant of the Episcopal church, and that he never prayed in the woods at Valley Forge. Doubtless he means well, but why couldn't he have left us this pretty story of the Father of his Country, now that the hatchet story and the rest of them have gone? This Rev. G. W. Smith will next contend that Washington had no body-servant.

The Austin, Texas, Statesman is a good Democratic paper, but it does not believe in abusing negroes for political reasons. It says: "There is a class of people in the south who never will learn any sense. This morning's dispatches report a band of regulators in certain counties in Tennessee ordering negroes to leave their homes, and, when they refused, tying them up to trees, whipping and roasting them with fire. This is a very wicked as well as foolish piece of business for sane southern men to undertake. It is wrong and unjust. Granting that the negro did vote against us solid in the late election, that is no reason why we should subject him to outrages or run him out of the country."

These claims of relationship to the President-elect are becoming slightly mixed. Here, for instance, is the New York World contending that Gen. Harrison and Amelie Rives-Chandler are second cousins, while the Chicago Tribune proves that President Cleveland is also a cousin of the lady. It may be that this is only an illustration of the remarkable persistency of the Buffalo man in clinging to some string of popular remembrance; but supposing it to be true that he is really a cousin of the Virginia, and that President Harrison is similarly connected, then the outgoing and the incoming presidents must be fourth cousins of each other or thereabout, to say nothing of their mutual descent from Pocahontas and relationship, through each other, to Jeff Davis.

Most complexion powders have a vulgar gaze, but Pozzoni's is a true beautifier, whose effects are lasting.

TO PLAY A LITTLE.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TALKS EXCURSIONS AND DOES OTHER BUSINESS.

The last session of the old directors of the chamber of commerce and the first of the new was held this forenoon, and there was consequently a large attendance. President Baldwin, in a short and felicitous speech, thanked the chamber for his re-election and the honor done him. A report of the judges of election was then made, giving the results as published yesterday. On motion S. F. Snively was made treasurer and Professor Phelps was re-elected secretary. The professor made a brief speech of acknowledgment, outlining plans and hopes for the future. A letter was read from citizens of Pipestone, Minn., recalling to the attention of the chamber the fact that they had a road to Duluth and inviting an excursion from this city to their section over the Duluth, Wilmar & Pipestone road, now running. A communication from General Passenger Agent Boyd of the South Shore road, regarding the Ishpeming excursionists, was read and a committee was appointed to take charge of the visitors. There was also a letter from Freight Agent Orr, of the same road, referring to the reduced through rates on the line to Boston and the east and requesting the assistance of the chamber in certain matters.

S. A. Thompson called the attention of the chamber to a contemplated excursion on the first twenty-five miles of the Duluth, Red Wing & Southern road from Red Wing to Zumbrota and advised the practicability of attending it. He was followed by secretary Phelps in the same strain. Attention was also called to the approaching completion of twenty miles of the Duluth & Winnipeg and an excursion over that line was also spoken of. A committee to attend the Red Wing excursion was appointed as follows: Messrs. Thompson, Munger, Kennedy, Sutphin and Stearns. The chamber then adjourned.

THE CITY FATHERS.

ITS GOVERNING COUNCIL MET IN IMPORTANT SESSION LAST NIGHT—CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS DONE.

There was a good attendance at the council last night, the only two absentees, Messrs. Costello and Davis, being both away from the city. A large number of bills were ordered paid, including improvement expenses, clerk hire and general bills of every character. Estimates for grading as follows were received and referred: Wolf & Truax, grading Michigan street between Eighth avenue west and the western city limit, $9,564.37; Wolf & Truax, grading Michigan street between Miller's creek and Twenty-fifth avenue west, $1,154.74; Nicholson & Sang, grading Sixth avenue west between First and Fifth streets, $1,272.34. The board of works stated that planking Railroad street would cost $3,000. Sidewalk contracts were let to Colby Smith and to J. C. Morrison.

The fire commissioners advocated the immediate removal of the buildings, 313 and 315 West Superior street, the Howard house and Sullivan's barber shop, recently damaged by fire. The same board requested the purchase of another fire team, also reported against allowing Jas. Pierce to move his wooden building on West First street, and against allowing Geo. Tayler to build on the site of the outside elevator. They also gave notice that there was due the city $235 from contractors for breaking fire alarm wires.

In regard to continuing assessments on Michigan and First streets the city attorney advised for it. He gave notice of a decision adverse to the city in the case of Emma H. Fish and L. H. Grieser. The board of public works was authorized to advertise for bids for steel rails.

Reports of the city officers showed the finances for November to be as follows: General fund, receipts $3,490, disbursements $38,128, on hand at close of month with balance brought forward $34,052; permanent improvement fund, receipts $291,545, disbursements $218,781, on hand at close of month $73,686; fire department fund, receipts $806, disbursements $5,690, on hand $3,200; pound masters receipts $35; municipal court receipts $1,408.

The Gas & Water company stated that they had been ordered to put manure round hydrants, had done it, and had been ordered to remove it, and wanted to know what to do. Were told to leave it. Permission was given for the purchase of 1000 feet new hose, the fire department wanting 1500 feet. The board of works was instructed to have a survey and plans made for a new system of sewers, as they might think necessary and to recommend to the council a competent consulting engineer. After other and routine business council adjourned.

Cheap Thunder.

It is strange, but yet true that some of the city laundries, who claim and are supposed by many to do the finest work in the city, get their work done and pay for it at Lutes' steam laundry, 212 Lake avenue south. But Lutes says he don't care, they get the glory and he gets the shekels. Any one doubting this statement is invited to call and look at his laundry books.

TWENTY-ONE VITAL QUESTIONS.

A Few Symptoms of a Disease that will most Probably Lead to Consumption.

Do you have frequent fits of mental depression?

Do you experience ringing or buzzing noises in your ears?

Do you feel as though you must suffocate when lying down?

Are you troubled with a hacking cough and general debility?

Are your eyes generally weak and watery and frequently inflamed?

Does your voice have a husk, thick sound and a nasal sort of twang?

Is your breath frequently offensive from some unaccountable cause?

Have you a dull oppressive headache, generally located over the eyes?

Do you have to hawk and cough frequently in the effort to clear your throat?

Are you losing your sense of smell, and is your sense of taste becoming dulled?

Does your nose always feel stopped up, forcing you to breathe through your mouth?

Do you frequently feel dizzy, particularly when stooping to pick anything off the floor?

Does every little draught of air and every slight change of temperature give you a cold?

Are you annoyed by a constant desire to hawk and spit out an endless quantity of phlegm?

Is great effort required to keep your thoughts fixed upon matters that formerly were easily performed?

Do you rise from bed as tired and weak as you were the night before, and feel as though you wanted to lie there forever?

Is your throat filled with phlegm in the morning, which can only be discharged after a violent coughing and hawking and spitting?

Do you occasionally wake up from a troubled sleep with a start and feel as if you had just escaped a horrible death by choking?

Have you lost all interest in your calling or business or former pleasures, all ambition gone, and do you feel indifferent whether tomorrow finds you alive or dead?

Are you troubled with a discharge from the head into the throat, sometimes watery and excessive, sometimes mucous, thick, sticking to whatever it touches, sometimes bloody and always putrid and offensive?

The above are some of the many symptoms of catarrh and the beginning of lung troubles. For one case in a hundred will have all of them, but every one effected will have few or many of them. The greater and more serious your symptoms the more dangerous your condition. This class of diseases is treated very successfully by Dr. Cosman, 26 Fourth avenue west, Duluth, Minn.

IT NEVER FAILS

BAD BLOOD

Means an inactive liver and a sympathetic or unnatural action of the stomach, bowels and kidneys, and as a result

BILIOUSNESS.

The symptoms are drowsiness, loss of appetite, headache, lack of energy, pain in the back, costiveness or diarrhœa, sallowness of skin, furred tongue, generally attended with melancholy and

GENERAL DEBILITY.

To cure these diseases means to restore the action of the liver and other organs, and to kill the poison in the blood. A remedy containing Mandrake, Culvers Root, Burdock and Cascara Sagrada, acting especially on the liver, stomach, kidneys and sweat glands, is the proper one.

HIBBARD'S RHEUMATIC SYRUP

restores action, kills malaria and purifies the blood.

CONSTIPATION

THE process of digestion, assimilation and removal needs the healthy action of the liver, pancreas and glands which supply the bile and other fluids, in order to stimulate them to proper action.

Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup

combines all the best medicines, as Mandrake, Culvers Root and Cascara Sagrada, with tonics to restore all secretions and supply the needed action. After taking a few bottles nature completes the cure.

IT NEVER FAILS.

Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup

UNRIVALED in merit. It is a Safe Family Medicine because it contains no poison or opiates. Children, invalids and delicate persons will find it the best medicine and tonic they can use. No home should be without it. Always in season, Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter.

If you cannot procure it of your druggist send direct to us. Price $1.00; 6 bottles $5.00. Plasters 25c.

TESTIMONIALS WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE.

For over twenty years I have been a great sufferer from the effects of a diseased stomach, and for three years past have been unable to do any business—hardly able to move about. Two years ago my case was pronounced by the best medical skill incurable. I visited different water cures and tried different climates, but to no good. Last June I began using Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and at once began to feel better. I have used thirteen bottles, and am a well man.

EDWARD BAKER,
Master Mechanic and Blacksmith,
302 Jackson Street, Jackson, Mich.

Both myself and wife have been using Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup this fall and winter with excellent success. We think it a great medicine. For constipation, dyspepsia or indigestion it surpasses all others that we have used.

LEFT ALONE.

They tell me you're going away, dear,
Back to your old, old home,
And that you are going to stay, dear,
And I will be left alone.

Alone in the whole state parling:
Ah! but I'll lonely be
And the city that with you was pleasant love,
Will dreary be to me.

Go visit my old home, darling,
We call it Comfort Cot.
It stands by the lake neath trees, dear;
You cannot miss the spot,

And say to the parents that greet you,
Their daughter is happy here.
But speak not a word of sorrow, love,
No hint of a silent tear.

Don't, for my sake, let them know dear,
Of all the worry and strife,
Nor that I am lonely and friendless,
And often weary of life.

But tell them I'm happy and gay, dear,
As in earlier years,
When they used to call me sunshine,
And chide my childish fears.

Tell them, oh! tell them from me, dear,
That I do not forget,
And the friends who loved me in youth are
Dearest of all to me yet

Visit them once in the month, dear,
That roses always bloom,
And send me one from the bush, dear,
That grows o'er a tiny tomb,

The grave of my pretty bird, dear,
The one the old cat killed,
And grief for its mournful death, dear,
Was first my young heart filled.

You'll know the shrub by its flowers, love,
They're fairer than the rest,
And tell all its perfect blossoms, dear,
I'd like a bud the best.

And visit them yet again, dear,
When fair pond lil ies bloom;
Those of such lucid whiteness, that
That they brighten even gloom.

You'll find them in the bay, dear;
They bloom profusely there
And with their dainty fragrance sweet,
Perfume the languid air.

Gather the wax-like treasures, love,
Over the side of the same old boat
In which for hours I have tarried
On just the same waters afloat.

Greet brother and sister for me, dear,
My niece and nephews, too,
And tell the Christmas present strive
To grow up good and true.

Tell him, I think of him often, and Hope that he ever will be
An apostle of all that is worthy,
Grand, generous, noble and free.

And if others should ask you about me,
Tell them what I have told,
That I am even happier than
I was in days of old.

—SARA RENSBERRY.

Duluth, Nov. 30, 1888.

FOR REFLECTION.

One day at the Merchant's while eating our dinner
We spied across the table a masculine sinner.
He twisted his face, and he winked with one eye
At a partner in mischief then sitting close by.

Such actions soon claimed our attention.
And of the affair my companion made mention
I turned to one creature and gave it a look,
The same at the other alternately took.

I gazed at them this way again and again,
Before I could realize that they were men:
Then gave a laugh which I could not suppress.
Now, I'll leave you the names of the creatures to guess.

But if in the future I ever should find
That they were on mischief or folly inclined,
I'll give you in rhyme the names of the two;
Be careful, male reader, one may have been you.

IF THE BOOT PINCHES CHANGE YOUR STYLE.

How can we look for friendship and truth
When false were the friends of our earliest youth
Once in my life I thought I'd a friend,
Alas! but to find him a foe in the end.

Yet was my friendship as pure as the snow,
Or sparkling waters that from the hills flow;
Without any malice, or thought of a sin,
The friendship was perfect I felt toward him.

While he with the consumate head of a man
Could feel not such friendship as womankind can,
And acted as if he thought me a fool
For thinking that sentiment, in life, the rule.

Perhaps he was right where men are concerned,
As friendship is ever by most of them spurned,
And nothing but passions, unholy and base,
In the minds of the wicked are given a place.

And if as a sister, friend, sweetheart, or wife,
You try to make better, or brighter a life,
The world looking on will readily censure,
And brand you a fool for making the venture.

And shout you are madly in love with the same,
Or else that his friendship has not been in vain.
Thus making to innocent suffer from scoffers
Whose own vile minds of the guilt were the authors

And with their abracadabra and oaths,
Double, yea tribple, humanity's woes,
And lower themselves from the height of a man
To a baser level than dumb brutes can.

By abusing the one grand power of speech
That betwixt man and brute should have formed a breach,
Making the former the rulers of nations,
Instead of the lowest of God's creations.

—S. R.

HURRAH FOR HARRISON.

The great campaign is over
And each noble voter stands
Once more on throne of victory
Holding banners in their hands,

And for a grand procession
They gathered in their might
And made the city hideous
With their cries of mad delight.

We sat and watched them passing
With lights of every shade,
A crowd of manly faces
By victory radiant made.

Fair Luna from the heavens
On them a blessing beamed
And hardly for our Harrison
The happy children screamed.

The men all sang in chorous,
The women kerchiefs waved
And showed their admiration
For the noble and the brave.

The very horses neighed and pranced
Beneath their trappings fine,
And from the rocks with iron hoof
Struck out bright sparks of fire.

As if to help the light to shine
Our whole republic round
From far Atlantic's sunny slope
To its most western bound,

The brave with voice unanimous
Proclaimed the voice of one
And shouted loud in ecstacy
Hurrah for Harrison!

ECHOES.

Long, long ago!
Strange how the deeps of Time retain—
How every fitful breeze will blow
Back echoes of an old refrain—
And still reverberate that stain
Long, long ago!

Long, long ago;
But ah, if it could be today—
Today, what then? Nay, love could go
Down no aisle save that olden way,
Where grief and pain—but honor lay—
Long, long ago!

—Martha Eileen Holihan.

AN OCEAN MYSTERY.

It had been a sort of brooding day since dawn; thick, heavy, oppressive, with a light breeze that was like steam for warmth and damp, and a very quiet surface of ocean. Not so much as the head of a cloud had shown anywhere; yet the sky was as dingy as the atmospheric thickness could make it, with the sun in the midst of it like a red hot warming pan and a wake under him in the thick and sluggish water that might have passed for drippings of blazing oil slowly settling. At sundown, when the shadows entered this weather, it fell pitch dark. No man aboard the ship that lay motionless in the heart of it ever remembered a deeper blackness. There could have been nothing in the most stooping and lowering of electric storms to fling a more ebony complexion upon the deep than the night air now held. The wind, too, died out when the evening came down, and the vessel that had been slowly rippling through it all day was brought to a dead stand, with scarce heave enough in her frame to put life into the up and down canvas.

The ship was a few degrees south of the equator, an old fashioned cargo vessel outward bound to an Australian port, with a purple faced old Poplar man for a commander. The round shanked chap, coming on deck after a brief spell below in company with a bottle of whisky, stood a minute or two in the companion way, staring blindly against the blackness, then after a little groped over to the mate, one side of whose figure was just visible as he stood between the binnacle and the wheel, by the sheen of the light there touching it. "Well, well," he exclaimed, sniffing up at the air as though he would smell what he was unable to see, "how is this to end, now, d'ye think, Mr. Jones? Glass stands high, too. A man might marry a negress in this night and not know her for a side of bacon, let alone the color. Gor' bless me, color! Why, you might make a hole in this darkness to lie down in."

He took a view of the compass card, heard what the mate had to say on the subject of the weather, and, after smoking a pipe, repaired below for a second dram, telling the mate that he would take forty winks on one of the cabin lockers, and that he was to beat once called if there came a change, no matter what form it might take. The mate watched the crimson faced old gentleman mix himself a "second mate's nip"—he was plain in view through the open skylight—and then the worthy skipper stretched his fat figure along a locker, and his snoring presently arose into the darkness with a sound like to the rushing of water up and down a beach of shingle.

The mate at the wheel nodded; there was scarce a stir in the tiller chains; no twitch of the spokes to hint to the fellow to keep his head up. Forward in the blackness the stillness was that of a coffin. In what corners the watch on deck had coiled their bodies away no man could have imagined. The mate paced the deck slowly, often coming to a stand at the rail, lost in wonder at the phenomenal stillness out upon the black shadow of the ocean. There was something soul subduing in a night of such darkness and stillness as this. It made one walk lightly, as though there were a listening spirit in the air to be vexed by the idle creak of a board. It was a time to speak only in whispers, as you'd notice when at long intervals the mate addressed the fellow who was at the wheel, sounding his inquiry but a little above his breath. This went on till about 11 o'clock, ship, ocean and sky blended yet into one impenetrable shadow, charged with the mighty pulseless pause, as though the night, with sucked in breath, hung motionless in expectation. "Hark! did you hear that?" cried the mate, suddenly whipping out shrill with the amazement that was in him. "Ay, sir," answered the man at the helm, in a brood awake voice; "there it is again." It was a sound of laughter out on the water off the starboard bow; whether human or not was scarcely to be guessed. The blackness, and then the great ocean solitude out of which it rang, would have put a wild unearthliness into it, even had it been melodious as a girl's laugh; but there was an edge in it that owed nothing to the mystery of the night—an indescribable animal like harshness, a semblance of human merriment, shocking by reason of its mirthlessness and a note running through it as of the mixed crying of the jackal and the hyena. "Smite me if it didn't sound like some swimming baboon a-hailing of us," cried the helmsman. "Swimming baboon in your eye," answered the mate; "some drowned man's ghost, more like, fooling round, maybe, in hope of being laid by a drink."

The laugh again sounded, a sort of unearthly carousing, hallooing, like the meaningless bawling of some drunken rascal staggering home in the small hours. "What the deuce is it?" said the mate. "Ain't that a winking of fire out there where the noise is, sir?" said the helmsman. The mate peered. "Ay, sure enough," said he; "what is it now? It looks like the sheen of phosphorus to the dipping of an oar. Listen!" They both bent their ears. The long, demoniacal, blood chilling laugh came floating off the water to the ship, and then a man cried out suddenly, in the blackness forward, "Here's some one hailing of us!" The mate put his head into the skylight and sang out to the skipper, who rolled off the locker and came on deck. By this time the watch, disturbed in their nap, had uncoiled themselves and were at the rail. Every man was invisible to his fellow, close together as the sailors hung, but the darkness did not hinder them from spanking, and their voices rose in a sort of grumble, hoarse with wonder, not unmixed with apprehension.

"What is it, Mr. Jones?" asked the captain. "There's some out on the water yonder, laughing," answered the mate; "listen, sir; now you have it." It could scarcely be any longer doubted that the sounds were uttered by a human being. It was a man's lunatic laughter, a senseless, howling counterfeit of mirth, and this time it was followed on by an articulate cry, though the fellow was too far off to be intelligible. "Why, yes; sure enough," cried the captain, "there's some one out there, but what the deuce is he finding to laugh at, and what's his craft? He raised his voice, "Anybody make out what that chap yonder's afloat in?" "He's heading for us," exclaimed one of the men, "his voice has grown as clear ag'in since first heard." "It'll be a boat, I allow," exclaimed another man; "fancy I heered the grind of an oar in thole pins just now, and there's a flash of water at times."

For some minutes there was a dead stillness, while the mate, taking the lamp out of the binnacle, held it steady over the rail. Indeed, it looked as though the sight of the lamp had silenced the fellow. There was nothing to be seen; stare as the men might, they could witness nothing distinguishable in the ink like void into which their gaze sank blindly, saving the occasional sparkling of fiery water to what was unquestionably the stealthy plying of an oar. Presently the old skipper roared out, "Boat, ahoy! what boat's that?" His voice was echoed in the motionless hidden canvas on high, but no answer was returned from the sea. There was another interval of dead stillness, with a faint sound now and again which suggested that the boat was being very softly and sneakingly sculled. Certainly the scintillation of the oar had vanished, and there was nothing to intimate the existence of the boat saving the sculling sound. "Confoundedly wonderful all this!" gasped the skipper, in a voice of intense excitement, puffing and blowing with the heat and with the amazement he was full of. As he said this a peal of mirthless laughter broke from the water, apparently within pistol shot of the ship's side. "Ha! ha! ha! Show a light there, ha! ha! ha! I'm Saint Anthony. Hurrah! boys, Saint Anthony in tow of a pig, by the living thunder. He's brought me a thousand leagues. Hurrah! hurrah! Ha! ha! ha!" The dreadful laugh died out. "There's only one way of dealing with this," cried the mate. He dived into the cabin, was absent a minute, and then returned with a port fire, which he exploded over the side. Out gushed the fountain of green flame, tinctu ring a broad area of the water with a frightful radiance, and flashing up within biscuit toss the shape of what was apparently a ship's quarter boat, black, with the tall, seemingly half n ked figure of a man erect on midship thwart with hands held high, in the posture of one who leaps as he falls with a shot in his heart. It was a picture not to be expressed in writing: the wild coloring of the port fire made an unimaginable vision of it; and then again there was the sudden ghastly brightening out of the cold sight from the black canvas in which it had lain buried. "St. Anthony, I tell ye, men! St. Anthony, ha, ha, ha!" cried the half nude creature, flourishing his arms as if in ecstacy at the sight of the green spout of flame. "Ho! 'tis a good thing to be a saint, though! Alone, alone—alone, alone! I'm the sovereign of the seas, and St. Anthony, too. Hurrah, boys. Ha! ha! ha!" The port fire went out, and the blackness rolled down again dark upon the dazzle in the men's eyes. "A mad sailor, sir," cried the mate, "some shipwrecked survivor with his brain gone. Great God! how horrible." "Lord, if one could but see!" exclaimed the captain; "we must have him aboard, though. Aft here, some of you; get a boat lowered and secure that poor fellow." "Ha! ha! ha!" sounded out of the darkness. "I'm monarch of the night, I tell ye. I'm St. Anthony, too, my livelies. Hurrah! Nor'-nor'west: that's the course, boys. Ha! ha! ha!" and the flash of water, accompanied by a grinding sound, intimated that the unhappy creature was sculling away from the ship. The sailors came tumbling aft, and despite the blackness, in a few minutes a boat was in the water with four men in her, and the chief mate in the stern sheets groping to hang the rudder. "Shove off—gi'e way!" At the same moment a large globular lantern was run aloft by the signal halyards to the mizen peak, and other lights held along the ship's side. The moment the water was flashed up by the four oars of the men the madman, if such indeed he was, broke into a long mocking laugh, and then fell silent whilst he sculled with might and main. His fifty fathoms' start would give him but a poor chance against four men. The boat swept up to him rapidly, guided by the sparkle of the water about his oar, but on a sudden this brilliance vanished; they could hear the oar flung furiously down, followed by a derisive yell that came to the pursuers' ears with the shock and fear of a shriek of anguish, and by the splash of the fellow's body as he flung himself overboard. "Vast rowing!" The boat floated to the other, the five men holding their breath whilst they sent their glances over the black profound in search of a single scintillation to indicate the whereabouts of the man drowning or swimming, but no break of night was anywhere visible. They softly rowed here and there, and then, catching hold of the boat, they towed her to the ship's side, and made her fast for examination by daybreak. Then by the morning's light the captain and mate examined her, and found her an ordinary ship's boat, with the name Martha Will iams painted in small black letters on her stern; a Scotch cap, a sailor's shirt and jacket, a belt and sheath knife were found in her; also an empty breaker, dry and resonant with the heat, and the half of a ship's biscuit, moldy and vermin eaten. It was afterwards ascertained that the Martha Williams was a missing ship long posted, and supposed to have foundered on a voyage to the Thames from Callao.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The Literature of Today.

More and more, in the quicker action of mind upon mind, the magazine and the newspaper are coming to absorb the utterances of those who have something to say. Nobody can wait to put his thought into a book before he speaks it to the world, and the result is that many books in the first instance are given to the public under the spur of impersonal journalism or through the medium of the great reviews. The hardship of this tendency is felt in the production of the best literature. Nobody can today follow the Horatian maxim and keep his manuscript long enough for it leaves to grow yellow in his drawer. Every cap must strike while the iron is hot, and the use of the file early and late, which gave the Greek literature its exquisite finish, is sadly lacking in the rough and ready literature of the day.

The tendency of all writing in our own time is to the hasts and waste that are the curse of good style. Even to excellent a writer as Mr. Arnold, whose earlier work was as fine as that of "Amiel's Journal," in the hurry of his efforts to catch the next number of the magazine, neglected to put the finishing touches to his essays, and was caught in the same toils that have marred the work of most of his contemporaries. And yet the same rules hold good today that held with Thucydides and Horace, the rules that distinguish good work from poor, good thought from thought imperfectly set in words. The danger of modern letters is that literature shall be like food that is half cooked.—New York Times.

Concerning Burials at Sea.

The Funeral Directors' association, whose members are among the undertakers of the United States and Canada, in their recent annual convention at Baltimore received a report from a committee on burials of those who die at sea, and Undertaker Laube, on the committee, in the discussion that followed said: "I want to call especial attention of the press to this. Steamship companies refuse to bring corpses to home ports for proper burial, alleging superstition of sailors as an objection. Against tearful protest of poor people their dead have been cast into the sea, but who ever heard of this disposition of the rich and prominent? At Baltimore, New York and Philadelphia steamship companies have refused to listen to us, and we want the common people to know bodies can be safely brought home."—New York Sun.

Tolstoi, the Russian Novelist.

According to a communication in the Russian Courier from a certain Mr. Schendal, who visited Count Tolstoi at his estate of Jasnaia Poulnana, the novelist is at present occupied in building an incombustible "isha" (cottage) in place of one burned down. The isha is small, but commodious. The roof is to be thatched straw. Count Tolstoi and Paul Ivanovitch were kneading clay in a large tub, into which a peasant woman was shoveling it. The count's daughter was spinning string for binding the straw. All the party went in turns to get water from a well situated in an adjacent ravine. Every one was busy at work, and apparently very happy.—Chicago Herald.

Marriage as a Success.

While discussing the question "Is Marriage a Failure?" why doesn't some one solicit the opinion of Muley Hassan, sultan of Morocco? His testimony should be worth considerable. He has 3,500 wives, and none of them go out washing or take in plain sewing, he is obliged to support them all. And the man who is willing to pay the bills of 3,500 wives must regard marriage as a success.—Norristown Herald.

Take It Easy in Age.

One's ago should be tranquil, as one's childhood should be playful; hard work at either extremity of human existence seems to me out of place; the morning and the evening should be alike cool and peaceful; at midday the sun may burn and men may labor under it.—Dr. T. Arnold.

THE FREIGHT BRAKEMAN.

DISAGREEABLE FEATURES OF HIS WORK IN STORMY WEATHER.

The Difficulties of Handling a Train on Steep Grades—Twenty Degrees Below Zero—Braking in a Storm of Rain, Sleet or Snow.

The disagreeable features of a freight brakeman's life are chiefly those depending upon the weather. If he could perform his duties in southern California or Florida in winter, and in the northern States in summer, his lot would ordinarily be a happy one, though the annoyance of tramps is almost universal in mild climates, and in many cases takes the shape of positive danger. These vagabonds persist in riding on or in the cars, while the faithful trainman must, according to his instructions, keep them off. In some sections of the country they will board a train in gangs of a dozen, armed with pistols, and dictate where the train shall carry them.

The hardships of cold and stormy weather are serious, both because of the test of endurance involved and the added difficulties in handling a train. The Westinghouse automatic air brake, which has served so admirably on passenger trains for the last fifteen years, has only recently been adapted and cheapened so as to make it available for long freight trains, but it is now so perfected that in a few years the brakeman who now has to ride on the outside of cars in a freezing condition for an hour at a time will be privileged to sit comfortably in his caboose while the speed of the train is governed by the engineer through the instantaneous action of the air brake. On the steep roads of the Rocky mountains, and a few other lines, this brake is already in use.

"BRAKING BY HAND."

But "brakiug by hand" is still the rule. In running on ascending grades or at slow speeds the brakesmen can ride under cover, but in descending grades, or on levels when the speed is high, they must be on the tops of the cars ready to instantly apply the brakes, for the reason that there are generally only three or four men to a long train weighing from 500 to 1,000 tons, whose momentum cannot be arrested very quickly. In descending steep grades only the most constant and skilful care prevents the train from rushing at breakneck speed to the foot of the incline, or to a curve, where it would be precipitated over an embankment and crushed to splinters.

As soon as the whole train has got beyond the summit, and the speed is reduced to a proper rate by the application of the brakes on, say, one-third or one-half the cars, it will perhaps be found that one or two brakes too many have been put on, and that the train is running too slowly. Some of them must then be loosened. Or perhaps some are set so tightly that the friction heats the wheels unduly or causes them to slide along the track instead of rolling; then those brakes must be released and some on other cars applied instead; and all this must be done (sometimes for an hour) when the temperature is 20 degs. below zero, or the wind is blowing a gale, just as under more favorable circumstances.

AN UNPLEASANT SITUATION.

A train moving at twenty miles an hour against a wind with a velocity of thirty miles increases the latter to fifty, so far as the brakeman is concerned; and if rain or sleet is falling the force of it on his hands and face is very severe. If we add to this the danger attendant upon stepping from one car to another over a gap of twenty-seven to thirty inches in a dark night, when the cars are constantly moving up and down on their springs and are swaying to one side or the other every few seconds, we get some idea of, though we cannot realize, the sensations that must at such times fill the minds of the men whose pleasant berth seems so enjoyable on a mild summer's day.

And this is not an overdrawn picture or the worst that might be given; for rain and snow combined often coat the roofs of cars so completely and solidly that they are worse than the smoothest skating pond, and moving upon them is attended with danger at every step. Jumping—it cannot be called walking—from one car to another is in such cases positively reckless. The brake apparatus will in a snow storm be coated with ice so rapidly that vigorous action is required to keep it in working condition. Even a wind alone, in dry weather, sometimes compels the men to crawl from one car to another, grasping such projections as they may. The brakeman who forgets to take his rubber coat and overalls sometimes suffers severely from sudden changes of temperature. In spring or fall a lively shower will be encountered in a sheltered valley and the clothing will be completely drenched, and then within perhaps half an hour the ascent of a few hundred feet brings the train into an atmosphere a few degrees below the freezing point, so that with the aid of the wind, fanned by the speed of the train, the clothes are very soon frozen stiff.—B. B. Adams, Jr., in Scribner's Magazine.

Fondlings and Their Parents.

An orphan cannot be committed without something being known of its parents or their circumstances, and without formal papers of transfer. This routine exposes many frauds and leads managers to reject thousands of applicants for admission. Managers like to boast of the cases they have rejected. With foundlings, nothing of the sort occurs. The girl whose yieldings to temptation have made her a mother, be she in high life or in low, the intemperate who prefer to use their means for drink to rearing their own offspring, the society people who have boasted that there will be no children in their families—one and all—have but to leave their offspring as naked as little Moses was when deposited at the Nile, either in a vacant lot or upon some hanrly door step. Under cover of darkness all is secret. Either a policeman, or the irate citizen whose door step has been invaded, quickly and safely transfers the waif to an asylum. The reminders of sin and folly, as well as the burdens of the parents, have thus been put far away.

Were society organized to encourage this very business, it were impossible to arrange it more satisfactorily. But eternal shame should rest upon the weak minded, benevolent people who by their ill advised altruism cultivate such degradation in society. One-tenth of the money spent in detecting and punishing these parents for their unnatural crimes would teach society the needed lesson. More palus than we take to catch a murderer should be spent upon detecting these criminals.—Charles W. Smiley in Popular Science Monthly.

A Trick of the Trade.

I sell a shoe that costs me $1 at the original price, and use it as a "leader." Then I mark my $1.25 shoes at $1.50, the $2 at $2.50, the $2.25 at $4 and the $2.60 goods at $5. See? A customer wants to look at my low priced grades; I show them, and bring out all my principal lines. Likely as not I persuade him or her to pay $3, and this secures me a fair profit. No, I don't sell many at $1, and even if I did, the less economical buyers make it up to me by giving me a handsome profit on the better shoes.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

A Strange Religious Penance.

While I was in San Salvador I saw a strange sight in the street one feast day. A man was undergoing penance by crawling from one church to another. Both churches were in the same street, and the distance between them was about half a mile.

The man had on a white suit of light underclothing and a white cap was drawn down over his face. He crawled—not on his hands and knees—no; those who imposed the penance knew a trick worth two of that—he crawled on his elbows and knees, and in the middle of the street over the irregularly laid jagged stones.

One or two women stayed with the man and spread pieces of cloth to soften somewhat the hardness of the road. What was his sin I did not learn.—Overland Monthly.

New York's High Priced Land.

The possibilities of usefulness to society inherent in land are dependent for development on the labors of individuals or of corporations. The greater the expenditure of labor the higher is the estimate of value. This is the rule of civilization. Land has reached its highest price on this side the Atlantic in the lower wards of New York. When the Drexel building, at the southeast corner of Wall and Broad streets, was erected, the price per square foot of the ground whereon it stands was the highest paid up to that time. When, in 1882, William H. Vanderbilt gave $40 per square foot for the lots on Fifth avenue, Fifty-second and Fifty-third streets, on which the family mansions stand, that was the highest price ever paid for residential purposes. For store sites on Fifth avenue $65 per square foot was paid in March, 1886. D. O. Mills paid $85 per square foot for the area occupied by his magnificent building on Broad street, the Astors $100 per square foot for Nos. 8 and 10 Broadway, and the Williamsburg Fire Insurance company $115 per square foot for the site of their equally impressive structure on the northeast corner of Liberty street and Broodway.

In the neighborhood of the old Jumel estate prices rose from 75 to 100 per cent. between 1882 and March, 1886. The ceaseless and costly industry of the commonwealth will undoubtedly raise prices to higher figures and entail heavier taxes upon owners. These will continue to profit by the unearned increment of value; to sell, mortgage, donate and bequeath as usual; and how this can or ought to be otherwise, under the ordinary operation of demand and supply, and of the natural desire of possessors to make the best possible use of their own property, is a question that the vast majority will not pause to consider.—Richard Wheatley in Harper's Magazine.

Why Organs Are Discordant.

A well known organist in Brooklyn says that he is sometimes blamed for using bad combinations when the fault lies wholly in the atmosphere. Organ pipes are affected by cold and heat, and this organist says that he has known the pitch of a certain stop to alter three-fourths of a tone in a few hours. "Often," he says, "on Saturday night or early on Sunday morning when I rehearse I find the instrument in perfect tune, but as soon as the furnaces are stoked up and a big audience assembles the thermometer rises and the pitch of some of my pipes rises with it. Commonly, the organ builder allows for this, and as the reeds seldom change he pitches them a trifle high in order to allow for atmospheric sharping of the other stops; but how if the temperature is low and the other stops don't change? Then, you see, you've got a discord and you have to shut off the reeds altogether.

"Dampness and other changes affect organs, too, and it is distressing when you are playing smoothly to have one of the notes 'cipher.' It brings you up with a round turn and you have to stop and disengage the obstinate key. Organ playing is not all play. I've seen Dudley Buck, while directing a performance in Steinway hall, writhe when the organ struck in and signal to the organist to stop playing, for the heat created by the audience and the gaslight had thrown some of the pipes entirely off and the result was a horrible discord."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Well Known Author's Success.

The success of a well known author is attributed to the fact "that he who reads feels that the hero is but a slight idealization of himself, the heroine such as every girl expects or believes herself to be." What is this but the understanding of human nature, upon which all true literary success depends?—Chicago Herald.

THE DAY IN THE CITY.

The county commissioners met this afternoon.

A small dwelling house near Fourth street and Tenth avenue west was burned last night.

The cold wave flag, predicting a drop in temperature of 15 to 20 degrees, was hoisted this morning.

Messrs. Armstrong, Thomas and Louden are made a committee to look after the lahpening visitors this evening.

East Superior street from Fourth to Eighth avenue is becoming a great resort for Duluthians with fast trotters.

There are now on hand in Duluth 7,088 barrels of flour, of which all but 300 barrels are in the sheds of the Eastern Road.

No more wind signals will be shown at this signal office until spring. The cold wave flag may be expected any day, however.

The daily weather report will hereafter be found at the head of the fourth page in the advertisement of the Duluth Book & Paper company.

All the products of the Duluth roller mill of E. D. Church & Co. is shipped east for sale and the mill finds an easy sale of all it can turn out.

The action of the fire commissioners in advocating the removal of the partly destroyed buildings on West Superior street is highly commended.

J. H. Nordby, the little Norwegian contractor, is the best man for any kind of carpenter work. Fine antique sideboards made to order. 627 East Second street.

The mercury today reached, as its minimum, 32 degrees above, early this morning. All day it has been bright and warm with a northerly breeze, and a clear sky—Today is December 4th.

The Duluth Telephone company is busy putting up its instruments and wires in Superior and in a few days will have the work completed. A central office at West Superior is yet to be locatad.

A meeting of the Republican club was held last night. A committee was chosen to draw up a plan for permanent organization. The club will become for the time being more of a social organization.

Realty transfers yesterday reflected the rapid improvement in the condition of realty affairs. They numbered 21, and aggregated $71,885. A large number of the sales made at present do not appear in the filings, they being made on contracts.

Thirty-two dwellings, ranging in cost from $1,500 to $4,000 have been built in New London this year. Next spring will see the commencement of work on the new $40,000 hotel of the Land company and a great many fine dwellings. The goverment hatchery begins operation about January first.

Miss Oliver, teacher of elocution in Albert Lea academy will give a reading at the Presbyterian church this evening at 7:30. Miss Oliver is spoken of very highly, and lovers of elocution will find it a rare treat. The reading is to be given for the benefit of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor.

Owing to the non-arrival of a piece of machinery connected with the tracklaying machine, work was not begun at Cloquet yesterday in laying track. It is expected that it will be commenced today without fail, and this afternoon there will be fully a mile ironed. The work will be done by machinery.

The new electric company did not start yesterday as was announced in the Tribune, but will probably be ready for business tonight or in a day or two. A new fifty horse power high speed engine has been put in and a 500 light United States incandescent dynamo is ready for business. A new smoke stack is being raised today.

At the rock cut at Sixth avenue east and First street a mass of rotten rock was struck extending up from the bottom of the cut 10 or 15 feet or nearly half the height of the cut. This is taken out by pick and shovel and the drill and dynamite is used but seldom. Part of this deposit was covered by solid rock while part on which the workmen are now busy, is composed of large blocks seamed and broken, many of which can be pried off with a lever. The formation of these rocks is very peculiar and unusual the rotten stone being entirely different from that found broken up in fragments in other portions of the city.

There will be a session of the Duluth & Winnipeg Railroad company next week Wednesday to transact important business. It is probable that the question of continuing the work of grading during the winter will be settled at the meeting. Owing to the fact that for many miles from the present end of grade the work is very light, averaging but a few feet fill, and that it is largely through swamps, which will be frozen solid and render winter work difficult and expensive, it is not considered probable that any grading will be done until spring. During the winter the right of way cutting will be pushed rapidly.

HOW WE GROW!

Some Totals That Will be Shown by the Improvement Record of 1888.

A MILLION DOLLARS OVER LAST YEAR.

A Grand Total of $5,125,000 Spent in all Classes of Permanent Improvements.

While the record of buildings and other permanent improvements in Duluth in 1888 is not yet fully completed, the canvass made by the HERALD shows a most gratifying increase over a year ago. 'Tis true that the past year has been one of unusual difficulties, among them the tariff excitement and the presidential election, both of which bore hard on the Northwest and Duluth. There is probably no section of the country more interested in tariff laws and a proper protection to iron and steel industries than Duluth and the agitation regarding this might well, and did, have its effect on the material advancement of the city. Duluthians can therefore point with an unusual feeling of pride to the record of the year, of which the following is an approximation. The full and detailed record will appear later.

In 1887 the buildings alone of the city cost $2,901,000 and numbered 775, besides alterations; this year they will cost $3,150,000 and number nearly 1100, including, of course, in this report, the suburbs of New London and West Duluth, as last year. In 1887 municipal improvements made a total of $542,000, while this season they will be, should good weather last three weeks longer, $900,000. Last year the railroads, the Gas & Water company, the Electric Light company and the Street Car company spent an aggregate total of $770,000, while the present year these same organizations, the railroads including the work of the Eastern and Terminal, the electric light business including two companies, and other enterprises properly coming under this list, will make a total less by $30,000 than 1887, or $740,000; the greatest and in fact the only decrease in this list is the one item of railroads which have found it necessary to do but half as much as last year. In manufacturing and kindred industries, however, is the most gratifying increase of all. Springing from but a few thousand dollars in 1887, the total of buildings erected for manufacturing purposes in 1888, will foot up a total of $220,000 already spent, and three times as much more in progress for next year's expenditures for completing building and putting in machinery. The totals as given above aggregate for 1887 $4,294,000, for 1888 $5,010,000. There are also a number of smaller industries, such as the Duluth Telephone company whose expenditures in the year have been very large, the various stone quarries for improvements, dock and school buildings part of which are not above enumerated, which will swell the grand total to fully $5,125,000.

It is needless to add that the outlook for 1889 is for a great increase on even this enormous total.

PATIENCE EXHAUSTED.

The Judges in the Parnell Comulsion Becoming Disgusted.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—New rumors affecting the Parnell-Times commission are obtaining currency almost every other day. The latest is—and it comes from a source entitled to credence, that the judges composing the commission have about tired of the endless array of stale facts that the Times has presented concerning local outrages and they are seriously considering the desirability of suspending the investigation until communication can be had with the government. One of the judges remarked in court the other day that hardly a scrap of evidence had so far been presented that had not previously appeared in one form or another in the public press and that at the present rate the enquiry might last for years. Justice Hannen, too, is decidedly disgruntled and disgusted over the prospect and hence the rumor already referred to is regarded as hitting very close to the mark. It is conceded that so far the proceedings have been decidedly favorable to the Parnellites and were it not for the immense expense involved the latter would be glad to see the proceedings continued indefinitely on the ground that every day's evidence would add to their vindication. They are considerably reassured, however, by private dispatches from the United States which give assurance that ample funds will be forthcoming whenever needed.

HENRY GEORGE TALKS.

He is the Central Figure in a London Land Meeting.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Henry George was the principal speaker today at the land reform meeting held in the Tabernacle, and was accorded an enthusiastic reception. Later he attended a reception given by the Rev. Joseph Parker. Yesterday he was present at two conferences upon the same subject. Tomorrow he is booked for another gathering, and on Saturday, pretty well worn out with the labors of the past ten days, he will sail for the United States. He has declined the offer of a farewell banquet which was tendered him by a number of his influential admirers, and has manifested a disinclination to be lionized ever since his arrival.

Miners and Knights.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6.—Whether or not the miners shall part company with the Knights of Labor is the important question to be settled at today's session of the Miners National Federation. The states represented in the gathering are Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Virginia and Alabama. The question comes up in the form of a proposition to consolidate the Federation with Miners District Assembly 135 of the Knights. This has been under discussion for two years and if, as is likely, it is defeated, the probabilitee are that a new organization will be created. This will absorb the existing ones and consequently separate the miners from the Knights. Another important matter to be considered is the yearly scale which goes into existance next February.

The Parnell Fight.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Upon the reassembling of the Parnell commission today, Patrick Molloy, who had been arrested at Dublin for refusing to obey a subpœna calling upon him to give evidence, was brought before the justices, who committed him to prison until further orders. Justice Hanner intimated that the commission proposed to take Molloy's evidence tomorrow.

CARELESS EXPLODING.

CARELESS HANDLING OF BLASTING POWDER AND DYNAMITE CAUSES MORE ACCIDENTS.

As long as dynamite and other explosive compounds are used in and about Duluth explosions resulting from ignorance of the nature of the stuff or from arrant carelessness will be cure to occur with considerable regularity. Only a few days ago a foreman of blasting work on East First street was killed by fooling with burning dynamite cartridges, and the memory of Duluthians will call up dozens of accidents more or less fatal in the past year or two. In all, no less than ten men have met with their death here in twelve months.

Yesterday a blast on East First street threw a 2-ton fragment of rock into the residence of John Monaghan, doing considerable damage to the dwelling, while this morning a more serious accident, by which two men may lose their lives, occurred at one of the camps on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, east of the city. There is a large grader's camp on the road at the crossing of the Omaha tracks, east of Superior, and considerable heavy work is being done near it. The report is that large pieces of rock from a premature or insufficiently covered blast were hurled through the air, and injured two workmen very severely, if not fatally. Both have limbs broken, and are otherwise mangled.

In view of all the accidents occuring and liable to occur to users of dynamite some provisions should be made by law for its more careful use. A law or ordinance is needed that will prevent its use by ignorant persons and will hold foremen and contractors responsible for loss of life or injury to person or property that may result from explosions. Such an ordinance, is urgently demanded in Duluth where the danger from the careless use of dynamite is ever present, and to such an ordinance should be coupled a clause rigidly restricting the storing of explosives. There are stored in the central business portion of Duluth explosives enough to blow the whole city to kingdom come and the present ordinance against this does not seem strong enough to stop it.

PERSONAL MENTION.

J. F. Baars, jr., left this morning for the east.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Markell and Miss Markell left today for a brief visit in New York.

R. Stratton, a well known Minneapolitan, and largely interested in Duluth realty is in the city.

Land Attorney Chew left today for Washington, his old home, where he will spend the holidays.

Manager E. P. Emerson, late of the Ryan hotel of St. Paul, and now manager of a leading Missouri hostelry, is in Duluth today visiting friends.

P. A. Rockwell, of the Eastern Minnesota, is in the city on business. He looks for a general rate war, and does not believe the recent reports of a patched-up peace.

Dr. C. F. McComb returned this morning from Stillwater. The doctor has been severely ill for many weeks with typhoid fever at his old home in Stillwater and has, by virtue of good nursing and a strong constitution, pulled through. His many Duluth friends will welcome him home.

Judge J. K. Magie has returned to Duluth after an absence of nearly a year. The judge has been an active factor in the recent campaign, having been engaged six months in speaking in New York for the Republican cause. He has the distinction of having made more speeches in the campaign than any other man in the United States, having delivered over 150, and is a member of the Spellbinders association. His last address was made in Brooklyn, in company with Mr. Blaine, both men speaking to the same audience. The judge is a candidate for the governorship of Alaska, and his many friends will hope to see him get the place, as he certainly deserves it.

SCRAPS OF SPORT.

Paddy McDonald will not fight Billy Wilson. Paddy is a believer in the color line.

It is said that the absorption of the American Jockey club by the New York Jockey club will soon be effected.

Jack Fallon, of New York, and Tom Lees, of Australia, fought 10 rounds with three-ounce gloves in New York. The fight was awarded to Fallon.

The board of appeals of the American Trotting association is in session at Detroit. W. R. Merriam, representing Minnesota, is president of the association.

Ike Weir, the "Belfast Spider," fought Tommy Danforth, of Boston, Tuesday night. Weir was awarded the fight in the eighth round, but the judges supplemented their decision with the remark that the fight, owing to Weir's antics, was the most unsatisfactory ever fought in the club room.

Charles Mitchell will not be in trim to fight for some time to come. During the fight with Sullivan the third and fourth knuckles of his left hand were knocked out of place and Tuesday he was forced to undergo an operation which loosened up the tissues of the hand. He will remain at Atlantic City, N. S., until his hand is well.

WEST DULUTH.

Jay W. Anderson, W. H. Langdon, H. A. Davis and John Agnew were visitors at West Duluth yesterday afternoon.

Chas. T. Abbott's excursion will reach here tomorrow forenoon at 11:45. A committee of citizens will meet them at the depot.

The labuoming guests, numbering sixty, and about forty Duluth men visited this thriving town yesterday afternoon. They were met at the depot by a committee of West Duluth business men, and were then shown the car works and the steel plant. Everyone of the visitors were enthusiastic over the prospects of the new Pittsburg. The party then left at three o'clock for Duluth.

D. A. Duncan's twelve new houses are nearly completed. They will be ready for occupancy next week.

Mr. Gross has charge of the building of the gas house and brick conductors for the car company.

Several new buildings are to be built in the spring on Fourth avenue west.

Fourth avenue west bridges are all completed and their 100 foot street is ready for travel.

Most complexion powders have a vulgar glare, but Pozzoni's is a true beautifier, whose effects are lasting.

Don't forget the change in time of departure of morning trains over the "Omaha line," on and after Sunday Dec. 9th. Day trains will leave at 10:30 a. m.

MEXICO KICKS.

The Mexican Postal Authorities Vigorously Resent Imputations of Inefficiency.

THEY GET BACK AT THEIR NEIGHBOR

In a Few Remarks in an Official Newspaper--Chicago's Postoffice Remembered.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 6.—The Boletin, newspaper, the organ of the postal authorities of Mexico, brings serious charges against the American postal authorities, accusing them of great negligence and carelessness in sending mails on long routes, and especially on those routes leading to interior places in Mexico. The Bulletin claims that the recent troubles with the delivery of American mails in Mexico have been owing entirely to this carelessness, and intimates rather strongly that the administration that is unable to cope with postal robbers in the most traveled routes of its own country, and with inefficient services in one of the greatest of American cities, should not lay at the door of an adjoining nation a fault that it is all its own. The article in question is evidently the emanation of authority in the Mexican government.

A CONTINENTAL ACCIDENT.

A Serious Railway Accident in the South of France--No Particulars.

PARIS, Dec. 6.—An accident has occurred on the railway between Marseilles and Toulon. It is believed that the accident was attended by very serious results, and that a number of persons were killed, among them several Americans. No particulars can yet be learned of the railway bureau.

GETS THE ATCHISON.

A Report that Jay Gould has Secured a Plum in the Santa Fe Road.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—The rumor is current on the board of trade that Jay Gould has secured a controlling interest in the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, which has until now been owned almost entirely by Boston capital.

Iowa Will Have a Place.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Despite the denials and counter denials that have been made there are good grounds for the statement that a cabinet portfolio has been offered to Senator Allison, of Iowa. This information comes from a close friend of the Iowa senator, who adds that from what he knows he thinks it hardly possible that the senator would accept. The same gentleman is responsible for the statement that it is the earnest desire of General Harrison that Iowa should be represented among his advisers and that next to Senator Allison he looked with extreme favor upon J. F. Clarkson, of Des Moines, whom he regards as a representative leader in western republicanism. It is believed here that Clarkson will be in the cabinet.

The Telegraph in Colombia.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Some time ago the Columbia government advertised for tenders for the construction of an extensive telegraph system in that republic. The period for submitting proposals expired last night and inquiry today at the office of the Colombian consul developed the fact that some thirty tenders had been received. They will be first examined by the consul and sent to the home government with his recommendations.

The Inevitable Sick Man.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Mr. Mills, chairman of the house committee on Ways and Means, will probably be compelled to leave his desk for a few days and seek recreation at some Virginia on North Carolina health resort. He returned to Washington apparently considerably improved in health, but the great strain of the tariff debate supplemented by his campaign work has rendered him peculiarly susceptible to the bad atmosphere of the capital, and today he feels far from well.

ON 'CHANGE.

A MARKET MORE THAN USUALLY DULL AND INACTIVE—TRADING ALMOST LIFELESS.

What little trading there has been today has been almost entirely in May wheat which opened ¼c off from yesterday's closing prices, ruled slow and irregular, advancing ¼c on the early trading, followed by a drop of ¼c. About noon business was resumed, by small transactions at ¾c above the last deals, with last trading at a break of ½c so that the close was easy at the opening figures. Cash wheat was very dull and neglected, just at the close sales were reported of No. 1 hard at 122. No. 2 northern at 98c. Rejected at 61c. December closed nominally at 124 without trading.

May opened at 128¾, followed by sales at 128¾ from which point it dropped to 128, it sold at 128¾ with 129 bid, and no sellers for some considerable time. Chicago in the meantime commenced breaking and we followed suit, letting down to 128¾, where we closed.

CURB NOTES.

"The estimation of wheat receipts in Minneapolis is peculiar," said a well-informed broker yesterday. "The cars are shunted hither and yon, and often counted twice over. Cars reported on the side tracks are a variable quantity that is rarely if ever reckoned properly."

From Minneapolis came a goodly grist of wheat news. Inquiry among elevator men and millers developed the fact that country reserves were about 6,000,000 bushels, as against 20,000,000 bushels a year ago, and that half of the reserve was of poor quality. About 600 cars were rejected, out of 900 received, as being away below contract grades.

The report that three boat-loads of wheat, oats and flour had been loaded at San Francisco for Australian points and one boat load taken for Callino, was used by the bulls with good effect. Considering the fact that Australia does not harvest her crop until January, and that its present condition is unknown, there seems to be nothing particularly sensational in the taking of breadstuffs to supply the present demand. But with bull sentiment combined with even momentary bull news, the markets are bound to become affected, so the Australian story received due consideration.

The board passed resolutions this morning on the death of H. B. Smizer, deploring the death of a bright young member and business man and extending to his friends their sympathy.

SAME OLD TACTICS.

Governor of Illinois Threatened by Anarchists Because of Hronek's Conviction.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 6—Since the conviction of Hronek, the Chicago anarchist, each mail at the capital is bringing threatening letters to the governor of a character similar to those received during the time the petition for the lives of Spies, Lingg, and other anarchists were pending before his excellency. The letters not only come from Chicago, but from cities in the east, and they are anonymous. The governor is not in the least alarmed by the receipt of the letters.

IGNORE THE LAW.

A Dakota Grand Jury Refuses to Find Indictments against Saloon-keepers.

SIOUX CITY, Dec. 6.—The Grand jury which has been in session two weeks considering 150 complaints against Sioux Falls saloonkeepers for violation of the local option liquor law during the past summer, came into court to be discharged last evening, reporting no indictments against saloon men. Judge Garland, after recovering from his amazement, remarked:

"And so you have ignored all these cases, Mr. Clerk, you will bind over all defendants in these cases to the next grand jury."

Oil for Fuel.

FINDLAY, Ohio, Dec. 6.—Yesterday an engine on the Toledo, Columbus & Southern railroad drew a passenger train from Toledo to this city on fuel furnished by crude petroleum. The trial was such a success that President Brown announces that he will have all his engines arranged for the use of oil and do away with coal.

To be Knocked in the Head.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 6.—The extensive preparations being made for the reception of Mrs. Lucy E. Parsons on her return to this city from her trip abroad, are very likely to be knocked in the head by the police.

Mrs. Gould Losing.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Dr. Baldwin stated this morning that there was no decided change in the condition of Mrs. Jay Gould. She is gradually losing ground.

Will Visit South America.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Lord Randolph Churchill will in a short time start on a visit to South America.

THE DAY IN THE CITY.

The Northern Pacific short line put on a fine new coach today.

Clan Stewart holds a special and important session this evening.

The West Duluth Land company will occupy the office in the Opera house lately vacated by Myers Bros.

The government will buy 300 telegraph poles here for use on its own military telegraph lines in Montana and Dakota.

At the municipal court this morning the civil case of Antony Gish vs. T. M. Erickson for the recovery of money claimed by Gish, has been on trial all day.

It is reported at police headquarters that a drowning accident happened this afternoon at Superior. No particulars could be learned at the time of going to press with this edition.

Gate City lodge, K. of P., elected the following officers at its annual meeting last night: C. R. Normandy, P. C.; T. J. Owens, C. C.; C. C. Tear, V. C.; W. H. Graves, P.; H. S. Moody, K. of R and S.; J. C. Sinclair, Assistant; Brewer Mattocks, Jr., M. of F.; F. W. Winship, M. at A.; W. W. Sanford, trustee.

The Duluth Presbytery will be organized at the First Presbyterian church at 7.30 o'clock tonight. Rev. Dr. Edwards, of St. Paul, preaches the sermon. The new Presbytery includes Carlton, Aitkin, Crow Wing, Wadena and all the counties north of them, and the organization ceremonies will be as interesting as they are unusual. The public is invited to attend.

It is the opinion of many of those best informed regarding last night's fire that it was caused by the explosion of dust in the feed mill, being much the same cause that started the fearful mill destruction in Minneapolis some years ago and burned a mill in the east last month. Insurance men as well as the foreman of the stockyards incline to this behalf.

There are saw mills in the line of the St. Paul & Duluth road that produced this year 190,000,000 feet of lumber, and will turn out next year over 210,000,000 feet. The St. Paul & Duluth is rapidly becoming known as a lumber road. Several of the millers along its line are in the midst of bodies of Norway pine and hardwood particularly adapted for car building and to them the advent of the Minnesota Car company will be a decided advantage.

A telegram appeared in this paper yesterday announcing the arrest at Neenah, Wis., of a Tascott, in the person of C. E. Snell, and concluded with the naive statement that "he was thought to be the wrong man." The C. E. Snell who was arrested, is well known in Duluth, having frequently been here, and is owner of some considerable property here. He is a friend of A. M. Prudden who found by a telegram to Neenah that Snell had not been arrested and that the press dispatch was a mere hoax.

It is stated that E. Grumbach, the fur dealer, has left Duluth for pleasanter pastures. He has left a number of bills behind him, the largest of which is to C. Miesna and others of New York for seal furs, amounting to $3,200 to one and $1000 to the other. Chicago and St. Paul fur dealers are also claimed to be out a total of $500. In Duluth he owed perhaps $800. His business had been good, he having sold perhaps thirty expensive seal sacques this season, as well as other goods, but it was too much for his capital and his fondness for looking on the wine when it was red was too strong. Grumbach was at one time a sergeant of marines in the German navy, and was at the storming of Alexandria by the English in '81. He came to Duluth from Richmond Va. His sewers and clerk, of whom he employed about a dozen, are all in arrears for pay.

County road work for the year is about ended. A bridge is being built at Wakefield, twelve miles down the north shore and its completion will be the last work. A total of $50,000 has been spent in county roads this year.

A TASTE OF WAR.

British Troops Fired upon by Arab Forces at Saukim.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—A cable dispatch to the Herald dated Saukim Dec. 5, says the first detachment of British troops arrived here today on the steamship Hodida, bringing from Suez 21 officers and 185 men of Scottish borders and 100 mounted infantry, with horses. So soon as the troops assembled the Arabs opened a hot artillery fire from the trenches, mainly concentrated on the Twelfth Black battalion, but they were quickly silenced by a reply from the fort and the Racer. The probability is that a fight between the Arabs and troops under Gen. Grenfell, leader of the Egyptian army, will take place next week.

NO ANARCHISTS NEED APPLY.

Powderly Says the Knights of Labor are Being Weeded Out.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6.—General Master Workman Powderly, speaking last evening of the recent Indianapolis convention, said:

"We are weeding out the troublesome element. For sometime there has been an anarchistic element in the order. These fellows who are at war with our institutions feel perfectly happy when they get into the order and succeed in stirring up quarrels. We have no room for any kind of anarchists in this country."

THE AUSTRALIAN KNOCKED OUT

Gorman Whipped by Young Mitchell in Twenty-seven Rounds.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—Paddy Gorman, the Australian was knocked out in the twenty-seventh round by young Mitchell, of San Francisco, in a glove contest last night for the middle weight championship of the Pacific coast and an $800 trophy presented by the Golden Gate athletic club.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DULUTH.

Gen. Harrison has taken a day off, shouldered his gun, and gone out for a quiet hunt.

The advocate of Woman Suffrage will be pleased to learn that there are 3,000 postmistresses in the United States.

The people of Orange, N. J., confidently expect that Grover Cleveland will make that city his home and they are already talking of him as their candidate for United States senator.

Vice president Elect Morton is negotiating for a lease of the Corcoran mansion on Lafayette square, opposite the White House. If he succeeds in getting it he will be enabled to entertain his guests as lavishly as he desires.

Mrs. Grady of the Atlantic constitution says the negro vote is "the loosed cannon on the storm tossed ship," and the St. Louis Globe Democrat is unkind enough to add: "But the South seems to be able to control it with an ordinary shot gun."

The case of the people against the sugar trust has brought out a novel point of defense. They assert that sugar is not one of the necessities of life. They may make the court believe this, but it will hardly become a popular idea among school girls.

Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, who has been living at Holland Patent, N. Y., for some months, will soon go to the White house, where she will spend the winter, Mrs. Cleveland is anxious that her sister-in-law should be present at the social ceremonies which will close the present administration.

Mrs. Amelie Rives-Chanler has written to Mr. Collier, proprietor of Once a Week, which is soon to publish her story, "My Lady Tonque," that she does not wear "digitated boots," tie her hair under her chin and appear at theaters in large hats ornamented with lilac plumes. "Really," she exclaims, "if it were not all so idiotic, one might be tempted to get indignant."

Tascott the alleged murderer of Snell, the millionaire, is worth more now than ever, a reward of $50,000 having been offered for his apprehension. With the announcement of the increase of the reward comes the news of his arrest. But then he has been arrested so many times that another one more or less will not count. Tascott is like more actors we occasionally read about—he has completely lost his identity.

Sentiment favoring an extra session of congress, immediately after the inauguration of President Harrison, is growing in Washington among the Republican leaders. As Gen. Harrison is in the habit of keeping his mouth tightly closed on matters of state it is not known yet what he will do, but those of his advisers who are less careful regarding their public utterances are not slow to say that the necessity for an extra session is urgent.

Duluth demonstrated to her Ishpeming visitors what all of her former callers knew—that she is the best of hosts. Time and money expended in exhibiting Duluth and her advantages to those who come here to learn, is well invested. There is a larger district in the upper peninsula of Michigan, which is naturally tributary to this city, and its business men will deal here as soon as they discover that they can do better than they can in other markets.

Today the telegraph announces with more positiveness than ever that General Harrison has tendered Senator Allison a cabinet position and that the latter will not accept, much preferring to retain his position in the senate as chairman of the committee on appropriations. It also announces that Gen. Harrison is anxious to have an Iowa man among his advisers and he thinks well of Clarkson, the Des Moines newspaper man and political rustler.

Ignatius Donnelly is never quiet when anything in a political way is on the tapis. He will take an active part in the senatorial contest and would really like to be Senator Sabin's successor himself but, failing in that, he is very anxious to assist in defeating Mr. Washburne. He met a committee of the farmer's alliance yesterday in St. Paul and labored with them to the disadvantage of the Minneapolis candidate and he will continue to labor until the last.

In an interview Thomas S. Barry, the ex-Knight of Labor, says he is about to commence legal proceedings at Philadelphia against the Knights of Labor, through its officers, for defamation of character and alleged expulsion, and he placed the matter in the hands of his attorneys Saturday for criminal action in the United States district court, for violation of the postal laws in sending Barry a letter in which appeared, "Expelled—O. E. B." He says the headquarters of the new order of the Brotherhood of United Labor will be in East Saginaw. He has been promised the support of the New York Standard and Henry George, and 50,000 people are already enlisted in the new movement.

Canadian papers mourned over the defeat of Cleveland, and now they are mapping ont a course for the future of their favorite. The Toronto Globe in an editorial yesterday says:

"Mr. Cleveland is not doomed, as most retiring presidents have been, to be regarded as a man of the past. ont has a great future before him. He does not appear to share Senator Sherman's opinion that the scheme of unrestricted reciprocity between Canada and the United States is impracticable, but his expressions in respect to this matter are vague, and guarded. Once more Mr. Cleveland reiterates that the rejected fisheries treaty was just and honorable to the United States. With the Democratic party fully committed to that opinion, the Republicans can have little difficulty in entering upon a new fisheries convention practically identical with that which the senate has recklessly thrown out."

A SUCCESSFUL EVENT.

THE TRADES CARNIVAL OF THE FRIENDS IN COUNCIL BROUGHT TO A SUCCESSFUL CLOSE.

Last night closed the trades carnival of the Friends in Council. The affair was even more successful than on the first evening and was very largely attended. The march of the costumed ladies was given twice, and was much enjoyed by the 400 people present. A good supper served by the Ladies Aid society in the new dining room of the hotel was also enjoyed. The net proceeds of the entertainment, which go to swell the organ fund, a fund taken in hand by the ladies, were about $400.

The Event of the Year.

Tomorrow occurs Chas. T. Abbott's West Duluth excursion. This enterprise of Abbott's is characteristic of his old time vigor and enterprise. The excursion is free. The train will leave the Union depot at 10:30 tomorrow and every business man in the city is invited to take advantage of this opportunity and note the many improvements at West Duluth. The ladies also are invited to join the first excursion of this nature to occur in Duluth. After looking over the new car works, steel works and other improvements taking place in the Pittsburg of the Northwest a sumptuous repast will be given at Phillips hotel The importance this necks of woods is destined to take in our future prosperity is hardly realized. An investment there will count.

An Important Case.

Duluth's Lightning Contractor and Builder has Something to Say.

There is probably no contractor and builder in Duluth, and few in the northwest, better known than Mr. Robert C. Jordan. He has a reputation of putting up a building in less time than any other man in the business. He employs a large number of men, and has at present under his charge the construction of some fine blocks here. In conversation with the writer, Mr. Jordan remarked that he was feeling much better this spring than he has for years. He said that about six years ago he caught a bad cold, which settled in his head, and kept returning at intervals without apparent exposure. He found it bothered him most when he was figuring, of which he had considerable to do. Many times he would find himself unable to complete his figuring on a plan in the given time, and would have to return to the architect the plan without his tender, after having vainly striven for two or three days to do what he ordinarily could do in a few hours. Also had frontal headache with pain through the eyes, and a continual dropping of mucus from the head into the throat, which was very annoying. Had no appetite mornings and many times felt that life was burdensome.

He tried all the advertised remedies, but found the trouble getting worse all the time.

Seeing by the daily papers that Dr. Cosman was making a specialty of cases like his, he concluded to go and see him, and did so.

What was the result?

Why, after careful examination, the doctor told me that I was suffering from chronic catarrh and that he could cure me, but that it would take some time, probably three months, to effect a cure; but now, after less than two weeks' treatment, I feel like another man, sleep well, have an excellent appetite, and my head feels as clear as a bell. Headache is as all gone and can figure as well as ever. I am not bothered scarcely any by the dropping of mucus in my throat. I feel very thankful to think I went to see the doctor, and cannot express sufficient gratitude to him for his excellent treatment, and most heartily recommend Dr. Cosman and his mode of treatment to any suffering with catarrh.

Mr. Jordan can be found at No. 727 East Second street, where he will fully corroborate the above statement.

A BIG BLAZE

BURNED LAST NIGHT WITH HEAVY LOSS

About 5:30 last night fire caught in the great cattle barns of J. B. Sutphin, about 10 miles south of the city, and so fast grew the flames that before six the whole sky was crimson with the flames, and the glare of the flaming structure lit up the waters of the bay and lake, and brightened the gloomy hills back of the city. Until late at night the fire burned, and at midnight there was a smouldering ruin to mark what had so lately been a great enterprise.

There were nine buildings at the yards including three large barns, a slaughter house, an engine house, tool house, office, granary and hay barn. Some of them were small and several were connected; the total value of the buildings and contents, nearly all of which were destroyed, was large, on which there was a total insurance of $24,500, $23,000 being on the buildings and $1,500 on hay. The fire caught in the granary, supposably from spontaneous combustion, and burned so fiercely that the efforts of the few men engaged at the yards were of not the slightest avail. The flames communicated themselves quickly to the other buildings and all burned like tinder, being dry and with much inflammable material inside.

At the time of the fire there was little live stock about the place and as a consequence no cattle were burned. Several Omaha road cars were in and about the barns at the time but all but one was saved, an engine going to the spot as soon as the alarm had been given, and pulling out three cars from the neighborhood. Many of the tools belonging to the place were saved but a large hay press and the farming implements were burned. The buildings were put up four years ago by the Powder River Cattle company, of Montana, which designed making this its general point of shipment for its eastern trade. The company soon changed hands and its successor, the International Cattle company, sold to Mr. Sutphin who has built up a very large business, using these yards in connection with his Oneota yards and abattoir. He will probably rebuild as soon as matters connected with insurance, etc., are settled.

The total loss is about, J. B. Sutphin $35,000, to the Omaha road $500; total insurance $24,500, as follows: On buildings, American, Philadelphia, $1,300; Syndicate, Minneapolis, $1,300. Union, California, $1,300; St. Paul Fire & Marine, $2,600; Rhode Island, $1,300; Underwriters, New York, $1,00; National Hartford, $1,3000; Phœnix Brooklyn, $1,300; Security, New Haven, $1,300; Orient, Hartford, $1,300; Sun, England, $1,300, London and Lancashire, $1,600; Anglo, Nevada, $1,000; Merchants, Newark, $1,600; Boatmens, Pittsburg, $1,300; Peoples, Pittsburg, $1,300, total on buildings, $23,000. On hay, Enterprise, Cincinnati, $750; Farmers, of Pennsylvania, $750; total on hay, $1,500; grand total, $24,500.

Mr. Sutphin estimates his loss at about $10,000. He will rebuild, a part at least, at once. The roar of the flames when they started in the granary could be heard like an approaching cyclone. At the telephone exchange the instrument connected with the stock yards gave the sound plainly to the ears of the operators though the instrument at the yards was in a building some little distance from the flames. A theory advanced by insurance agents to account for the blaze is the explosion of oil in the feed mill, this is, however, not credited by those on the spot. All insurance was in agencies of, or placed by, Marvin & Hawkes, of this city.

Notice to Consumers.

The Duluth Electric Light & Power Company announces to the public that it is now fully equipped with the best system in the world. The Thomson-Houston Arc and Westinghouse Incandescent Lights are on, and after December 1st will run its station all night, so that parties desiring all night service can be accommodated.

Those desiring either Arc or Incandescent for commercial or household lighting are requested to call and learn terms, at the Company's office at No. 6, McDougal Block.

NOTES OF THE RAIL.

The American Express company will put messengers on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and the Eastern railways as soon as regular passenger trains are put on.

The big rotary snow plow ordered some months ago by the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic has been started from the works at Peterson, N. J., and is expected to reach Marquette in a very few days now. It will probably be needed about the time it gets there.

The South Shore road has received the remaining six of the fifteen heavy freight engines built by the Baldwin works and they are now being set up at the Marquette shops. The report that the road had leased twelve of its engines to an eastern road is without foundation, though the Brooks Locomotive works is reported to have made inquiries concerning the possibility of leasing some of the engines, such often being its practice when unable to fill its orders in time.

N. D. Root, who has been superintendent of the Minnesota and Wisconsin divisions of the Northern Pacific, has accepted the position of assistant general manager of the main line and branches of the middle division with headquarters at Helena, Montana. It is understood that his old position will be given to Supt. Frank Gresne, of Mandan. Mr. Root is well known at Duluth from his almost daily visits here in the past year.

There is no change in the question of passenger rates to Chicago. All St. Paul lines claim that they have no tickets in the hands of scalpers, although it is stated that tickets could be had at less than tariff rates over most any line.

Contracts for grading the Duluth Red Wing & Southern have been let for five miles south of Zumbrota and ten miles each side of Owatonna.

THE "SLOUCH."

Coyote City watched the slouching figure grow smaller and smaller in the distance, and then disappear over the crest of the "rise," a mile away. Then congratulating themselves upon having got rid of an undesirable citizen, the inhabitants of the little border settlement turned away and resumed their wonted avocations. Coyote City's spasm of virtue was over.

Half an hour later the matter was being discussed by a group of three around one of the tables in the Jumbo saloon. Two of the trio were familiar with all of the details of the affair, but the third member of the group was full of curiosity. Col. Anderson loved the sound of his own voice. Pierce Fanshaw rather preferred the colonel's eloquence to listening to the frantic attempts of the fragment of an orchestra to catch a tune that had already eluded them eleven separate and distinct times. Mr. Arthur Lemon, of Boston, who had come west with the intention of starting a bank, and had already made quite a heavy deposit in the pocket of Pierce Fanshaw, professional gambler, was desirous of adding to his somewhat limited stock of information. So the subject of the recent "running out" was thoroughly ventilated.

The colonel had been the self elected master of ceremonies, and felt elated at the successful manner in which the programme had been executed. "Yes," he said, "it went off beautifully, beautifully! Nary hitch in the entire performance!"

"But why was he run out?" queried Mr. Arthur Lemon.

"Why? Because it had become necessary to purge Coyote City uv undesirable persons—those who retarded instead uv promoting its prosperity, and whose presence instead uv attracting immigration, repelled it."

"But was he guilty of any crime? I supposed such summary evictions were for persons engaged in nefarious practices."

"So they air, an'"—

"Then why does the enforced emigration stop when the 'slouch' is run out?"

"Why? Because thar's nobody else that needs runnin' out."

"It seems to me that there are still left several persons upon whom various crimes have been proven, as well as that there are yet remaining a number of saloonists, pro"— He stopped suddenly, as if checked by the presence of Pierce Fanshaw, professional gambler.

"And professional gamblers," remarked that gentleman pleasantly, completing the sentence. "I'll tell you, my dear fellow, why we are not run out, but are left to do our sweet wills, while a more harmless person, whose only offense was being 'trifling,' worthless, a 'slouch,' was given two hours in which to make himself scarce. The reason is to be found in the ancient adage that 'might makes right.' That makes us not offenders, but influential citizens."

"But, good Heavens," exploded Col. Benderson, "your eastern ideas air almost startlin', Lemon! Might as well talk uv runnin' me out as to speak of these yere gents bein'"—

"And Col. Benderson could not be readily spared," interrupted Pierce Fanshaw's cool voice. "The colonel is a boomer of the first magnitude, and talks boom and Coyote City's prosperity from morning till night."

Col. Benderson leaned back in his chair and expanded his chest, like a man well aware of his own merit.

"Thanks, Pierce, a thousand thanks. You do me mighty proud. Jim"—to a waiter—"the best in the house for my friends an' self."

If Mr. Arthur Lemon, the "tenderfoot," detected any sarcasm in Fanshaw's laudation of Col. Benderson, he held his peace. Nor did he make any comment when Fanshaw's soft voice said, almost coolngly:

"Observe how the waiter flies to execute the commission. The colonel is one of the Jumbo's most valued patrons, far, far different from the 'slouch,' who never treated or was treated."

"That's a fact," agreed Col. Benderson. "There was nothing uv the gentleman about him. He possessed so little refinement that, when once I invited him to join me, he not only declined, but added insult to the refusal by saying that he not only did not drink, but wished every drop of the accursed stuff was banished from the land. There's his very words. Not only refused to enjoy himself, but wanted the personal liberties uv the millions uv people in this great nation abridged, if not entirely taken from them."

The colonel paused, lost in the mental contemplation of the selfishness of the "slouch."

"No instincts of a gentleman about him," he continued, presently. "All slouch."

"But why was he called the 'slouch'?" questioned Arthur Lemon. "I hardly understand it."

"One of the most potent respect bringers is success," said Pierce Fanshaw, "and many a man on the border is stigmatized as a slouch simply because he is unfortunate. And he was always on the losing side of every occasion."

The conversation ceased for a while, as the fragment of an orchestra, with a great burst of triumphant sound, overtook and captured the elusive tune.

In the meanwhile the shuffling footsteps of the "slouch" were widening the distance between himself and unappreciative Coyote City. Bitterness rankled in his heart, and as he strode along his life rose up, a mental panorama, before him. He recalled the days of the long ago, when, full of high hopes, he had left his eastern home to find in the west the el dorado of prosperity, where fortunes were to be had for the grasping. But fortune had not come to him; all his many cherished plans and plots had turned out empty, fortuneless bubbles, and, at last, almost giving up the struggle, he had sunk, sunk to become the "slouch," nameless—only the "slouch."

The beauties of the prairie landscape were unnoticed, as his half mechanical steps placed mile after mile behind him. He did not give a second glance to the placid sea of brown grass that stretched away on every hand, here and there the neutral hue of the ocean of grass was blotched by a "burnt patch," where, shorn by fire of its matted coverlet of brown, the earth was green with the swift springing second crop. On each green oasis the killdees held high carnival and called to each other in their queer, metallic, half musical whoops. High above the treeless mound that sprung so unexpectedly from the prairie floor a buzzard sailed. Close at hand the wild verbenas bloomed in profusion, and the smoldering fire of their crimson blossoms shone in brilliant contrast to the brown maturity of the grass. But the "slouch," busy with his bitter and desponding thoughts, gave no heed to nature's beauties.

The sun was just dropping from sight behind the distant mound when the "slouch" paused, just beyond the fence of barbed wire that surrounded the homestead "claim" of some isolated settler.

"Mebbe he'll let me stay all night," muttered the "slouch," as he strode across the sod, from which the stunted sod corn stalks had not yet been gathered, towards the small "shack" or shanty almost in the middle of the claim.

"He won't know I'm a slouch," he added, half bitterly. "I am not very widely noted."

No dogs, so common on the average claim, rushed to meet him, with suspicious growls and wagless tails. No little army of white headed children ran bashfully to hide at the approach of the stranger.

"Deserted, looks like," the "slouch" told himself. "Well, so much the better for me. Loneliness and I will get along right well together, and a "slouch" without company is just as good as anybody else!"

The swift falling twilight had filled with darkness the little room that the half open door revealed. The "slouch" knocked, for manner's sake, and gave a great start as a low moan replied. The moan was repeated, and, after calling questioningly several times, he entered.

A match, hurriedly lighted, revealed the only occupant of the "shack," a gaunt, feebly tossing man, who, stretched on the rude bed, seemed hardly conscious of the intruder's presence.

"What's the mattor, pardner?" the "slouch" asked, kindly.

The other, who seemed to be conscious only in a glimmering fashion, strove feebly to answer, and as the "slouch" bent close to him there came the one word:

"Water!"

A cooling draught from the well near at hand seemed to revive the sick man, and as the "slouch" bent above him again he whispered hoarsely:

"Thank ye, pardner. Git! Smallpox!"

Out into the darkness the "slouch" fled as if pursued by a demon. When he paused he was almost to the wire fence that surrounded the claim. He took off his battered hat and looked up at the stars, twinkling into sight, one after another.

The deadly danger of the plague was only one more link to his chain of misfortunes. Perhaps if he fled he could escape it. The man in the cabin, if left alone, would die of neglect, if not of the plague. A "slouch" could help him to battle with death just as well as the most fortunate and influential citizen of Coyote City. The sufferer in the shanty had no claim on him, but——

Then he replaced the battered hat, and, turning about in the darkness, strode toward the open door, from which came a long, gleaming shaft of light from the candle he had lit. Presently the door was shut, and the "slouch" and the sufferer were alone with the plague.

It was just such another day as the one upon which, two weeks before the "slouch" left Coyote City, that a gaunt, pale man, weary with his long tramp from the isolated claim near the lone mound, stepped just beyond the end of the one street of Coyote and shouted hoarsely to a lad:

"Tell the big gun in the town to come yar!"

The lad very properly sought Col. Benderson at the individual most worthy of the title of "big gun." That gentleman rose from a table in the Jumbo saloon, and Pierce Fanshaw and Arthur Lemon followed him.

"Halt, thar!" cried the stranger, when they had gotten within a hundred yards of him.

News flies fast in a border settlement, and quite a squad of curious ones strolled up and joined the colonel and his friends.

The colonel did not heed the command, but continued to advance.

"Halt, thar!" repeated the stranger. "Smallpox! You'll halt now, I reckon!" he added, grimly.

Not only did Col. Benderson halt, but he turned so quickly that he nearly fell on his face, and started to hurry away.

"Halt, thar!" was the command.

A huge revolver gleamed in the hand of the stranger, and the colonel stopped.

"What does this mean, sir!" he demanded, rather faintly. "Who are you?"

"Name's Ike Masters," the stranger shouted in reply. "Know William Hatfield?"

"Never heered uv him!" Col. Benderson answered positively.

"Hatfield was the 'slouch's' name," said Pierce Fanshaw.

"Never knowed it. Wall"—to the stranger —"what uv him?"

"Nuth'n," answered Ike Masters. "He's dead, that's all. Don't reckon any uv you'll keer none, bein's you run him out; but I jest want to say that the man you called the 'slouch' died a hero!"

The group about the colonel listened in awed silence as the stranger shouted the story of the "slouch's" heroism and death.

"He sent you some word," Ike Masters added, as he closed the recital. "Said fer me to say to you that the last effort uv the 'slouch' wa'n't a failure, but that fer once he 'complished what he set out to do. What he set out to do was to save the life uv Ike Masters, which Ike Masters is me."

The colonel, usually ready tongued, was silent.

"An' I jest want to say furder," shouted the gaunt stranger, "that I b'aint overly strong yit, but if the cuss, or any two uv the cusses, what bossed the runnin' out uv the 'slouch' will stop out from the crowd, me and ole Betsy yar"—tapping his huge revolver—"will give 'em all the satisfaction they want, case they feel insulted when I say that ever' man connected with the runnin' out uv William Hatfield is a liar an' a hoss thief!"

These epithets may not have been appropriate to the occasion, but they were of the kind that on the border are regarded as the deadliest insults.

"An' I jest want to add," went on Ike Masters, "that my claim is on the southwest quarter uv Section Three, an' I kin allurs be found thar or tharabouts, case anybody wants to take this yar matter up!"

And turning he strode across the prairie.

The crowd that soon gathered in the Jumbo saloon was less noisy than usual; they wanted to hear what Col. Benderson would say, but that gentleman did not seem inclined to talk.

"Mebby I made a mistake," was all he said.

"Few of us would do as the 'slouch' did," said Pierce Fanshaw. "I, for one, would not die for anybody but myself."

"There is a verse in scripture"— began Mr. Arthur Lemon, of Boston.

"And with which it will doubtless surprise you to learn that I am passably familiar," interrupted Pierce Fanshaw. "'And greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.'"—Frank Leslie's Pictorial.

A Suggested Thought.

Diet of Old Farmers.

In regard to food, the evidence is so uniformly one way that those who advise a simple diet, and those who cry out against meat, must either hold their theories to be above facts or give them up. There is certainly nothing "simple" about the diet of a New England farmer. It consists of salt and fresh pork and beef and all sorts of common fish and vegetables, almost always poorly cooked, and pies and cakes of the most indigestible sorts. The food is "plain," truly, and gives the digestive organs an abundance of work to do, but it is not such food as a theorist would recommend to one who desired to live near up to the century mark. Tea and coffee have certainly proved that they do not tend to shorten life, even if they do not prove that they help to prolong it. The generally accepted theory in relation to stimulants, that in excess they are not life sustaining, receives strong support. Tobacco appears to prove itself harmless, at least on the temperament of these people. Whether it be a help to live long requires other evidence.

While the farmers of New England and their wives are a cleanly people, they are not much given to bathing. This neglect may not have prolonged their existence or made them more healthy, but it is to be presumed that it has not cut off many years or caused much disease. Neither are the members of these households well informed in relation to sanitary matters. They know little of the unseen dampness to which the human system is so constantly exposed, and, knowing little, care little. May not this be an influence in favor of a prolonged existence, paradoxical as the supposition may seem?—Clement M. Hammond in Popular Science Monthly.

An Atrocious Falsehood.

"Speaking of liars, Ananias was an amateur as compared to Mosely."

"Has Mosely distinguished himself?"

"I should say so. He was telling me just now that a tramp went into his yard this morning and sawed half a cord of wood before asking for anything to eat."—Lincoln State Journal.

ONE OF NATURE'S LAWS.

COMPENSATION FOR THOSE WHO SUFFER PHYSICAL IMPAIRMENTS.

One May Live a Long Time with Heart Disease—One Lung May Do the Work of Two for Many Years—Nature's Justice.

Nature has imposed upon the world of life her storms, earthquakes, etc., which are called "sublime manifestations of her supreme power." She has exposed her children to accidents, which through no effort of their own can they escape. She has also fixed penalties for voluntary transgression and violation of her laws. But, beyond that, in her infinite mercy, she has established a law of compensation for all unfortunates who suffer, and nowhere else is its application more clearly evident than in the victims of physical impairments. She has provided that, within certain limits, if any part of the system or function of man becomes deranged or disabled—unable to do its work properly—other parts, through their reserve power, shall do additional work, and so compensate for the infirmity.

Take, for instance, the heart. When disease, say of the valves, first begins to show itself, at once other changes in that organ commence to obviate, in a great measure, the imperfection. In using a pump, if the valves are sound, less effort is required by us than if they are imperfect, and allow some of the water to fall back into the well. Inasmuch as they are inefficient, just so much harder we must work and take so many more strokes of the pump, if we would keep up the same flow of water which we could raise if the valves were in perfect condition. So it is when the valves of the heart do not close tightly, but allow some of the blood to recede; it must labor all the harder. For such a condition as this nature has provided. She causes the walls of the heart to grow thicker, and hence makes that organ more powerful. By thus compensating for the valvular disease, the general condition of the person may for a long time be but little changed. He may even enjoy comparatively good health for years, and his infirmity only be discovered by accident.

This law of compensation is clearly evident in what are called hunchbacks. As a rule, they are so frail looking one would not expect them to be able to fight severe disease, and yet they have a resistant and reactive power which is simply wonderful. Strong, robust children taken down with disease often succumb when these deformed unfortunates, prostrated with an attack of the same and of equally severe type, recover.

Where there are two like organs in the body, if one is injured the other takes on a greater activity and strength, and assumes additional burden. If one lung is crippled by an accident, in time the other may be so changed it will do very well the work designed for both. Cases are not infrequent where one kidney has become absolutely useless, and has even been removed, and yet the person suffered little or noue, apparently, from its loss. This law of compensation the physician and surgeon "meets at every turn" as he labors for his patients. It is one on which he must rely much. We have said that perfection of health is purely ideal; that it never actually exists. The average man is far from the enjoyment of perfect health. Were human bodies transparent, there would be revealed abnormalities in all, and even in some of those apparently fairly well there would be found diseases which it would seem must soon prove fatal, and yet the victims of them resist death for years.

It is a popular belief that if the lungs once become even in a slight degree affected, consumption is sure to result, and yet it is safe to say that there is scarcely a person living who has perfectly healthy lungs. Nearly all, if not all, have some time or other during their lives suffered from trouble in those important organs, which have healed and become perfectly sound again. The extent to which the liver may be diseased, and yet the general health remain fairly good, is something to marvel at. For instance, cirrhosis of the liver, or, as it is sometimes called, "gin liver," is a degenerative change in that organ, which, if not arrested, which is rarely possible, ultimately destroys it and life. The disease is usually very far advanced before the victim fully realizes that he is failing in health. The other organs in the system do the liver's work, and its partial loss is scarcely felt. Diseases of the stomach, as a rule, soon make themselves apparent, and yet some remain concealed, or their presence is merely suspected, for years. Physicians who are employed as examiners for insurance companies, endowment societies and the like will testify that diseases of the kidneys—as Bright's disease—are in very many cases first disclosed by their analysis, and while the victims believe themselves to be in good health, never having had a symptom which led them to even suspect that dread complaint.

And so we might go on, calling attention to each organ of the body separately, and telling how little evidence of even serious impairment is sometimes offered to the victim. Were this condition of things changed, did nature less faithfully observe her law of compensation and conceal existing infirmities, it might be better for some, but certainly not for others. "Where ignorance is bliss," etc. It is sometimes well that we should not know our weaknesses. If we were the victim of an incurable disorder many of us would prefer to live on in ignorance until the fact dawned upon us.

There are but few diseases which, if recognized early and proper treatment is applied, cannot be permanently arrested, if not wholly cured. None is more dreaded than consumption; yet that disease—popularly supposed to be fatal—can positively be cured if taken in time. Those who do die of it rarely consult a physician until "too late," being kept back from doing so through fear of being "told the worst;" they prefer the condition of doubt to that of a grave certainty. One who is deaf, and, still more so, one blind, excites intense pity in all. Still, specialists in diseases of the ear and eye will testify that in almost all their incurable cases the victims are long sufferers before they seek relief. Truly, "procrastination is the thief of time," and when health is threatened there are but few who do not give evidence that this grievous fault for once, at least, is theirs.

As we have said, the average man is compelled to travel through life in a condition of health far below the perfect standard. The deviations—the ailments—are not only in very many instances self inflicted, but they can, in a great measure, be overcome. The one fault lies deep. The knowledge of how to live, to husband our forces, and to keep ourselves near the ideal state—perfection of health—should be engrafted into our natures in early youth; it should be among the first lessons taught us. We should realize from the first that we cannot wrong ourselves by vicious indulgence without being obliged to suffer therefor. Her "books are well kept," perfect justice is done all, and we must meet and satisfy every charge which nature makes against us.—Boston Herald.

Plurals for Awkward Names.

A young gentleman of scholarly mien the other day poked his head into the office of A. B. Wilgus & Co., and solemnly inquired of a stranger who happened to be sitting there, "Are any of the Wilgi in?" referring collectively to Mr. Wilgus and his sons, who are associated in business with him. He had evidently been a student of the classics—at any rate he had mastered his Latin grammar up to the second declension.

By the way, would it not be a movement in the direction of linguistic reform to generally adopt the Latin plural form for the English names that end in us, and whose English plural is awkward? Then, instead of holding caucuses we could hold cauci, and instead of kicking up rumpuses we would kick up rumpi. And, judging from some political events in the Twin Cities, it might be all the same whether we say cauci or rumpi in speaking of such things.—Pioneer Press.

M. K. ELLIOT'S BATTERY
IN A BOTTLE AND Electric Headache,

Headache, Neuralgia, Hysteria, Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Toothache and Earache cure. We guarantee it to contain a perfect Electric Battery combined with vegetable compounds, which will give immediate relief and permanently cure all forms of catarrh.

The superiority of this remedy is the result of the combination of the stimulating and penetrating effects of electricity with the soothing and healing power of medicines which are thrown off and carried into the system in the form of mild, invisible vapors that penetrate immediately to the very seat of the disease, allaying all inflammation, soothing the nerve centers and producing healthy secretions. MOXIE Nerve Food. This is a liquid food to strengthen and build up the overtaxed nervous system. It will relieve old drinkers of the thirst for liquors, though it is neither a medicine nor a stimulant. It cures nervousness and mental exhaustion at once if not from inflammation. The Moxie Nerve Food plant was first discovered in South America by the late Lieut. Moxie, and first given to the public by Dr. Augustine Thompson, lead., physician of Lowell, Mass.

Early this morning a fisherman of Lester river drove into town, and his team becoming frightened ran the length of Superior street, bringing up against rocks at Tenth avenue west The pole was broken by the collision with the rock pile, and was jammed into one of the animals, who died in a few moments.

Capt. McDougall has finally received patents on his vessel and his hydraulic and pumping apparatus. The latter has been in use here for years, pumping sand and larger material, and was, in November, 1886, engaged in pumping wheat from the bottom of the lake. These patents have been listed at the patent office for considerable over a year.

Hot Love Soonest Cold.

Love making should not, of course, be considered as altogether a business matter, but it has its business side. The happiest marriages are those which have a foundation of common sense and respect. The lover who sighs like a furnace soon becomes cool. Nothing satiates one so quickly as the heat of a furnace passion. It is the baser metal, and a marriage founded on this passion alone—the passion inspired by a pretty face or a symmetrical form—is not likely to be as happy as that marriage based on admiration for higher attributes and nobility of character. Beauty, unaccompanied by any grace of mind or character, will soon lose its power, where it is one's constant associate. By and by the heavy odor of the tuberose will weary the sense. So will beauty, without other graces of mind, finally weary the spirit. Man yearns for more than beauty in a woman.—Detroit Free Press.

Big Feet Look Best in Black.

When will women learn that big feet look their best in black? Not in shiny black, like patent leather, which naturally attracts the eye, but in dull black, like soft kid. They can wear lovely slippers or low shoes of this kind in the morning, and for the evening a black satin one is always good form. A very high heel will not make a large foot look small. It simply puts it upon a pedestal and the lookers on have an opportunity to measure its length. A black velvet slipper can only be worn by Cinderella, and the foot of Cinderella must be slender, else the pile of the velvet will make it look thick. A large buckle is never desirable, except with a slender foot and very low instep; when there is a fine arch a small buckle or bow wants to be adhered to, so that the natural beauty may be shown to great advantage.—New York Star

The Training of Children.

Very often we hear people say that school teachers are not likely to train children any better than the mothers do; but they usually have to. One of the greatest benefits of a school, hardly second even to the mental education acquired, is the discipline and order. To children who at home are not held to any exact routine, except that they are expected to appear regularly at meals, it is of the greatest possible benefit. They must report for duty at such an hour, begin studies at a certain time, and do all things decently and in order; and this is rarely insisted upon at home.—Rural New Yorker.

TEA GATHERING IN INDIA.

Coolie Women Plucking the Leaf—In the Withering House—Fermentation.

The five grades of Indian teas—broken Orange Pekoe, broken Pekoe, Pekoe, Pekoe Souchong and Souchong—are all procured from the same plant. When a shoot is plucked from a tea plant it bears three or four leaves and a bud. The smallest bud and leaf on the stalk make the finest teas, and the lower leaves on the stalk, when sifted, make the coarser kinds of tea. The coolie women, who are constantly employed from April to December plucking the leaf, are mustered between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning, and then go out to the portion of the garden where the leaf is quite ready to be plucked, which is, as a rule, once every eight days. At 11 o'clock the women are brought in to weigh their forenoon's leaf, and get leave to have food and a rest till 1 p. m., when they go out again and come in for the day at 6 p. m. On an average day women will pluck thirty to forty pounds, which they carry in baskets on their backs, with a strap on the head, which leaves them both hands free to pluck the leaf from the plants, which after three or four years grow to be large bushes.

The leaf, when brought in and weighed, is carried up into the lofts by the women to the factory men, who are told off to spread it on withering traps or "chulnies," which are placed in tiers all along the length of the withering house, which allows of the leaf getting the quantity of air required to wither it properly for manufacture next morning. As a rule, when the weather is favorable for withering, tea manufacture begins at 5 a. m. The leaf is put into rolling machines, which are made with such perfection that the motion of the hand rolling—used in all tea gardens before machinery was adopted—is now obtained by the use of cranks and cog wheels. The leaf is given a light or a heavy pressure, according to the state it is in during the time it is in the rolling machine. It is then taken out and spread on fermenting tables to get the necessary fermentation, which gives the tea the red coppery color infused tea leaves have.

After getting the proper fermentation, the leaf gets a second roll of short duration to fix the color of the fermentation. The second roll being finished, the rolled leaf is taken to the drying machines to be dried. The most skilled factory hands work these machines, and they give the leaf the proper amount of drying, which gives the tea the black color as you see it. The tea is now ready to be sifted into the different grades. After the whole tea has been put through a tea breaker, it is then passed through a sifting machine—a long revolving cylindrical frame, with the varied sizes of wire meshes attached to it, worked at a slight angle, so that the tea as it revolves falls through the different meshes, under each of which are sheets which convey the tea into boxes, each grade of tea being kept separate. The tea is now ready for a final drying before packing.—Cor. North British Advertiser.

Gen. Sheridan After Gravelotte.

The headquarters now became the scene of much bustle, dispatches announcing the victory being sent in all directions. The first one transmitted was to the queen, the king directing Count Bismarck to prepare it for his signature; then followed others of a more official character, and while these matters were being attended to I thought I would ride into the village to find, if possible, some water for my horse. Just as I entered the chief street, however, I was suddenly halted by a squad of soldiers, who, taking me for a French officer my coat and forage cap resembling those of the French), leveled their pieces at me. They were greatly excited, so much so indeed that I thought my hour had come, for they could not understand English, and I could not speak German, and dared not utter explanations in French. Fortunately a few disconnected German words came to me in the emergency. With these I managed to delay my execution, and one of the party ventured to come up to examine the "suspect" more closely. The first thing he did was to take off my cap, and looking it over carefully his eyes rested on the three stars above the visor, and pointing to them he emphatically pronounced me French.

Then, of course, they all became excited again, more so than before even, for they thought I was trying to practice a ruse, and I question whether I should have lived to recount the adventure had not an officer belonging to the king's headquarters been passing by just then, when, hearing the threatenings and imprecations, he rode up to learn the cause of the hubbub and immediately recognized and released me. When he told my wrathy captors who I was, they were much mortified, of course, and made the most profuse apologies, promising that no such mistake should occur again, and so on; but not feeling wholly reassured, for my uniform was still liable to mislead, I was careful to return to headquarters in company with my deliverer. There I related what had occurred, and after a good laugh all round, the king provided me with a pass which he said would preclude any such mishap in the future and would also permit me to go wherever I pleased—a favor rarely bestowed.—Gen. Sheridan in Scribner's Magazine.

LABOR TROUBLES.

The Montana Railroad Men's Strike Throws Eighteen Hundred out of Employment.

A FIGHT WITH MISSOURI STRIKERS.

The Reported Organization of all Railroad Men Discredited by the Knights of Labor.

HELENA, Mont., Dec. 7.—The strike on the Montana Union road has been settled. Master Mechanic Rose, whose discharge the engineers demanded, has been laid off, and the engineers returned to work. As an outcome of the strike, it is reported that the manager of the great Anaconda works has received orders to close down the smelter and mines until next May. Eighteen hundred men will be thrown out of employment.

A PITCHED BATTLE.

Trouble Between Swedes and Strikers Results in Bloodshed.

MACON, Mo., Dec. 7.—Another pitched battle occured at Bevier Wednesday night between the Swedes who work coal mine No. 1, and unemployed or striking miners, which lasted until an early hour in the morning. There were between 1500 and 2,000 shots fired. Most of the row of business houses north of the Hannibal & St. Joe passenger depot were riddled with bullets fired by Swedes. Many of the windows were pierced with holes. The rioters were located in buildings and about half a dozen were wounded. One man, Chas. Thornboid from Chicago, was killed. The hostilities have ceased.

PROBABLE A HOAX.

The Reported Meeting to Organize all Railroad Employes Discredited.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 7.—A report has been circulated freely here and in other cities to the effect that early in January a meeting will be held in Pittsburg to form a federation of all railroad employes in the country. Chief Arthur could not be found, but Secretary Everett said that the report might be set down as a hoax. The brotherhood of engineers, he said, were not interested in such a movement. He did not think the meeting could be held.

BATES ALL RIGHT.

His Mother Says He Has Gone East on the Advice of a Physician.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Mrs. Bates, mother of Frank Bates, whose name has been connected with a rumor to the effect that "Old Hutch" was loser to the extent of $20,000 through the transaction and subsequent flight of one of his brokers, asserts that there is no truth in the report. Her son, she says, is in New York city, having gone east a week ago, on the advice of a physician for a short rest. Mrs. Bates says the rumors were started by an enemy of her son.

Daly's Case.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Four prisoners in the Phil Daly case have been held without bail The Hermann case will be heard further. Mrs. Hermann promised to make a full confession to Inspector Byrnes. Meanwhile Hermann will make no statement. Mrs. Hermann stated to a reporter that her husband would be able to prove an alibi. He was at work, she said, at the time of the alleged assault.

Ran Off the Track.

MONTREAL, Dec. 7.—At six o'clock this morning a freight train ran off the track and entrance to Victoria bridge on the Montreal side and was dragged into the tube. Three of the cars were derailed stopping traffic four hours.

A Priest Arrested.

DUBLIN, Dec. 7.—Father Kennedy has been arrested at Kanturk, county Cork, for attending meetings of supposed branches of the National league.

The ladies of the Guild, who are holding a fair at the West End, in their program tonight, will repeat by request, the tableaux entitled, "Returning from the Vineyard."

PERSONAL MENTION.

Major Quinn, U. S. A., leaves Sunday on his 25 days leave of absence. He will visit Cincinnati, his old home.

Alderman Costello returned last night from his eastern trip, where he went to attend the funeral of his mother.

Geo. M. Kenyon, traveling passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific railway, is in Duluth today looking up business for his road.

George S. Shaw, of the Cloquet Lumber company, came down from Cloquet with his wife yesterday. He states that his company has thirty million of lumber now on hand.

Young George Gibson, agent at West Duluth for Morison & Macfarlane, is probably the youngest real estate seller in Duluth; and he is a hustler equal to the best of them when in working condition.

George McKenzie, who left Duluth some weeks ago to take a lucrative position at Johnstown, Pennsylvania, will return this evening. He has been ill during his entire stay at Johnstown, and physicians told him the best thing he could do would be to get back to the bracing climate of Duluth. He is too small for his Duluth clothes by just 17 pounds, but expects to regain that at once.

AN ENERGETIC CORPORATION

WHAT MANAGER BACON OF THE MINNESOTA IRON COMPANY SAYS ABOUT NEXT YEAR'S EXTENSION.

For handling the greatly increased output of the Tower mine of the Minnesota Iron company for 1889 the company, says manager Bacon, will make extensive addition to its machinery plant. It will add four eight foot hoisting drums, a very large size, and two feet greater than any heretofore in use, two large Corliss engines, each with cylinders 18-48 inches, two air compressors, each capable of running 30 No. 3 compressed air drills, and five steel boilers 6x18 feet in size. There will be little besides the above mentioned improvements made to the machinery plant of the company, though the electric light plant will be extended and increased. Further additions will be made to the out tracks and three or four pockets each with a capacity of 400 tons of ore will be built.

During the past year the mine has made machinery improvements consisting of four 6 feet hoisting drums with the necessary engines and steel boilers, and additional pumps. There has also been put in a new office, hospital for injured employees, and large extensions made to railroad tracks. Five shafts have been sunk from 100 to 200 feet.

The machinery demands of this mine show the field for the establishment at Duluth of a large foundry for the manufacture of mining and hoisting machinery. The Minnesota is not the only mine on the range and as time goes on other new companies will rapidly spring into existence, all demanding large outlays for machinery. Duluth should supply this demand, and it would keep a large foundry employing 100 or more men busily at work year after year. Perhaps Secretary Phelps could put in a little time to advantage in pushing this development. It certainly would pay full as well as some other things the chamber is engaged in.

DULUTH PRESBYTERY.

IT IS NOW AN ORGANIZATION, WITH ALL THE MACHINERY OF ORGANIZATION COMPLETE.

At the First Presbyterian church last night the Presbytery of Duluth was organized. Among those from away who attended were Maurice Edwards, D. D., of St. Paul, who was appointed to preach the installating sermon; A. W. Ringland, D. D., of the First church, Duluth; Revs. T. M. Findley, of the Second church; E. N. Raymond, Tower; W. A. Fleming, this city; J. L. Johnson, Two Harbors; J. A. Paige, N. P. Junction; also Elders John C. Hunter, First church; E. E. Williams, Second church: F. A. Watkins, N. P. Junction, and John R. Smith; Two Harbors.

Dr. Ringland was made moderator while J. A. Paige was made clerk. After the moderator had been instructed to appoint standing committees, Dr. Edwards delivered the sermon. His text was taken from Luke xix, 13: "Occupy till I come." He spoke of the duty and power of the Presbyterian church of today, of the possibilities for the future in the second century of organized Presbyteriasm in this country. He referred to the high character of Presbyterian ministers and the church and to its liberality and catholicism. He spoke well for half an hour and at the close of the address the closing business was transacted. It was decided to hold the next session, in April, at the Junction, and invitations were issued to R. N. Adams, D. D., the synodical missionary, and Rev. Putnam Cady, of West Superior, to sit with the Presbytery as corresponding members. The meeting the adjourned.

THE GRAIN SITUATION.

A CONSERVATIVE NORTHWESTERN VIEW OF THE WHEAT SITUATION. WHERE IS THE GOOD WHEAT TO COME FROM?

One of the most conservative grain firms in the Northwest, located at Minneapolis, writes a Duluth correspondent as follows: "I send you some statistics I have been carefully gathering today. They are correct, and I give them as follows: Last year at this time we had in store, Minneapolis 7,434,000 bushels wheat; Duluth, 3,416,000 bushels; making a total of 10,850,000 bushels. This year, at the same time, we have, Minneapolis, 5,954,734 bushels; Duluth, 570,960 bushels; a total of 6,354,582 bushels; a decrease of 4,314,480 bushels from last year in the two places. Then in the elevators in the country we had at the same time 20,000,000 bushels, while this year we have only 8,600,000, a decrease of 11,400,000 bushels from last year, making a grand total of 15,714,480 bushels less wheat in store here, at your city and in the country, than we had last year at this time. Of the stocks in the country it is safe to estimate that 25 per cent of the wheat is not fit for milling purposes. For the months of September and October of this year, inspection here showed that 45 per cent of the total amount of wheat received graded below No. 2. At Duluth the rate was better but not much. If these statements are true, and they are, as I have been especially careful in the gathering of them, where is the good wheat to come from when the millers are ready to start up their mills, which must come sooner or later? Receipts here today are 338 cars, and from what I can gather from the general superintendent of the Manitoba road, which brings in the great bulk of the wheat for this place, receipts in the country have dropped off 50 to 60 per cent, and instead of cars being difficult to get they have more cars than there is demand for, and that the increased receipts on their road the last week has been occasioned by the clearing up of side tracks in the country, where they have held considerable wheat. I only can find one lot of 100 cars on the entire road yet to come in of this reserve, and it looks to me that at the end of this week we will see the last of these large receipts."

DULUTH TO H[illegible]
EMPLOY TWO H[illegible]
BEGUN NEXT WEEK.

This afternoon J. B. Cochran, until now of Cheboyg[illegible] went down to West Duluth and staked [illegible] the ground for the new hard wood factory and planing mill to be built by J. B. Adams & Co. This statement is probably the first intimation to most Duluth people that any such move was in contemplation, but Mr. Adams was in Duluth a few weeks ago looking over the field and he since then made offers for five acres of property near Broadway and the county road, north of the West Duluth depot which has been accepted by the West Duluth Land company, and he came in yesterday evening ready for business, accompanied by his foreman, J. Cochran. The business to be undertaken is that of manufacturing a general line of hardwood interior finish for the better class of dwellings, for offices, banks, hotels, etc., as well as the making of sash, doors, blinds, mouldings and other wood work. The firm is amply backed by capital, and is comprised of men thoroughly acquainted with their business, who came to Duluth because they believe it to be the best location for a general distributing point for the Northwest in their line that could be found.

Plans are already drawn for the buildings of the concern. They include a main factory three stories high and 50x112 feet ground size, built of wood with an engine house 30x60 adjoining, and dry kilns, ware houses, etc., occupying a greater part of the five acres in the site. Foundations, says Mr. Adams, will be in place, should there be any weather at all decent, in two weeks, while the factory will be ready for business in April or May. It will employ at the start about fifty men, and will have a capacity, when trade becomes established, for 200 workers. For local trade a warehouse will be erected in the lower part of the city. The company will endeavor to supply the demand of the country tributary to Duluth as well as their share of town trade, in the lines they will manufacture and there would seem little doubt of the field for such an enterprise.

MATTERS OF THE LAKES.

Ship building for the next year will be extensive. In Cleveland 13 new vessels will be constructed; Detroit will build 8; West Bay City, 13; Buffalo, 2 Marine City, 6; Mount Clemens, 4; Milwaukee, 2; Trenton, 3; Gibralter, 2; Manitowoc, 2; Duluth, 2; Sheboygan, Sandusky, Saugatuck and Green Bay, each 1. In all 61 crafts, of which 55 are steamers. The capacity is estimated at 104,000 tons and value $7,250,000.

Capt. Henry Bundy, of the Gospel ship, Glad-Tidings, is in Buffalo to raise $1,000 as a part of the $8,000 which will be raised in Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Racine and Milwaukee to build a new Gospel steamboat in place of the sailing schooner just sold. He has raised so far $730 in Buffalo. As a means of affording Capt. Bundy a comfortable and easy living, the scheme is to be commended. It is doubtful however, whether as much can be claimed for the Christian influence of the venture. Capt. Bundy labors among the inhabitants at the lower end of Lake Michigan, but piracy in cases of shipwreck is constantly on the increase thereabouts, notwithstanding his regular annual visits.—Ex.

AMUSEMENTS.

Voegtlin painted the following scenes for "The Gladiator:" The Roman Arches, the Battlefield of Campania, showing the Bay of Naples, Mount Vesuvius and the Roman implements of warfare, the Arena. They are all pictures of art, and are pronounced historically correct by eminent Roman scholars. While Manager Mack was preparing for the production of the tragedy he received a cablegram from Mr. Johns Lau, informing him that he could have the use of all the ancient Roman armor and weapons belonging to the Berlin Historical society for models for the armor to be used in the combat scene and pageant in "The Gladiator," but, as none of the suits of mail are large enough for Mr. Robert Downing, who is the star in the coming production, he is obliged to wear the McCullough dress. The Gladiator was the last play in which poor McCullough was seen, but it was never presented by either he or Forrest in such an elaborate manner as it will be Monday night.

Hudson & Eckhart's Juvenile Opera company will occupy the Opera house four nights next week. The company is said to be the only relic of the flood of juvenile companies that deluged the country about Mikado time, and it survived by its own merit. It is said to be very firm, and the press speak in high terms of its work. The company closes at Winnipeg tomorrow evening after a week's stand there.

SPORTING EVENTS.

The Minneapolis Journal yesterday published a statement to the effect that one of the gloves used by Dick Moore, of St. Paul, in his fight with Paddy Dunn, of Grand Rapids, was loaded with some heavy substance, which inflicted a wound that could not have been received from the use of an eight ounce glove. The blow was said to be the first and only right hand blow struck by Moore, and Dunn fell to the floor unconscious, the blood streaming from a four inch wound on the left side of the head. Dunn has now challenged Moore to fight at any other place than the Comique, Moore to receive the entire receipts of the house if he can stay six rounds.

Frank Murphy, of Philadelphia, "challenges Weir, Warren, or any other man in the world at even weight of established reputation for a finish fight for $1,000 a side."

Mitchell says he came to this country to give exhibitions with Kilrain, and that it will not pay him to arrange a contest with Jack Dempsey.

Dominick McCaffrey has challenged Sullivan to a bare knuckle fight, London rules, for $2,000 a side.

In a Few Remarks in an Officia. Newspaper--Chicago's Postoffice Remembered.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 6.—The Boletin, newspaper, the organ of the postal authorities of Mexico, brings serious charges against the American postal authorities, accusing them of great negligence and carelessness in sending mails on long routes, and especially on those routes leading to interior places in Mexico. The Bulletin claims that the recent troubles with the delivery of American mails in Mexico have been owing entirely to this carelessness, and intimates rather strongly that the administration that is unable to cope with postal robbers in the most traveled routes of its own country, and with inefficient services in one of the greatest of American cities, should not lay at the door of an adjoining nation a fault that it is all its own. The article in question is evidently the emanation of authority in the Mexican government.

IGNORE THE LAW.

A Dakota Grand Jury Refuses to Find Indictments against Saloon-keepers.

SIOUX CITY, Dec. 6.—The Grand jury which has been in session two weeks considering 150 complaints against Sioux Falls saloonkeepers for violation of the local option liquor law during the past summer, came into court to be discharged last evening, reporting no indictments against saloon men. Judge Garland, after recovering from his amazement, remarked:

"And so you have ignored all these cases. Mr. Clerk, you will bind over all defendants in these cases to the next grand jury."

Oil for Fuel.

FINDLAY, Ohio, Dec. 6.—Yesterday an engine on the Toledo, Columbus & Southern railroad drew a passenger train from Toledo to this city on fuel furnished by crude petroleum. The trial was such a success that President Brown announces that he will have all his engines arranged for the use of oil and do away with coal.

It is reported at police headquarters that a drowning accident happened this afternoon at Superior. No particulars could be learned at the time of going to press with this edition.

Gate City lodge, K. of P., elected the following officers at its annual meeting last night: C. R. Normandy, P. C.; T. J. Owens, C. C.; C. C. Tear, V. C.; W. H. Graves, P.; H. S. Moody, K. of R and S.; J. C. Sinclair, Assistant; Brewer Mattocks, Jr., M. of F.; F. W. Winship, M. at A.; W. W. Sanford, trustee.

The Duluth Presbytery will be organized at the First Presbyterian church at 7.30 o'clock tonight. Rev. Dr. Edwards, of St. Paul, preaches the sermon. The new Presbytery includes Carlton, Aitkin, Crow Wing, Wadena and all the counties north of them, and the organization ceremonies will be as interesting as they are unusual. The public is invited to attend.

It is the opinion of many of those best informed regarding last night's fire that it was caused by the explosion of dust in the feed mill, being much the same cause that started the fearful mill destruction in Minneapolis some years ago and burned a mill in the east last month. Insurance men as well as the foreman of the stockyards incline to this behalf.

There are saw mills in the line of the St. Paul & Duluth road that produced this year 190,000,000 feet of lumber, and will turn out next year over 210,000,000 feet. The St. Paul & Duluth is rapidly becoming known as a lumber road. Several of the millers along its line are in the midst of bodies of Norway pine and hardwood particularly adapted for car building and to them the advent of the Minnesota Car company will be a decided advantage.

A telegram appeared in this paper yesterday announcing the arrest at Neenah, Wis., of a Tascott, in the person of C. E. Snell, and concluded with the naive statement that "he was thought to be the wrong man." The C. E. Snell who was arrested, is well known in Duluth, having frequently been here, and is owner of some considerable property here. He is a friend of A. M Prindiden who found by a telegram to Neenah that Snell had not been arrested and that the press dispatch was a mere hoax.

It is stated that E. Grumbach, the fur dealer, has left Duluth for pleasanter pastures. He has left a number of bills behind him, the largest of which is to C. Miesws and others of New York for seal furs, amounting to $3,200 to one and $1000 to the other. Chicago and St. Paul fur dealers are also claimed to be out a total of $500. In Duluth he owed perhaps $800. His business had been good, he having sold perhaps thirty expensive seal sacques this season, as well as other goods, but it was too much for his capital and his fondness for looking on the wine when it was red was too strong. Grumbach was at one time a sergeant of marines in the German navy, and was at the storming of Alexandria by the English in '81. He came to Duluth from Richmond Va. His sewers and clerk, of whom he employed about a dozen, are all in arrears for pay.

A TASTE OF WAR.

Br[illegible] Troops Fired upon by Arab Forces at Saukim.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—A cable dispatch to the Herald dated Saukim Dec. 5, says the [illegible]st detachment of British troops arrived [illegible]oday on the steamship Hodida, bringing from Suez 21 officers and 185 men [illegible] Scottish Borders and 100 mounted infantry, with horses. So soon as the troops assembled the Arabs opened a hot artillery fire from the trenches, mainly concentrated on the Twelfth Black battalion, but they were quickly silenced by a reply from the fort and the Racer. The probability is that a fight between the Arabs and troops under Gen. Grenfell, leader of the Egyptian army, will take place next week.

NO ANARCHISTS NEED APPLY.

Powderly Says the Knights of Labor are Being Weeded Out.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6.—General Master Workman Powderly, speaking last evening of the recent Indianapolis convention, said:

"We are weeding out the troublesome element. For sometime there has been an anarchistic element in the order. These fellows who are at war with our institutions feel perfectly happy when they get into the order and succeed in stirring up quarrels. We have no room for any kind of anarchists in this country."

THE AUSTRALIAN KNOCKED OUT

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DULUTH.

Everybody except Mr. Cleveland says that the president and his wife will go to Europe after March 4.

The cold weather signal waves today. It has been strung up before this season but the frigid zephyrs have failed to materialize.

Blake, the Kansas weather prognosticator, is confident that Duluth will not experience much cold weather this winter. Up to date he has not made any mistakes.

Gen. Harrison as a hunter is a decided success. His recent excursion in quest of game, proves this, and no paragrapher has yet been guilty of intimating that he bought and did not shoot the quail which he exhibited on his return.

The report comes from Washington that Senator Sabin is not losing any sleep over the senatorial contest. If he does not surprise Mr. Washburne and his over confident newspapers when the noses are counted in the legislature we will miss our guess.

Idaho has named one of its tallest mountain peaks "Mount Harrison" in honor of the president-elect. "Harrison Seedling" is the name given by an enthusiastic West Virginia Republican to a choice variety of apple that matured for the first time last month. The boy babies named Benjamin Harrison are innumerable in every state and territory of the country.

The Minneapolis Star says: "Col. Graves, in St. Paul last night, conceded that the chances are against his election to the speakership, and that the situation is rather Morganesque in its aspect. He is disposed to find fault with the Hennepin and Ramsey county delegations because of their refusal to make him any pledges. He thought it ought to be Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth against the country."

President Cleveland alone is responsible for the cruel and disgraceful eviction scenes in Iowa. Senator Allison secured the passage of a law for the relief of these settlers and Cleveland vetoed it. The land company, that has been declared the legal owner upon technicalities, never performed the service that was to be a compensation for these lands. Cleveland and Salisbury are the great evictors in the old world and new. Let the responsibility rest where it belongs.

Although California gave Harrison a plurality of 8,207, he Democrats carried the legislature. The senate stands, Democrats, 23; Republicans, 16; vacancy, 1; House, Democrats, 42; Republicans, 33. Of the senators in the odd-numbered districts voted for November 6, the Republicans secured 13 and the Democrats 7, but the latter had 16 hold-over senators and the Republicans 4 (one of whom died recently.) The legislature will not vote on United States senator.

In a bill introduced in congress yesterday was a provision which made it illegal to employ any but American citizens on public works. Such a law would be justifiable. If a foreigner coming to this country does not take advantage of the opportunity afforded him to become an American citizen he should not be given employment by the government in any position or be permitted to be employed by government contractors.

SENATOR INGALLS ON THE RACE QUESTION.

Senator Ingalls has been interviewed on the race question at the south. He considers it the most important question in our politics and believes that the change from slavery to freedom, from subordination to legal equality, has complicated, instead of simplified, the situation. So far from solving the fatal problem it has added new difficulty and danger. He continues:

"Whether the Anglo-Saxon and the negro races are homogeneous, I do not pretend to say, but the evidence is clear that the mulattoes are disappearing in the South. The blacks are growing blacker, the whites are growing whiter. This shows that the connection between races while the blacks were enslaved was not voluntary on their part and is ceasing with their freedom. Neither is it disputed that the mixed race came from the union of black mothers with white fathers, and not of white mothers with black fathers. The ethnological inference from this is irresistable. The black race is not only growing blacker, but it is increasing numerically much more rapidly than the white race. This is a fact of ominous significance and adds to the gravity of the issue. No intelligent man intends longer to deny that the blacks are not permitted to vote in many states south of the Ohio and Potomac, where they are in the majority; or if they vote their ballots are not counted. It is admitted that for some reason or other they would as a rule vote against the whites if left to their own impulses. Whether this is the race antagonism of which I have spoken, and is casual and temporary, I do not know. I suspect, however, that is a permanent condition. The pretext upon which suffrage is denied the blacks in the south is that the race is not capable of self government, and that its supremacy would result in the digradion and destruction of society and the state. I don't distrust the sincerity or candor of the Southern whites. They probably believe what they affirm, but I have no doubt they have deliberately determined to eliminate the negro from their politics, and upon the ground, they reason, of their superior intelligence, wealth and morality the whites must remain supreme."

THE RAILWAY WORLD.

THE MANDAN & BLACK HILLS RAILWAY LINE SURVEYED—TO ADD TO DULUTH'S TERRITORY—OTHER NEWS OF THE RAILS.

The new line from Mandan to the Black Hills at Rapid City has been surveyed. It will be a valuable line for Duluth, and is said to be backed by eastern capital, though this is probably incorrect. It will run southwest from Mandan so as to skirt the western edge of the great Standing Rock reservation, and thence almost due south to Rapid City, giving a line considerably shorter from the Black Hills to Duluth than any now existing, or than would be made by the extension of either eastern and west lines of the western and Paul across the Hills. Whether it will route over a continuation and Eastern ... not appear. ... valuable fields of bitumin... lie on the line of survey between Mandan and the hills, while the output of Black Hills ore would supply heavy traffic to Duluth and the east via Lake Superior. It is stated that the project also includes a branch from some point at the corner of the reservation to Miles City.

The Northwestern Railroader has considerable to say regarding "sink holes" on tracks of northwestern roads. It gives a number of instances where such holes have occurred, on the St. Paul & Duluth, Kansas City, Minneapolis & St. Louis, Northern Pacific, Milwaukee & Northern and other roads in this section. The opinion of railroad men is that these sink holes are the result of a filling over of old lakes and ponds by a mass of weeds and earth which in the course of ages becomes apparently solid, and remains so until disturbed by the continual running of heavy trains or the driving of piles, etc. This opinion is probably correct as in the northern part of the state on the lines of the Duluth & Iron Range and Duluth & Winnipeg this identical process of covering and filling can be seen going on at the present day in all its different stages, from the little lake but partly or entirely covered with moss and leaves to the floating muskeg or the apparently more solid level swamp. The writer has tested many of the latter with poles and found the earth a mere covering over water. On the Duluth & Iron Range Ely extension there has been considerable trouble from this same cause, and a bank twelve feet high and half a mile long sunk to the level of the swamp last spring. A steam shovel and train of gravel cars was half the season filling it. It was this that delayed shipments from the Chandler mine.

Already winter shipments of ore from Marquette mines to Ohio furnaces have begun. The Queen and Buffalo mines are now sending ore to the Hocking Valley furnaces via the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, the first consignments being now on the way. Gondola cars are used to transport the ore, these answering the purpose better in the winter than the regular ore cars. This is the same method in use by the Iron Range road in present shipments.

No property in the West End lays so well, is so convenient, or can be bought on easy terms, as lots in West End addition.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

INSURING DEATH.

An Interesting Case of Graveyard Insurance Worked up by a Duluth Detective.

The Duluth Life Society the Insurer and a Death-Stricken Woman the Insured.

A Suit That Will Probably Never be Brought up for Trial in Court.

About two weeks ago suit was entered in the district court of St. Louis county against the stockholders of the now defunct Duluth Life Society, to recover the insurance on the life of Mrs. Mary Fry, a policy holder in the company. From facts now in the possession of the EVENING HERALD, and which are given below, it is not probable that this suit will ever trouble the stockholders of the company, or that similar suits instituted against other companies, in which the worthy Mrs. Fry was insured, numbering fifteen or twenty, will ever be pushed. It will be remembered that a few years ago an excitement was raised among insurance men in the east regarding the development of what was known as and that developments showed there had been, especially in certain central portions of Pennsylvania, particularly near Harrisburg, a wholesale system of defrauding insurance companies by obtaining risks on the lives of the dead and dying, and by this trade with the grave, of the reaping of a large reward by relatives of the insured. The revolting details of the business were exposed, and it was for the time crushed out, only to reappear on what seemed a convenient opportunity.

An interesting case of this class of fraudulent life insurance was recently discovered and exposed by Mr. J. K. Magie, of this city, who has returned from the east after a two months absence. Soon after the Duluth Life Society had commenced operations two years ago the secretary received applications from Samuel Fry and his wife Mary Fry, of Markelsville, Pa., to become members and receive the protection of insurance. The necessary blanks were forwarded and in due time they were returned properly filled out, with medical examination, and all conditions seemingly complied with, even to the sworn statement of a notary as to the identity of the parties signing the blanks and the recommendation of prominent parties in the Pennsylvania village, among them the postmaster, physician and a capitalist.

In a few months after the acceptance of the risks by the Duluth company, which was no doubt glad to secure business from such a distance, and after the payment of the first assessments, notice was received that Mary Fry had gone the way of all flesh and had of apoplexy. Again the necessary blanks were forwarded and in due time they were returned with all the proofs usually required in such cases. By this time the papers in the case had come under the observation of Mr. Magie, father of the secretary of the society. He studied them carefully and reached the conclusion that it was a mere conspiracy to defraud the society. He was employed to investigate the matter and left Duluth to explore the country around about Markelsville, and interview some of the inhabitants thereabouts.

Markelsville is situated in Perry county, about nine miles from Newport, the nearest railroad point. It is only a cross-roads village containing a postoffice, a village store and a church. Harrisburg, the state capital lies twenty-six miles beyond Newport. Reaching it Mr. Magie now assumed the role of a Pinkerton detective. He did not shave off his whiskers or wear a wig, but he dropped his last name and hailed from Brooklyn. The state library was visited and county histories which related to Markelsville and Perry county explored. Copious notes were made of every name which had appeared in the papers connected with the Fry case and was to be found there or at the office of the adjutant general. Mr. Magie returned to Newport and in a day or two thereafter in the guise of a pension claims agent was perambulating the hills and valleys which lie about Markelsville.

In the meantime he had obtained two or three valuable points confirming his theory of fraud. He knew that Mrs. Fry was also insured for a small amount in the Old People's Insurance company of Elkhart, Ind. at an age which rendered her ineligible to insure in the Duluth Life. He had also received evidence of the existence of an old conspiracy in that neighborhood running back eight years whereby thousands of dollars had been received from insurance companies on the lives of persons who were when insured. The conspiracy usually included the postmaster, a physician, a justice of peace, a capitalist, and a backwoods preacher. It was away from the railroad. The aggregate amount of insurance would be large but placed in small amounts in several companies. It would not pay to send an agent, correspondence with the postmaster, justice of peace or preacher would be entirely satisfactory and thus the insurance would be paid. The patient sometimes refused to die and this led to a different plan of insurance. A dog would be named John Strong, for instance. He would be regularly insured for one or two thousand dollars in a dozen companies or more, and assessments would be uncomplainingly paid for a year or two, and this dog would somehow or other get accidentally drowned while bathing. Mr. Magie, who was little suspected at the time of being an interested party beyond the interest attaching to the story, was fully informed of how $1,500 was collected on one James Crow, a pet black crow belonging to one of the conspirators, which mysteriously sickened and died after being insured in all due form, and for which due death proper certificates of preacher and physician were given.

Samuel Fry, the beneficiary in the case of Mary Fry, deceased, was an old man, apparently about 70 years, but who confessed to 64 years of life. He was a poor, ignorant illiterate man. He knew nothing of any insurance upon his wife, who died November 19, 1887, after being sick nearly a year. He said his wife was a year younger than himself. He could not read or write, neither could his wife. He was then living with a son-in-law in squalor and poverty, at a place called Donnelly's mills about four miles from Markelsville. It was ascertained that a son of Mr. Fry was the real conspirator in the case. The evidence is overwhelming which would send him and one or two others but the insurance companies seem slow to act. Mr. Magie discovered that there was nearly $30,000 placed upon the life of Mrs. Fry in about as many companies, all but $3,000 of which was obtained when she was on her death bed. The son had placed the insurance, signed his father's name, forged evidence, and had been ably assisted by the worthy justice and the honest postmaster, with which two assistant grave robbers he would divide the spoil, saving a little for the upright preacher and the village capitalist and physician.

TO THE PENITENTIARY,

The conspirators seem to have placed their claims in the hands of attorneys who are making a show of prosecution, but when the several insurance companies shall be ready to act, there will no doubt be some lively dancing to jury music in Perry county, and some vigorous cursing of Mr. Magie and the Duluth Life.

MARRIAGE OF RELATIVES.

Its Results Shown in the Infirmities of Offspring.

St. Paul Dispatch: The report of the superintendent of the state institutions at Faribault, made yesterday, contains proof of facts which have a deep social significance. Lineal consanguinity has been established as presenting an uncontrollable barrier to the allowance of intermarriage between persons related to each other as closely as in the first or second degree. But the practice of such intermarriages, or of intermarriages among persons bearing collateral kinship toward each other, are far from being rare, and are openly countenanced and approved by those who choose to ignore the patent facts of physiological science.

The statistics of the report in question show that of twenty-four families represented in the schools, there are from one to six children in each afflicted with deafness, and that in every case the parents were related before marriage. In fifteen of such families whereof the parents were first cousins, there are in all twenty deaf children. Two of such families are represented each by two deaf children, and one family by four such children. Going lower down in the scale of consanguinity, the report shows that there are four deaf children in the institution of three families whose parents were second cousins, and six, out of four families, whose parents were third cousins.

The laws of the several states, in varying measure, recognize the objection to such marriages, and many of them go so far as to debase null and void marriages solemnized among persons within certain prohibited degrees. The prohibition is, however, designed to reach the cases where the marriages are said to take the character of incestuous unions.

Even among those who a few years ago would not be expected to give any attention to such matters, a feeling has grown up that the observance of the laws of natural selection can be safely ignored in the reproduction of the human species. The higher development, physical and spiritual, of the race demands that this tendency should be encouraged and that the choice of marital partners should no longer remain uncontrolled by considerations affecting the physical and moral welfare of offspring.

The kindly and beneficient operations of nature, in overcoming the deliberate or unconscious disregard of her laws in the reproduction of man, is made apparent in this report. As Supt. Noyes points out, in not a single instance has a child entered the deaf and dumb school whose parents were similarly affected, while of the thirty-six children who are the offspring of marriages of the deaf mute graduates, not a single one has inherited the affliction of its parents.

It is generally recognized that the offspring of parents related within the prohibited Leveticai degrees are liable to develop weakness of mind and intellect. Whether they are especially liable to be deprived of certain specific senses as would appear from this report, it is not necessary to inquire. The great physiological fact which should be emphasized is not the laws of nature, which forbid the union in marriage of members of society who are decended within certain degrees from a common ancester, should be enforced in the interest of itself. If this report will aid in the promulgation of this principle, a material gain will result to future generations of men.

THE USE OF WATER.

Some Legal Information Respecting Water Rights—First Principles.

It is a generous principle, that every owner of land upon a natural stream of water has a right to use the water for any reasonable purpose not inconsistent with a similar right in the owners of the land above, below and opposite to him. He may take the water to supply his dwelling, to irrigate his land, or to quench the thirst of his cattle; to use it for manufacturing purposes, such as the supplying of steam boilers or the running of water wheels or other hydraulic works, so long as such use does not sensibly and injuriously affect its volume. But this is a mere privilege running with the land, not a property in the water itself.

Where the stream is small, and does not supply water more than sufficient to answer the wants of the different proprietors living on the stream, none of the proprietors can use the water for either irrigation or manufacturing, but for domestic purposes and watering stock one proprietor will be justified in consuming all the water.

Twenty years' use adverse to the right of another will give the person so using the stream the right to continue the use, regardless of the other's rights.

And as to the division of water, every one who owns land situated upon a stream has the following rights:

1. To the natural flow of the stream.
2. That it shall continue to run in its accustomed channels.
3. That it shall flow upon his land in its usual quantity, natural place and usual height.
4. That it shall flow off his land upon the land of his neighbor below, in accustomed place and at the usual level.

These rights he has as an incident to the property in his land, and he cannot be deprived of it by grant or description.

If any one shall make any change in the natural flow of a stream, to the material injury of any owner situated upon it, or by any interference shall prevent the stream from flowing as it was wont to flow, he is responsible for the damage he may occasion. These rights are subject to the privilege of each one to make a reasonable use of the water upon his own land while it is passing along the same. It matters not what the source of the water may be, whether it be backwater or the flowage of the same, or the water of another stream. Still, the division of a stream may be made by any one, if it be returned to its natural channel before it leaves the premises.—Cor. Legal Adviser.

Advice to the School Teacher.

Dare to ask for what you need, and persist in insisting. Study your committee man. Find the best avenue of approach to his heart and his pocket. Cultivate him, talk with him about school needs. Go among the parents. Cunningly contrive to have them do their preaching. Write up the schools in the local paper and send items about the boys and girls. Plan special afternoons and send out notes of invitation to all the parents and people of the place. The scholars will help you write them, and the work will be a good lesson in correct and courteous letter form.

Get up entertainments for specific needs. People will always come to see their children, and when you get them there, put into the mouth of some little pleader the story of your wants, and before the impression fades send other tots around to collect pay or promises.

It is not poverty or stinginess that makes our country schools the outrageous burial grounds they are, but a habit of indifference, and the American fashion of leaving to our neighbors all interference in troublesome matters. Arouse a public spirit and the work is done. And as no one knows the needs like the teacher, so no one can so well arouse the people to them. Gain the children and keep agitating. Fly these little levers diligently in every home of your district. Don't be in a hurry to leave and secure a better position. Stay, and make your place a desirable position. Make yourself important to your school, and then, courteously but firmly insist on respectable pay. Teachers in country schools can do far more for their own betterment and that of the schools if they will.—Lelia S. Taylor in Rural New Yorker.

A Bad Practice.

In our cities and large towns, especially, children are inclined to sit together on the stone doorsteps, which are often ice cold. This practice needs to be guarded against. Every thoughtful mother will readily see how dangerous it is for her girls.—Youth's Companion.

The Northern Pacific road shows in a report to the State Railroad commission that it has two trains, of five cars in all, heated by steam. It is worthy of note that all these cars are on the Duluth, Superior short line business and that they are the only steam heated trains in the Northwest.

George W. Cable, the celebrated novelist, will give a reading on Dec. 11 in St. Paul. The proceeds will go to swell the guild house building of Christ church. It is to be hoped that Mr. Cable can be induced to come to Duluth, he is known here and those of our people who have heard him will be sure to hear him again, while those who have not heard him will not miss a chance.

The Abbott excursion to West Duluth this morning was a success. Two cars attached to the regular 10:30 train were well filled with nearly 75 of Duluth's business and professional men on their way to the new "Pittsburgh of the West." The recent increase of activity in real estate there and the raise in property made by the Land company, Wednesday, had undoubtedly much to do with the large crowd. One of the cars bore painted banners its full length and the crowd that filled it was a jolly one. Mr. Abbott was congratulated on his enterprise and push in organizing such an affair and it will doubtless result in an inflow of numerous shekles to his pockets. The party returned at about 4:30 this afternoon after abundant time for a look at the improvements going on at West Duluth.

America's Various War Inventions.

Here the first revolving pistols were made. Here the first repeating rifles were invented and used; and today, when all military nations are adopting magazine rifles, the British, after the most careful and protracted trials, have fixed upon an American model as the best. The first machine gun ever made was the earliest pattern of the Gatling, constructed in 1861; a weapon which in improved form is now used the world over, and which in rapidity of fire has never been approached. Another machine gun, the Gardner, also an American invention, and equally of world wide fame, has qualities which make it in some respects even superior to the Gatling; it is of simpler construction, more durable, lighter, easier to work and more accurate. Finally, the Maxim, the latest machine-gun, which, all qualities considered, is as far superior to the Gardner and Gatling as these to the mitrailleuse used by the French in 1870, is the invention of American. Unfortunately, the want of encouragement he received in his own country compelled the inventor to establish his workshops in Europe, as Hotchkiss, the inventor of the revolving cannon, had previously to do.

Almost alone among American war inventions to which government encouragement has been accorded is the pneumatic torpedo gun, first devised by Mr. Mefford, of Ohio, and developed by Capt. Zalinski. It is true that the impossibility of retaining the exclusive use of this weapon for the United States has already been shown, the Germans having constructed a pneumatic gun which is apparently capable of equally efficient work.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Divine's Startling Figures.

A good English divine, going to show the advantage of a life like ours in preference to one like Methuselah, according to the tradition, has made some figures that are startling. He shows that if one of Noah's boys, after the famous flood, had lived to be 600 years old, having his first child at 30 and his last when 470, and allowing for one addition to his family each three years, and supposing them all to live, he could gather about his ample board at the last 147 sons and daughters. With a reasonable degree of prolific bearing, his grandchildren would number between 10,000 and 12,000, and the whole little family would be the two figures added together. This estimate is moderate, if monogamy alone be considered. But under a polygamous system the figures would swell enormously. Some of the consequences possible under such a state of affairs are appalling. —Globe-Democrat.

MUST WE EAT MEAT?

MAN SHOULD NOT LIVE BY VEGETABLES ALONE.

So Says a Physician of Experience — A Meat Diet Considered Best for Nervous Persons—Eating Too Little—The Vegetarian Idea.

"I am disposed to exclude vegetables," said a physician of experience, "with the exception of cereals and fruit, from the diet of nervous persons. Why? First, because animal food is more nutritious to the nervous system and to the body generally than vegetable. It has all the essential elements for the formation of the tissues of the body and is easily digested. It appears to be the natural food of human beings. It seems possible for man to exist on it alone in any climate and continue in a normal condition of health. The first food taken by man—milk—is strictly an animal substance. It contains all the elements necessary to the growth of the human body and to its maintenance in a state of health. This cannot be said of any one article of vegetable food. Then, the nervous system consists largely of fat. This substance must be supplied in some form or other in order that the brain and other nerve structures shall be properly nourished. If a person uses up his brain faster than he makes it he soon becomes nervous and irritable. If he does not assimilate enough food to supply its demands his mind is sure to become weak.

"The healthiest and strongest individuals, even, should eat a far greater proportion of meat than of vegetable food. Beef should be taken as the standard meat. It answers every purpose of the system. Veal and pork are not as easily digested. Pork, so far as its composition goes, is an excellent food for nervous persons, but it is not readily digested. Yet in the army we used to think nothing better for the wounded men than bacon. As a rule salt meat is not adapted to the requirements of the nervous individual, as nutritious juices to a great extent go into the brine.

FLESH OF WILD BIRDS.

"The flesh of wild birds is more tender and more readily digested than that of domestic ones. This is accounted for by the greater amount of exercise they take, thereby renewing their flesh more rapidly and making it younger than that of birds which live a more quiet life. This is a suggestion that might be of benefit to women of sedentary habits who are desirous of prolonging an appearance of youth. Fish of all kinds is good food for the nervously inclined. Raw eggs, contrary to general opinion, are not as digestable as those that have been cooked.

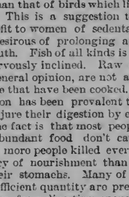

"A notion has been prevalent that many persons injure their digestion by eating too much. The fact is that most people in this land of abundant food don't eat enough. There are more people killed every year by insufficiency of nourishment than by overloading their stomachs. Many of these who do eat a sufficient quantity are prevented by some disease from digesting enough for the economy of their systems. The very first thing for any one to do who has exhausted himself by mental work, or who has been born week and irritable is to furnish his brain with sufficient nourishment to either repair the damage it has sustained or to build it up into a strong, healthy condition. People in this condition usually suffer from nervous dyspepsia. Their stomachs are unable to perform the labor of assimilation. Owing to the deficient nerve power of the individual the food lies in the stomach unacted upon by the gastric juice because there is none or the quantity is insufficient to have any power. Food, instead of helping to renew the body, and the nervous system with the rest, undergoes fermentation, and the body and brain it should nourish may starve. The person is in a worse state than if the food had not been taken, for the fermentation generates acids and gas.

FOR NERVOUS INDIVIDUALS.

"Nervous individuals may derive all the fat they need from sugar and starch. It is better, however, for those with weak digestive organs, or whose nerves are in a highly sensitive state, to get it from the animal kingdom than to compel their enfeebled stomachs, intestines and pancreas to create it out of these articles. Good bread, sweet butter and meat are the best foods for the nerves. People troubled with insomnia, nervous starting from sleep and sensations of falling can often be cured by limiting themselves to a diet of milk alone for a time. An adult should take a pint for a meal and take four meals daily. People with weakened nerves require usually a larger quantity of water than those whose brains and nerves are strong. It aids in the digestion of food by making it soluble and seems to have a direct tonic effect. Hot water is relaxing to the stomach.

"With proper eating and drinking we should have fewer broken down, nervous wrecks and far more vigorous intellects. The present human species cannot eliminate flesh from its food and amount to a row of pins. The fancy that nothing vegetable should be eaten is apt to overtake every one somewhere in life. It is due to some disorganization, and usually passes away with the disturbance that created it. This fancy is more apt to assail the young than the middle aged, and females more frequently than males. A nervous, sickly girl of nineteen was put under my care about nine months ago. I found she had imbibed the vegetarian notion and practiced it about a year. I limited her diet to so much meat per meal and a small quantity of fruit and bread, with a pint of milk. She doesn't look like the same girl now. All that absurd belief in a strict vegetable diet has left her with her growth of strength and nerve forever."—Chicago Herald.

Mother and New Born Babe.

Agitation or excitement to the mother acts directly and speedily upon the child. The bond between them is so close that the baby feels the effect of mental emotion with a rapidity astonishing to those who have not made a study of the nearness of the connection. A case in point was that of a young mother whose new born baby was apparently in perfect condition until it was three days old. It had nursed without trouble until that time, and although a tiny creature, bade fair to do well. On the morning of the fourth day there came a batch of letters to the mother, and as they were apparently chiefly congratulatory, she was permitted to open and read them. Among them was one from a former intimate friend. It was written in ignorance of the baby's birth, and accused the young matron in cutting terms of forgetfulness and neglect of her old friends, and of a variety of other shortcomings.

Even in ordinary circumstances such an epistle would have produced a painful impression, but coming at the time that it did, and to one whose strength of body and nerve had been weakened by a recent strain, the sequences were much more serious. When the hysterical agitation caused by the note had been calmed, there remained a feverishness and mental disturbance from which the poor baby was to suffer. Within a few hours it sickened, and then for days lay between life and death, refusing to nurse. Those who knew the facts in the case without hesitation imputed the child's ill health and its subsequent sickly infancy to this first blow, received while it was too young to throw off the results, as an older or stronger babe might have done.—Christine Terhune Herrick in Harper's Bazar.

The Real "Woman Problem."

Recognizing heredity as the distinctive attribute of the female sex, it becomes clear that it must be from the steady advance of woman rather than from the uncertain fluctuations of man that the sure and solid progress of the future is to come. The attempt to move the whole race forward by elevating the sex that represents the principle of instability has long enough been tried. The many cases of superior men the sons of superior mothers, coupled with the many more cases of degenerate sons of superior sires, have taught us over and over again that the way to civilize the race is to civilize woman. And now, thanks to modern biologic science, we see why this is so.

Woman is the unchanging trunk of the great genealogic tree, while man, with all his vaunted superiority, is but a branch, a grafted scion, as it were, whose acquired qualities die with the individual, while those of woman are handed on to futurity. Woman is the race, and the race can be raised up only as she is raised up. There is no fixed rule by which nature has intended that one sex should excel the other, any more than there is any fixed point beyond which either cannot further develop. Nature has no intentions, and evolution has no limits. True science teaches that the education of woman is the only sure road to the evolution of man.—Professor Lester F. Ward in The Forum.

HER MAJESTY'S CORSET!

3 reasons why every lady in Duluth should purchase one of Her Majesty's Corsets.

FIRST—It is the only Corset ever made that will reduce the SIZE and INCREASE the LENGTH of the WAIST of FLESHY LADIES without injurious tight lacing. It is also the only ABDOMINAL and SPINAL supporter in existence.

SECOND—It is proof against PERSPIRATION and MOISTURE and will neither corrode nor soil the Underwear, stretch at the waist, NOR DO THE BONES MOVE OR COME OUT IN WEAR.

THIRD—IT ALWAYS RETAINS ITS ORIGINAL SHAPE never comforming to the form of the wearer. It is invaluable to young ladies, because it REMOVES and PREVENTS stooping and round shoulders. In this respect it will be found beneficial to all ladies as it aids the wearer to assume an erect and healthful position in walking or riding.

In relation to this CORSET we wish to state that we have had them thoroughly tested and will say they merit a trial from every lady who experiences difficulties in securing a SATISFACTORY CORSET. WE HAVE EXCLUSIVE CONTROL FOR SALE OF THEM.

Very Respectfully,

Silberstein & Bondy

A GREAT FIRE.

The Globe Iron Works of Cleveland Loses $1,000.000 Worth of Shipbuilding Machinery.

DETECTIVES DON'T LIKE THE REWARD

The $50,000 Reward Offered for Tascott Grieves Chicago Detectives—A Dust Explosion.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 8.—The quarters of the large iron shipbuilding plant of the Globe Iron works on West river street, in this city, was destroyed by fire this morning. The burned portion of the shipyard was 7,000 feet in length by 50 feet in width. It contained $1,000,000 worth of valuable machinery.

DON'T LIKE IT.

And are Evidently Afraid the Increased Reward Will Cause Some Amateur to Get Tascott.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—The police authorities are anything but pleased with the action of Mrs. Snell in increasing the reward for the capture of Tascott, the supposed murderer of Millionaire Snell, from $20,000 to $50,000. They say that the only result of this remarkable offer will be to put an army of amateur sleuths on a thousand and one trails and to multiply the arrests of supposed Tascotts all over the country, thus causing inconvenience and notoriety to many innocent men. Up to the present time over one hundred supposed Tascotts have been arrested in one part of the country or another and fully a thousand letters containing theories, advice, suggestions and alleged clues have been received at the police department. There is no concealing the fact that the authorities are more than chagrined at their failure to secure traces of the youthful murderer, and that they fear the reward offered will induce some of the experienced detective agencies to go to work on the case. An intimate friend of the Snell family says that money would be no object if the murderer could only be brought to justice and that Mrs. Snell would readily pay $75,000 or even a round $100,000 to secure that end.

UNCLE SAM OWNS IT.

The Indian Territory Legislature Leases Property Which Belongs to the United States.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 8.—Advices from Indian territory say that the interior department has notified the Cherokees that the Cherokee strip is the property of the United States and that the Indians have no right to lease it. The strip contains 6,000,000 acres of grazing land. On Thursday the Cherokee legislature passed a bill leasing the strip to a stock syndicate at $200,000 yearly for five years. Principal Chief Mayes has not yet signed the bill. The matter has caused a sensation.

WAS IT CROOKED?

Some New Facts Relative to the Race Between the Dauntless and the Coronet.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The great transatlantic yacht race between the keel schooner Coronet and the Dauntless now has passed into history. Even at this late date, however, startling facts have leaked out that throw an entirely new light upon the victory that commanded the admiration of the world. When the copper sheathing of the Dauntless was stripped off last summer for the first time since her defeat in March, 1887, an auger hole one inch in diameter was discovered on each side of her stem. Whether these holes were the result of carelessness or the intentional malice of some inhuman enemy will probably remain a mystery.

BROKE HIS JAW.

A Fight on Long Island This Morning Declared a Draw.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Joe Glassey, of this city, and Charley McGinnis, of Brooklyn, fought ten rounds on Long Island at an early hour this morning. The affair was witnessed by a small crowd, each of whom paid five dollars for the privilege. The ring was pitched in the loft of a vacant barn. McGinnis, who is a novice, had his jaw broken in the first round by a sledge-hammer blow from Glassey's right. After a severe struggle in the last round the spectators with one accord demanded that the fight be declared a draw which was acceded to by the referee.

Wesley's Anniversary.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The present year marks the one hundreth anniversary of the death of Charles Wesley, one of the most eminent of theologians, poets and hymnists, and the founder of the Wesleyan denomination. Some time ago a committee in London suggested that the event should be observed tomorrow throughout the Christian world and the proposition was seconded by a committee in this city. Large numbers of divines in all parts of the country have entered into the spirit of the movement, and tomorrow in thousands of American churches there will be memorial praise meetings combined with sermons upon the use, worth and influence of Christian song.

An Interesting Race.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—The second regiment armory will be the scene of an interesting athletic event this afternoon and evening in the shape of a foot race between that much abused class, the messenger boys Representatives of all the telegraph and messenger companies have entered and some exciting contests for the numerous handsome prizes are anticipated.

George Coming Back.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Henry George sailed for New York on the Etruria today. He is eminently well pleased with his English reception and the results accomplished.

THE STREET CAR COMPANY.

ITS EXPENDITURE AND IMPROVEMENTS FOR THE PAST YEAR—NEXT YEAR'S EXTENSIONS.

During the past year the Duluth Street Railway company has spent a total of $45,500 in building and improvements, as against a like total of $16,000 in 1887. Included in this year's business has been $37,000 for new tracks through the paved portion of Superior street, the tracks having been paved with granite blocks, and the tracks built on a better principle, with the space between them widened a foot. Besides this, extensions have been made at the west end of track at a cost of $2,000, and $1,500 has been spent in improvements to the barn, and additional live stock to the extent of $5,000 has been purchased.

The next year the company will extend its tracks both east and west, perhaps half a dozen blocks, and will make other improvements, keeping it abreast with the needs of Duluth.

DUST EXPLOSIONS

Another Mill Dust Explosion this Time in Chicago by Which Five are Injured.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—A slight fire in the Northwestern Furniture company's factory this morning, resulted in the explosion of mill dust, by which five firemen were injured, two of them dangerously, and perhaps fatally. The mill was not supposed to be in the slightest danger from dust explosion but the fire communicated itself to a small room and flashed up at once.

A RAILROAD ROW.

There is One Imminent Regarding the Payment of Commissions on Tickets.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Dec. 8.—Another big fight among the railroads is likely to develop regarding the paying of commissions on tickets. A meeting of the passenger department of the Central traffic association will be held in Chicago next Tuesday and the most important business that is to come before the meeting is the paying of commissions.

WEST DULUTH.

Eiler's new store building on Central avenue is nearly completed.

A station agent will be placed at the Grassy Point depot next week. This will be the principal billing station in town.

The Central avenue real estate excitement still continues, and prices are going higher. Several new buildings are contemplated for spring.

The trains to West Duluth are crowded every day and a petition is being circulated to change the time again by putting on more trains to accomodate the vast number of people going to the new Pittsburgh.

The main building of the car works is now being constructed. This is to be a monumoth structure, 567 feet long and over 100 feet wide. Work on the gas house and the conductors is being pushed rapidly, and the brick work is nearly completed.

Blocks 156, 157 and 158, across the track from the depot are to be used by the hardwood finishing factory which will commence to break ground at once. There are other manufactories to be located here next spring which will cause some surprise to even the most enthusiastic West Duluthian.

The excursion given yesterday by Chas. T. Abbott was a success in every particular. Many of the business men in the party made their first trip to the new town and they were surprised at the improvements already made and the prospects for the future. A good dinner was served by landlord Phillips and the delegations seemed to have thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Chas. T. Abbott the originator of the excursion sold a large number of lots and is entitled to much credit for giving the people an opportunity to see the town.

A RUSSIAN LOAN.

A New Russian Loan Taken Largely by Frenchmen.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. S.—The new Russian loan was issued to-day and although some dissapointment is expressed in financial circles that American financiers have refused to have anything to do with the issue, the demands from London, Berlin and Paris have given them considerable satisfaction. It is a notable fact that France is the heaviest purchaser and that the Paris bankers have bought all kinds of Russian securities with which the Germans have been loading the market of late. The present loan is to be devoted solely to the convention of the Russian 1877 bonds and as a result the quotations for roubles show a considerable advance.

KILRAIN HAPPY.

He Wants to Meet Sullivan But Awaits Advice From Richard K. Fox.

BOSTON, Dec. 8.—Jake Kilrain, who is in this city, having been shown John L. Sullivan's challenge to fight for $10.000 a side, expresses himself delighted at Sullivan's action and says he would not hesitate a moment in accepting it but he must hear first from Mr. Fox, his backer, to whom he has telegraphed for advice on the subject.

TARIFF CHANGES.

The Western Classification Makes Many Changes.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—The western classification commission which has been in session in this city for the last two days, has completed its work. Several hundred changes in classification were made, most of them of minor importance. The most important were, petroleum and its product in carloads are taken out of the regular classification and are provided for by commodity tariff. The same action was taken regarding hard lumber.

THEY TRESPASSED.

A Party of Kansas Business Men Arrested for Hunting in Indian Territory.

TOPEKA, Dec. 8.—Two weeks ago twenty of the leading business men in Coldwater went down into the Indian Territory on a hunting expedition. Word has been received here that the whole party has been captured near Camp Supply and are now awaiting transportation to Wichita where they will be held to answer the charge of trespassing in the Indian Territory.

The Irish Question.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Up to a late hour last night the special committee of the house of commons had failed to come to an agreement upon the question as to whether the Irish authorities were to blame for failing to give proper instructions to the constable who arrested Mr. Sheedy within the precincts of the house of commons. Another session is being held today. The committee has already decided that the act was a breach of privilege, but the conservative members, inspired by Secretary Balfour, are making a vigorous endeavour to shield the Irish authorities, while the Irish members are just as determined that the blame shall be placed where it properly belongs.

ON 'CHANGE

A MARKET OF UNEXAMPLED DULLNESS, AND TRADING VERY QUIET WITH NO DISPOSITION TO SELL.

The market has been wonderfully dull, continually going from bad to worse. Secretary Welles says in his circular today: It is pretty tough work on [illegible] these days to write anything [illegible] in the way of news, in regard to the market. The fact that our stock of wheat in store is only abo[illegible] 600,000 bushels all told, (about one half of which is of our contract grade (is an old story, of which every one at all posted on the situation has known for several weeks. There was no disposition on the part of any one to do anything. The market opened at ½c off from yesterday's close on May wheat. Sales of two five thousand bushel lots, during the first half hour constituted the whole business up to noon. The last hour and a quarter were occupied in disposing of four cars of spot wheat, and another 5,000 lot of May wheat at ½ cent advance. The close was easy and dull, with the advance lost, and practically, at the opening quotations. Cash wheat was dull, No. 1 hard nominal at 122½, No. 1 northern 108, No. 2 northern 87c. December wheat closed nominally at 124. May wheat sales 128 and at 128½, closed with buyers at 128.

CURB NOTES

Russia is exporting wheat at the rate of about 3,000,000 bushels per week.

A dispatch from Minneapolis stated that the mills that had shut down were about to renew operations.

A Chicago wheat broker interviewing French houses says they are bullish on the situation. They expect no immediate fluctuations of moment, although the situation is strong and favorable to advanced prices, which they thought would come with the export demand, to commence probably about February 1. The leading Parisian grain houses, including Waller Bros. and Abel Rey, have agencies throughout Europe, and are particularly well posted on the condition of Russian markets. So these views cannot be considered as being with other than general European concerns.

BATES ALL RIGHT.

His Mother Says He Has Gone East on the Advice of a Physician.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Mrs. Bates, mother of Frank Bates, whose name has been connected with a rumor to the effect that "Old Hutch" was loser to the extent of $20,000 through the transaction and subsequent flight of one of his brokers, asserts that there is no truth in the report. Her son, she says, is in New York city, having gone east a week ago, on the advice of a physician for a short rest. Mrs. Bates says the rumors were started by an enemy of her son.

The Minneapolis Journal yesterday published a statement to the effect that one of the gloves used by Dick Moore, of St. Paul, in his fight with Paddy Dunn, of Grand Rapids, was loaded with some heavy substance, which inflicted a wound that could not have been received from the use of an eight ounce glove. The blow was said to be the first and only right hand blow struck by Moore, and Dunn fell to the floor unconscious, the blood streaming from a four inch wound on the left side of the head. Dunn has now challenged Moore to fight at any other place than the Comique, Moore to receive the entire receipts of the house if he can stay six rounds.

Frank Murphy, of Philadelphia, "challenges Wair, Warren, or any other man in the world at even weight of established reputation for a finish fight for $1,000 a side."

Mitchell says he came to this country to give exhibitions with Kilrain, and that it will not pay him to arrange a contest with Jack Dempsey.

Dominick McCaffrey has challenged Sullivan to a bare knuckle fight, London rules, for $2,000 a side.

Jake Gaudaur's backers offer to match their man against O'Connor for a race in San Francisco next March.

THE DAY IN THE CITY.

The building occupied by the Wells Stone Mercantile company will be enlarged next year.

Herring fishing has begun, and the toothsome little fish are now plenty in the markets.

Contractor Foley reports tracklaying as progressing rapidly and well on the Duluth & Winnipeg road.

Christmas trade is already beginning at Duluth stores, and merchants are looking anxiously for cold weather and snow. The meat markets are also anxious for cold.

It's adding insult to injury when a Sheeny will steal the Brussels carpet of the city detective and make such good bidding as not to be discovered and all in broad daylight, but this is just what was done the other day.

The Duluth Roller mill has put on the streets a fine double delivery wagon and is beginning to push its flour for local sale. Hitherto it has worked entirely on export trade.

Lawyer Cotton was thrown from a buggy last night on West Superior street and considerably hurt.

Three drunks, all of whom paid fines, occupied the attention of the police court this morning. One of them, Peter Johnson, had a knife cut on his left wrist nearly an inch long and very deep, but as he could not recollect any affray he had been in or any stab and was as surprised as the court on finding it, no complaint was made.

PERSONAL MENTION.

E. P. Emerson left this noon for his home after a several days visit in Duluth.

Major Quinn, U. S. A., leaves Sunday on his 25 days leave of absence. He will visit Cincinnati, his old home.

Alderman Costello returned last night from his eastern trip, where he went to attend the funeral of his mother.

Geo. M. Kenyon, traveling passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific railway, is in Duluth today looking up business for his road.

George S. Shaw, of the Cloquet Lumber company, came down from Cloquet with his wife yesterday. He states that his company has thirty million of lumber now on hand.

Young George Gibson, agent at West Duluth for Morrison & Macfarlane, is probably the youngest real estate seller in Duluth; and he is a hustler equal to the best of them when in working condition.

George McKenzie, who left Duluth some weeks ago to take a lucrative position at Johnstown, Pennsylvania, will return this evening. He has been ill during his entire stay at Johnstown, and physicians told him the best thing he could do would be to get back to the bracing climate of Duluth. He is too small for his Duluth clothes by just 17 pounds, but expects to regain that at once.

We keep nothing but the finest stock of Diamonds. Watches and Jewelry of all descriptions. Montague & Co. 319 W. Superior street. Opposite St. Louis hotel.

Had Nothing to Say.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Patrick Molloy, who refused to obey a subpoena of the Times to give evidence before the Parnell commission and who was arrested and brought from Dublin under escort of the police, was placed in the witness box when the commission assembled today. Attorney General Alicster for the Times examined him at length but did not succeed in extracting a tittle of evidence.

The Missouri Strike.

[illegible] Dec. 7.—Adjutant General [illegible] St. Louis this morning for the scene of the labor disturbance at the mining town of Bevier, Mo., in response to telegraphic orders from Gov. Morehouse. Gen. Jamieson stated to the Associated Press reporter that the militia would not be called out unless it was found absolutely necessary to take such a step.

Will Push the Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The house committee on Pacific roads held a meeting this morning and decided to press the consideration of the Pacific railway funding bill by the house at as early a day as possible. The committee will on Monday, offer a resolution setting certain days for consideration of the bill.

A Raffle Ends in a Row.

MASON CITY, Iowa, Dec. 7.—A drunken row which almost ended in a riot, occurred near Rockwell last night. At a turkey raffle at Charles Zerritt's place, Zerritt was pounded and cut so badly that his recovery is doubtful. One arrest has been made, and others will follow.

The House Will Meet Monday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—It was ordered that when the house adjourn today it be to meet on Monday next.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DULUTH.

Proctor Knott is an aspirant for a position on the civil service reform commission. If Mr. Knott would prove as successful as a civil service reformer as he has as the chief mogul in the Duluth advertising bureau, his appointment is greatly to be desired.

Senator Sabin has been summoned to a conference with Gen. Harrison. Perhaps Minnesota will have a place in the cabinet after all, or what is more likely, the next president may be anxious to get a few pointers from Minnesota's senator as to the best way of capturing a granger legislature.

A man was arrested in Washington yesterday because he declared that he had been elected president, and desired to notify President Cleveland of the fact. He is called a crank. He might be called a "pretender," if the word does not shock the ears of people living in this republic. Anglomaniacs will readily adopt this suggestion.

C. A. Gilman, from force of habit, has been lingering around the Merchants hotel lobby in St. Paul, occasionally mingling with the politicians. He told a reporter that he was ont of politics. The people of Minnesota have known this ever since he made his speech at St. Cloud denouncing William R. Merriam, the Republican candidate for governor.

Gen. Alger, since entering the campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, has grown wonderfully in the estimation of the American people. He has been one of the most prominent and active leaders in the campaign and if any one is entitled to any consideration at the hands of the incoming administration it is Michigan's favorite son. But it is said he does not want a thing. His aspiration is to become president and he is already preparing himself for the campaign of 1892. If reports are to be credited he will have no cabinet position in his.

Many people are much worried about Mr. Blaine's chances for a cabinet position. Mr. Blaine is the least troubled of any of them. He is as quiet on the subject as Gen. Harrison himself. Probably the two gentlemen who are most interested in the matter have arrived at an understanding which will be made known to the public in due time. In the mean time Mr. Blaine's friends should remain as calm as possible. If their favorite does not occupy the chair provided by Uncle Sam for the secretary of state he will still be a bigger man than Grover Cleveland and that ought to satisfy anybody.

Col. John L. Sullivan, Boston's eminent expounder of fistic science, is better now. He feels that the peculiar power of which he was once possessed, and which was nearly destroyed by bad whiskey, is his again. Contrary to the opinions of would be rivals he is not knocked out. He is on earth where he proposes to remain until he has silenced every man of them who lays any claim to being a champion. However, none of them are now saying a word They are not so anxious to fight as they were. There is only one man in the country who will accept a challenge from him and that is Duluth's Paddy McDonald and he never lost an opportunity to get slugged no matter who wanted to do the job. Come to Duluth, Mr. Sullivan, and you will find a man who is willing to tackle you at least one round, and just as many more as circumstances will permit.

Duluth is a good town and it is going to be a better one. It would be considered the rankest kind of heresy for anyone to dispute this proposition. However the most substantial signs of rapid growth are just commencing to make themselves apparent. A view of the city from the hill-top will show many new smoke stacks pointing skyward and many more about to assume that position. These structures sending forth their volumes of smoke indicate activity. They show that something is being produced and cities that are producers are always prosperous. Duluth has taken the most wonderful strides in the direction of manufacturing of any city in the country. This year's work has insured her future if it was not established before. Hereafter no one can call Duluth a "summer" town. The hum of industry will be just as loud in the winter as in any other season. The interests are so diversified that stagnation in any one branch cannot check the general progress. Duluth, although considered a city of remarkable growth, has just commenced to grow.

TWO GRAND PRODUCTIONS.

HANDSOME DOWNING AS SPARTACUS AND MARC ANTHONY.

The most important new feature of the dramatic season will probably be the production of "The Gladiator," under the management of Mr. Joseph H. Mack, who was long connected with Col. J. H. Haverly's theatrical enterprises. Mr. Mack bought the play from the estate of the lamented John McCullough, two years ago and immediately thereafter received letters of hearty congratulation from Col. Haverly and Capt. W. M. Connor, McCullough's manager. Then Mr. Robert Downing was engaged to take the part of Spartacus. He is a large, handsome man of robust physique, 32 years old, and an actor of pronounced talent. At different times, he has supported John McCullough, Joseph Jefferson and Mary Anderson, being leading man of the last named until her departure for Europe.

"GLADIATOR."

The play will be superbly staged, careful attention being paid to spectacular effect and historical accuracy. It will be mounted on a scale of magnificence paralleling the memorable productions of Henry Irving and Robson & Crane. Several scenes in tragedy will be particularly beautiful and realistic. One represents a stately street in Rome, with triumphal arches standing out in relief. The other is a realistic view of a Roman military camp, with the Bay of Naples for the background, and in the distance Mt. Vesuvius in a state of eruption. Some theatre managers, who got glimpses of these paintings before they were finished, tried to buy them for act-drops. The costuming will be another striking feature of the production, and will include the Roman armor used at the Cincinnati musical festival.

The arena scene will have a thrilling interest, and several gladiatorial contests will take place previous to the grand combat, in which Mr. Downing will fight with the well known athelete, Louis Hendricks. A notable feature of the engagement, will be the powerful supporting company which Mr. Mack has engaged for his star. To those who are acquainted with things theatrical, the coming of a company comprising such eminent artistes as Harry Meredith, Chas. Hermann, Eugenie Blair and Helen Tracy in support to a star like Downing, cannot but fail to prove particularly interesting. The engagement promises to be one of the swell events of the season also, and several theater parties are being formed among the elite.

RAIL NOTES.

One of the new passenger locomotives of the Eastern railway of Minnesota has just been set up at the Manitoba shops in St. Paul, and was taken out on Wednesday for a trial. She is 18x24 cylinders, has 63in. drivers, Krupp steel tires, and steel truck and tender wheels with crucible steel tires. There is no extension front—straight stack with cove finished top. The equipment includes the Westinghouse driver and train brakes, Nathan sight feed lubricator, number 8 Monitor injector and one Friedmann non lifting injector. Both the injectors are placed on the right side of the cab so that they are under the control of the engineer at all times. The locomotive was built by the Rogers Works of Patterson, New Jersey, and is one of the eighteen ordered by the Eastern from that company.

The excursion on the first twenty-five miles of track on the Duluth, Red Wing & South shore road took place from Red Wing today. There was a very large party, including aldermen, city officials and prominent business men of Red Wing. The Duluth delegation was not on hand.

Telephone Exchange.

During a recent visit to the Telephone Exchange of this city, the reporter met Mrs. J. D. Rogers. The lady is well known here, having come from Minneapolis some five years ago to cast her lot in with the citizens of the Zenith city. In conversation she said this was the finest winter weather she has seen since her arrival and remarked that it would probably have been better for her if she had seen more just like it.

And in explanation of that, she said that she had always enjoyed good health up to the time of coming here. That the first winter here she took a severe cold that settled in the head, not bothering her much in the throat, that she was unsuccessful in getting rid of it and after trying for two years to get rid of her cold she found that she had catarrh and then commenced a new doctoring for that. That she was under treatment for catarrh with three physicians who assured her on the start that they could easily cure her, but that she did not receive the least benefit from the treatment and that she became discouraged and concluded there was no help for her, as she kept getting worse all the time. This summer she was feeling very bad, she had no ambition at all and felt more like keeping her bed than going around, her ears bothered her with ringing some of the time. She commenced to feel that something must be done or she could not live. So having seen the testimonies of many parties in the city who were treated with success by Dr. Cosman. She concluded to go and see him.

Well, what success had you?

Why the very best imaginable. I went to see Dr. Cosman, four months ago, and have been under his care ever since, and I must say that the treatment has exceeded my most sanguine expectations, for to tell the truth, I had little idea that I could be helped, and I feel that there is no need for any person to despair of getting relief, after my case, for I think that I was the worst case the doctor ever had, and I would recommend any person suffering with chronic troubles to go and see Dr. Cosman.

Mrs. Rogers resides at Tenth avenue and Fourth street west.

A POSITIVE CURE
FOR SKIN DISEASES

Erysipelas, or St. Anthony's Fire
Is the result of an impure condition of the blood, and for a cure it depends, primarily, upon the condition of the stomach, liver and kidneys, and secondarily upon the condition of the blood as manufactured by these organs.

HIBBARD'S RHEUMATIC SYRUP,
Containing POKE, BURDOCK, MANDRAKE, CULVERS ROOT, and others of the best Blood Remedies, very carefully and scientifically compounded, strikes at the root of the evil and eradicates the disease, whether of a Scrofulous, Rheumatic or Syphilitic Taint. It is a never failing remedy.

Six weeks since I was attacked with Erysipelas; my eyes were nearly closed, my head and face terribly inflamed. Two bottles of Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup cured me. B. F. KNAPP, Wolcott, N. Y.

MY little boy has been troubled with a severe type of Skin Disease, with intense itching and burning, which constantly grew worse until his face was covered with scabs. Seeing Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup advertised to cure skin and blood diseases, we tried it, and today our child's skin is as clear and smooth as ever. We believe Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup is a positive cure for Skin and Blood Diseases. MRS. EDMUND PALMER, 88 Summit St., Rochester, N. Y.

SALT RHEUM
I have been troubled with Rheumatism for years, and Salt Rheum has been nearly all over my body. I have used nearly every remedy but found no relief except from Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup. I could not lie in bed at night. Have taken ten bottles, and am now a well man. It is truly a great blood purifier. NELSON MOODY,
Walcott, N. Y.

A Whole Family Cured
ALPENA, Mich., March 1, 1887.
My wife, and babe fourteen months old, and boy five years old, have suffered with Scrofula or King's Evil, it being hereditary. They would at times, break out in sores. I have employed the best physicians, without the least benefit. We have used fourteen bottles of Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup, and to my astonishment we are all well. Words cannot describe how highly we value your medicine.

THE SOCIAL WHIRL

How the Pleasure-Seeking People of Duluth Have Been Entertained This Week.

EVENTS FOR CHURCH IMPROVEMENTS

Movements of People in Social Circles —Happenings in Society for the Past Week.

Of course the social event in Duluth is the Kitchi Gammi party, and that takes place next Tuesday evening. Several hundred invitations have been issued to people in Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis and other cities and a great number have been accepted for the Kitchi Gammi and its parties are well known beyond the bounds of Minnesota. There will be a large attendance from St. Paul. As usual the Club's music will be furnished by Danz' band and Dorner, of Minneapolis, will decorate and cater. The elegant rooms of the club have lately been redecorated and beautifully refitted and are even handsomer than before. They will be open to the invited for the first time in a year and the party is and has been the talked of event for weeks. It is under charge of the executive committee of the society and cannot fail of being an exceedingly enjoyable affair.

The tradesmen's carnival given by the Friends in Council of the Congregational church Tuesday and Wednesday evening was a most brilliant success on both evenings. Long before the hour announced for the procession of the old dining room of the St. Louis was crowded to suffocation. About 200 ladies, 100 in number, filed down the short stairway and performed several marching evolutions in single file through the dense crowd in the room. Each lady carried a banner with the name of some firm on it, and the majority were attired in appropriate costumes. The ladies representing the different dry goods stores were richly attired in silks and satins, the jewelers were covered with a blaze of jewels, while the representatives of furnitures and grocers were decorated with fruits, and in some instances represented Indian princesses. Many of the costumes and banners were extremely beautiful and rich. After the parade supper was served by the Ladies Aid society, and the drill took place. The evolutions were extremely beautiful and complicated, and were executed with precision. The net proceeds of the two evenings were about $100.

The pipe organ of the Congregational church is on the way, and will be here next week. The following is its specification and compass:

Compass of manuales 58 notes.
Compass of pedals 27 notes.

I. Manuale great—
1. 16 feet bourdon.
2. 16 feet bourdon bass, 58 pipes.
3. 8 feet open diapason, 58 pipes.
4. 8 feet dulciana, 58 pipes.
5. 8 feet melodia, 58 pipes.
6. 4 feet octave, 58 pipes.
7. 4 feet flute d'amour, 58 pipes.
8. 3 feet twelfth, 58 pipes.
9. 2 feet fifteenth, 58 pipes.
10. 8 feet trumpet, 58 pipes.

II. Manuale, swell—
11. 8 feet open diapason, 58 pipes.
12. 8 feet salicional, 58 pipes.
13. 8 feet stopped diapason, 58 pipes.
14. 4 feet flute harmonique, 58 pipes.
15. 4 feet violin, 58 pipes.
16. 2 feet dautino, 58 pipes.
17. 8 feet oboe.
18. 8 feet bassoon, 58 pipes.

Pedale—
19. 16 feet open diapason, 27 pipes.
20. 16 feet bourdon.

The mechanical registers and pedal movements are very full and complete. A capitubition shows the great organ to have 10 stops and 522 pipes, the swell organ 8 stops and 406 pipes, and the pedal organ 2 stops and 54 pipes, while the mechanical stops are 5 and the pedal movements 4, making a total of 982 pipes and 25 stops.

The fair given by the ladies of the Episcopal mission in Sven hall, Thursday and Friday evenings was a pleasant success. A literary program was given which proved entertaining. A large number of tickets were sold and there was a large attendance. The following is the program for the first evening:

Instrumental solo.....Mrs. McKindley
Reading.....J. A. Scott
Solo.....Miss Rainey
Tableau "Grind-stone".....
Mrs. Marshall, Mr. J. Davis and Master Mann Swanstrom.
Solo.....Miss Rossiter
Madame Jarley's wax works.
Solo.....Miss Clippinger
Recitation.....Miss Kennebrook
Tableau "Returning from the Vineyard"
Mrs. G. W. Davis and Misses Patinson and Whittaker.
Solo.....Miss Rainey

The second evening another interesting program was carried out, a feature of which was the "See Saw" of the Sabbath school children, and the Mission was most successful.

Geo. W. Cable, the celebrated novelist, will give a reading on Dec. 11 in St. Paul. It is to be hoped that Mr. Cable can be induced to come to Duluth, he is known here and those of our people who have heard him will be sure to hear him again, while those who have not heard him will not miss a chance of doing so this time. Should Mr. Cable come Duluth will be well supplied with lecture courses and readers for the winter. As noted last week Rev. Joseph Cook, Albion W. Tourgee and Frank Beard will furnish an entertaining and instructive course in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Elliott, of Duluth, are visiting friends in Marquette.

Dr. Harrison, recently made mayor of Ashland spent a day in Duluth this week.

Judge J. R. Cary expects to spend the coming winter in California and will soon leave for the west.

Miss May Barkman, who has been with Snfiel & Co. for some time, has gone to her home in Three Rivers.

Mrs. Charles E. Budden returned Tuesday from a month's visit to Tower with her cousin, Mrs. J. O. D. Grube.

Judge J. K. Magie has returned to Duluth from the east. He made 150 speeches in New York in the late campaign.

The Misses Nettleton, of St. Paul, are visiting friends in Duluth, and will remain until after the Kitchi Gammi party.

Mr. and Mrs. Beckman left Wednesday for Santa Barbara, Cal., where they will remain all winter and probably thereafter.

J. B. Adams, head of the new hard wood manufacturing firm of J. B. Adams & Co. formerly of Cheboygan, Mich., has removed to this city and will locate.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Markell left Thursday on a trip to New York, where Mr. Markell goes to attend annual meetings of companies in which he is interested.

An organ concert is to be given at the First Presbyterian church as soon as the new organ is in position. A St. Paul organist will manipulate the keys.

Major Quinn leaves tomorrow for a twenty-five days visit to his old home in Cincinnati, which he has not seen in years. It is his annual leave of absence.

R. L. Sulzer, state superintendent of Sunday school work in the Presbyterian church, is in the city. Tomorrow he addresses the First Presbyterian Sunday school.

Mrs. McGregor and her daughter, Mrs. Harrington, have left for their home in Jackson, Mich. They spend some time in Minneapolis and Chicago before reaching Jackson.

J. R. Hamilton left this afternoon for a visit to Seattle and the Pacific coast. He wants to take a look at the west coast country about which we are now hearing so much and so diverse reports.

Miss Jessie Cameron, who has been ill with malignant typhoid for a week, died Tuesday. She was one of the brightest of Duluth's corps of school teachers, and her sudden death is the cause of much sorrow.

Alderman Costello returned Thursday from a sad errand. He was summoned to New York by the death of his mother and had accompanied her body to Milton, Wis., where it was buried beside that of her husband.

Dr. McComb, who has just recovered from a very severe attack of typhoid has returned to the city and has been greeted by a host of friends in the past few days. The doctor is himself again though still a trifle weak.

The evenings of the I. O. G. T. quarterly session passed off very pleasantly. A fine literary program was carried out both nights and was as followed on the last evening by a basket social which was a pleasant and profitable affair.

Geo. McKenzie, who left Duluth some weeks ago to take a lucrative position at Johnstown, Pennsylvania, returned last evening. He has been ill during his entire stay at Johnstown, and physicians told him the best thing he could do would be to get back to the healthful climate of Duluth. He is welcomed by his many friends.

Oscar F. Myers and wife left Thursday for their old home in Xenia, Ohio. They had been residents of Duluth the past year, and expected to make it their home, but on account of Mr. Myers' serious illness, which compels him to seek a milder climate for the winter, they have been obliged to leave. They leave many friends in Duluth, who deeply sympathize with Mrs. Myers.

Donation day proved to be well kept in the minds of Duluth people to judge by the gifts that poured into the Duluth Home for women and children and the heartiest thanks are tendered to those who helped to make the affair a success. The list of contributions includes a vast quantity of useful articles, groceries, coal, clothing, meat and provisions of all kinds as well as much ready money.

Learn How to Relax.

Whence comes the ambition for suffering inherent in feminiue souls I cannot say, but it is there. It may be an inheritance from barbarism; it may be a merciful provision of nature for what most women are fated to endure, a heroic stimulus to carry them over the crest of the wave of pain and provent their sinking in its murderous trough. Women seem to understand this sentiment in each other and know how to call forth its exercise, but men look on in a kind of puzzled awe. They have no such quality about them. They go about the business of being ill as if it were its contrary, being well. Every muscle is tense, every nerve alive. It sometimes requires the practice of years to learn how to relax.

"That is the trouble with you," sighs my worthy aunt Gregory. "That is the cause of many injuries and much physical disturbance. Do you know, I actually fell down stairs once without being hurt, because I relaxed! I remembered, just as I started to fall, that drunkards and babies rarely were hurt in all their tumbles. I reasoned it out. They relaxed. I followed their example and escaped unharmed. I have done it ever since when it was necessary.—A. B. Ward in Harper's Magazine.

The Ugly Girl's Charms.

But putting aside the question of the utility of remedies to remove natural personal defects, an ugly girl should know that the surest way to keep her homely features or awkward figure in the remembrance of others is for her constantly to remember them herself. Self consciousness is disagreeable in a beautiful woman; in an ugly one it is intolerable.

Are these girls with dull eyes and large noses, then, to give up all hope of pleasing their companions?

By no means.

A woman who for many years led the highest social life of Pennsylvania had neither fortune nor a remarkable intellect. She was stout, red haired, small featured and freckled; but her voice was sweet and low, her heart big enough to take in all the world; her sympathies wide, her tact infinite. She was simple, genuine, and as unselfish as an innocent child.

The ugly girl who cultivates such charms as these needs no iron braces to compress her large joints, nor diet of acid fruits to remove her plump cheeks, to make her lovely and beloved.—Youth's Companion.

Don't Be in a Hurry.

We do not advise girls to put off marriage until they are 380 years old, which was, I believe, the age of the daughter of Enoch when she entered the state of holy matrimony; but we thiuk that they do not consult their best interests when they allow thoughts of love and marriage to occupy their minds in their "salad days," when they are "green in judgment." This precociousness works mischief in many ways. It prevents the enjoyment of happy years of maidenhood, when the mind and the heart are free to expand under healthful influences; it prevents improving and elevating study; it occupies the mind with fancies, desires and castle building, which are not only futile but injurious; it indisposes for sensible views of life; it tends to the formation of a shallow and frivolous character, and it not infrequently leads to foolish entanglements and hasty attachments, which cause much anxiety and distress. Sometimes it leads to marriage before either husband or wife know what they are doing and before the girl is fit either physically, mentally or domestically for the cares of married life.—"The Five Talents of Women."

Woman and Her Costume.

It is the wearer who makes the success of a dress, and the great secret of the Parisian dressmakers' art is that they adapt their fashions to the individual customer, and happily, if the wearer be a French woman, they meet with hearty co-operation. There are few who do not understand what suits them. They make a study of face, figure and carriage, and though their garments are costly, they do not have too many of them. They make each new dress a part of themselves, and realize its effect in motion and

Before and After.

When a man is going out to the races he calls them "pointers." When he comes back he calls them "disappointers."

GENUINE COURAGE.

HAS NOTHING IN COMMON WITH DISPLAY OR BRAVADO.

Mere Combativeness Not an Uncommon Nor an Exalted Quality—The Bulldog's Idiocy—Napoleon at Waterloo—Heroism of Every Day Life.

Courage, in any genuine sense, does not wantonly court danger. On the other hand, it does not shrink from or avoid danger, when there is any occasion to meet it. It has a worthy purpose and adheres to it unswervingly, not counting cost or consequences. Moro mental and moral than physical, it has nothing in common with display or bravado. It is so quiet and modest that it might be mistaken by surface seers for want of confidence, even for timidity. It runs no risk for the sake of risk; it wastes no ammunition to make noise and smoke; it burns powder only to speed the ball to its mark. The most courageous do not advertise themselves beforehand; they calmly await the test, willing that it should speak for them. They are seldom imagined to be what they are under ordinary circumstances. They keep their own secret, which they may not suspect themselves until requirement calls it forth. They are devoted to duty; where it commands they follow against fearful odds, leading forlorn hopes, charging in the face of death, sustained and stimulated by conviction of right.

Many peoples, Anglo-Saxons notably, attach undue importance to what they esteem to be bravery, meaning combativeness in general. In our own country we are continually hearing the expressions, "He will fight," "They are fighters," "They won't give it up without fighting," as if combativeness were the highest human endowment, as if its possession would compensate for the absence of any number of virtues. Combativeness is not an uncommon nor an exalted quality. It belongs as a rule to all savages, it is a physical trait of undevelopment. The tiger is neither noble nor intelligent, but in fighting powers he is not surpassed by any beast.

IDIOCY OF THE BULLDOG.

The bulldog is extremely repulsive in appearance, and so superlatively stupid that he is generally regarded as a canine idiot. But he has not an equal in the animal kingdom as to fighting propensity, being as destitute of fear as he is of brains. When he seizes anything with his teeth his jaws often cannot be pried apart. He has been known to suffer death without losing his hold. He actually has not intelligence enough to desist from what he is doing. His instinct is absorbed and exhausted by pugnacity. He has been praised for his readiness to attack any animal whatever its size and strength. The impelling agency is not boldness, but idiocy. By the common estimate he should be chosen king of beasts. Men who are perpetually prating of their pugnacity, and their joy in showing it, would be like the bulldog if they were not generally poltroons. They resemble him minus his ferocity.

Bravery—temperamental disdain of danger or death—may be, probably is, unusual, but courage belongs to nearly all educated men, to whole nations, even to races. Its absence is with them an astonishing exception. Instead of being heroic, it is really general. We must always judge of courage by its effect. Men who have appeared dauntless in a score of desperate battles have privately confessed that they were often timid. They doubtless told the exact truth. Courage is frequently, if not commonly, a matter of education, of wontedness. This is seen in the conduct of raw troops when first under fire. They almost always are unsteady, liable to be thrown into confusion. But after a certain amount of military experience they will charge a battery without wavering.

EVOLUTION OF COURAGE.

The soldier, at his virgin battle, is likely to think that every shot fired brings down a man. He alters his opinion when he learns that an amount of metal equal to the average human weight is required to produce a casualty. His whole military education concurs to increase his firmness. He who may play the poltroon at the outset of a campaign may be a hero at the close. Frederick II, the most eminent general of his time, and one of the most intrepid of men, ran away from his first battle. Mollintz was won, but the commander had fled. Napoleon, who had invincible faith in his star, who had changed the destiny of nations, who was the greatest of captains, lost spirit completely when he saw himself hopelessly defeated at Waterloo, and was found wandering aimlessly on the field, dazed and stunned. His prodigious courage had been driven out at last by an irretrievable reverse.

Courage varies with our mood and circumstances; but, backed by will and pride and faith in our cause, the outcome may be trusted. It is less demanded in war than in peace, which is incessant combat with unmartial weapons. Every day brings its trials, its temptations, its dangers, and to oppose them courage is indispensable. He who is deficient in it must go the rear or be drummed out of camp. The world will not keep those who skulk or fly. The survival of the fittest is but another phase, for the battle is to the strong. It is harder to live than to die; death is only a single pang; life is often a long series of woes. Reason and science have robbed death of its theological terrors; but modern civilization has made life so complex, wearing and arduous, that the exercise of steady courage alone can sustain it. Every man who lives out his natural life usefully and honorably, however obscure he may be, is a hero. Only he knows what he is compelled to be, to do, to suffer, and he achieves the end solely by the evolution of courage.—Junius Henri Browne in Globe-Democrat.

Quarreling Over Mere Trifles.

The truth is that English are more like Americans and Americans more like English than any other two sets of human beings. It is much like the difference between Oxford and Cambridge men or between guards and line. That is why such a watchful eye is kept on the differences, and why we squabble like—sisters-in-law. I am not speaking of international questions, where national interests are concerned. If we are to fight about them, which may God forbid! let us fight like brothers indeed, but also like gentlemen. Do not let us run about quarreling as to whether the Americans talk through their noses, and whether we drop our aspirates; about whether American volunteers could whip the German army; about whether American literature is as good as Scotch; about whether American architecture is as bad as English; about the comparative demerits of a suddenly enriched bonanza man and a depraved English peer; about whether American ladies are prettier than their sisters of England; about all the rigmarole of anonymous people in the journals, and all the acerbities of critics ambitions of originality and straining after a style.—Andrew Lang in Murray's Magazine.

A Point in His Favor.

Don't despise the man who has only one shirt. The chances are that he doesn't owe a very big wash bill.—Merchant Traveler.

Eyes and No Eyes.

Husband—Have the couple who just moved into the house next door any children?

Wife—Children? They've only been married a day or two.

"How do you know?"

"Before he started down town this morning he kissed her, and he didn't act as if he was afraid he'd get hit if he didn't."—Omaha World.

The Awkwardness of Servants.

It is a fact worthy of consideration that house servants, from whom hand training is especially demanded, are just those of all the working classes who have least of it. We take servants into our houses and intrust them with our choicest things, and they are not only ignorant of their value, the delicacy and the care they require, but they have not the lightness of touch imperatively necessary in their handling. To watch one of these so called "second girls" through an hour's work is a revelation. One begins to wonder in the course of a few minutes how anything is safe, and what demon prompted her in the selection of her field of labor. Why she did not rather elect to shovel coal than to handle china becomes a curiously interesting query. One of these maids was recently seen to lift a five-gallon stone jug of spring water without a quickening of the breath or increase of color. From this achievement she turned to empty a handsome Chinese bowl of water and brought it against a piece of marble with a force that could have felled an adversary had he been "our great invincible" himself. A little later other breakages of treasures followed, all attributable to simple heaviness of hands.

The girl herself was well meaning, amiable, industrious and honest, but she lacked the deft ways requisite for her position. She stayed with her mistress two weeks, and destroyed for her more than she could be paid for, had the girl been required to replace the broken articles, with three months' wages. What can one say for such a servant? And who has the means and the generosity to see her through her forming period? If she does not have the charge of fragile things, she will never learn the moderation and care their use exacts, and it is only by experience, hard to herself and costly to her employer, that she will become careful and gentle. She will go from one house to another, despoiling here and there, and literally breaking her way through life.—Boston Herald.

The Use of Brains.

"Do you know, Miss Belle, that it's weally a waste of time to do so much thinking," said Gus De Jay. "It's quite very fatiguing to think, you know."

"Do you think so?"

"Yaas; I sometimes really wonder why we have bwains, anyhow."

"Oh, everything has its purpose, Mr. De Jay. Brains are very useful to some people to keep their heads from caving in, you know"—Merchant Traveler.

S. S. S. FOR THE BLOOD. SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

Is entirely a vegetable preparation containing no Mercury, Potash, Arsenic, or other poisonous substances.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

Has cured hundreds of cases of Epithelioma or Cancer of the Skin, thousands of cases of Eczema, Blood Humors and Skin Diseases, and hundreds of thousands of cases of Scrofula, Blood Poison and Blood Taint.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

Has relieved thousands of cases of Mercurial Poisoning, Rheumatism and Stiffness of the Joints.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—Swift's Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In the early part of the present year, a bad case of blood poison appeared upon me. I began taking S. S. S. under advice of another, and to-day I feel greatly improved. I am still taking the medicine and shall continue to do so until I am perfectly well. I believe it will effect a perfect cure. Yours truly,
Doc. P. HOWARD,
111 West Sixth St.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism for two years. I could get no permanent relief from any medicine prescribed by my physician. I took over a dozen bottles of your S. S. S., and now I am as well as I ever was in my life. I am sure your medicine cured me, and I would recommend it to any one suffering from any blood disease. Yours truly,
C. E. HOUSER,
Conductor C. & G. I. R. R.

WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1888—Gentlemen: The wife of one of my customers was terribly afflicted with a loathsome skin disease, that covered her whole body. She was confined to her bed for several years by this affliction, and could not help herself at all. She could not sleep from a violent itching and stinging of the skin. The disease baffled the skill of the physicians who treated it. Her husband began finally giving his wife Swift's Specific, and she commenced to improve almost immediately, and in a few weeks she was apparently well. She is now a hearty fine-looking lady, with no trace of the affliction left. Yours very truly,
J. F. SEARS,

THE CITY.

Between fifteen and twenty million feet of lumber will be cut this winter on the Fond du Lac reservation.

Day east-bound trains on the Omaha tomorrow leave at 10:30, and will do so thereafter for the winter.

Grumbach's breakup was complete and it is not probable that he will ever be seen again in this part of the country.

There is a rumor, probably incorrect, that a Duluth morning paper has been sold to Geo. K. Shaw of Minneapolis.

J. H. Nordby, the little Norwegian contractor, is the best man for any kind of carpenter work. Fine antique sideboards made to order. 627 East Second street.

The following were officers elected by Duluth Council, No. 6, R. & S. M., at last night's meeting: W. G. TenBrook, I. I. M; J. W. Miller, R. I. D. M.; T. W. Hugo, P. C. of W.; A. J. Miller, treasurer, H. R. Armetrong, recorder.

A dancing reception will be given at Ingalls' hall Monday night, Dec., 10. Good music has been engaged and every thing will be done to make those attending have a pleasant time.

Municipal Judge Jacques was full of business today. Besides the usual number of ungarnished inebriates, cases of abusive language, larceny and of draying without license were tried this afternoon.

Cordwood men of the city are in dispair at the absence of snow. They are cutting, but can do no hauling to town or to their yards until sleighing begins. The annual crop of cordwood about Duluth exceeds 15,000 cords.

Notice has been received by Major Quinn of the appointment of the district engineers. The Northwestern district, will be, as heretofore, under command of Col. O. M. Poe, with Majors Strickner, McKenzie, Ludlow, Allen, Davis, Quinn and Lockwood, and Captains Ruffner and Marshell in command of works.

Next spring Central avenue will be paved with cedar blocks. The work will be done on the old method, the blocks laid on a sand and plank foundation, and our people will have a good opportunity to compare the cedar block pavement on concrete and on sand.

The village of Oneota will improve Second street through from the eastern limits to Central avenue. As Second street is a continuation of West Michigan in almost a direct line, it will give a good road from town to West Duluth more direct and accessible than any now in use.

It begins to look as if cold weather could not come if it tried, the two attempts of the government to start it by hoisting a cold wave flag having failed. This morning's temperature was 21 above, the minimum for the last 24 hours, and the indications are for about the same class of weather locally for 24 hours at least to come.

The rumpus at the state university over Dr. Ritchie has resulted, as was expected, in his resignation. The Pioneer Press says: Dr. Ritchie is pronounced by all his friends to be a very fine gentleman, and one of the best posted men in the country in his specialty. As he sacrificed something in giving up his Duluth practice to come to Minneapolis, the circumstances that seemed to make his resignation a necessity were most unfortunate.

Notice has been served by the Western Electric company owning patents on district messenger service, to compel the Duluth District Messenger company to stop work. It is one of those cases so common in electrical business where the ownership of a few patents can compel tribute from the whole world. It is understood that the patents of the Western Electric company are controlled in Duluth by the Duluth Telephone Co. A suit will probably result.

Capt. Inman is figuring on a considerable improvement to the Ossifrage during the winter. She will be refitted and her cabin accomodation so much increased that more than double the present number of staterooms will be furnished. The captain expects to run her three times a week to Port Arthur instead of twice as heretofore. The last of the Inman fleet is now being laid up for the winter and will today be out of commission. It will not probably be enlarged next year, the captain having tugs enough to handle a tremendous business.

The December number of the Magazine of Western History is out with a large part of its space devoted to Duluth. Its only claim to the title seems to be in preserving for posterity the names of those people of different western cities who believe in a certain kind of write ups called by the ordinary mortal fakes. The magazine is of the same general class as all the outside advertising schemes that have flooded Duluth for the past few years and that have been so kindly endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce. These things would seem to be a penalty of growth and life in any city. But this "magazine" is of much better class than most and offers at least a slightly better return on the investments. Its steel engravings are very fine.

THE ANTIQUITY OF BAKING.

Breadmaking a Prehistoric Art—Egyptians as Bakers and Their Skill.

The origin of baking precedes the period of history and is involved in the obscurity of the early ages of the human race. Excavations made in Switzerland gave evidence that the art of making bread was practiced by our prehistoric ancestors as early as the stone period. From the shape of loaves it is thought that no ovens were used at that time, but the dough was rolled into small, round cakes and laid on hot stones, being covered with glowing ashes. Bread is mentioned in the book of Genesis, where Abraham, wishing to entertain three angels, offered to "fetch a morsel of bread." Baking is again referred to where Sarah has instructions to "make ready quickly three measures of fine meal, knead it, and make cakes upon the hearth." Lot entertained two angels by giving them unleavened bread. The mere mention of unleavened bread shows that there were two kinds of bread made even at that time.

The art of baking was carried to a high perfection among the Egyptians, who are said to have baked cakes in many fantastic shapes, using several kinds of flour. The Romans took up the art of baking and public bakeries were numerous on the streets of Rome. In England the business of the baker was considered to be one so closely affecting the interests of the public that in 1266 an act of parliament was passed regulating the price to be charged for bread. This regulation continued in operation until 1822 in London, and until 1836 in the rest of the country. The art of making bread has not yet reached some countries in Europe and Asia. In the rural parts of Sweden no bread is made, but rye cakes that are baked twice a year and are as hard as flint. It is less than a century ago that bread was used in Scotland, the Scotch people of every class living on barley bannocks and oaten cakes.

Owing to the fact that bread is sold very cheaply in Great Britain, the bakers of that country are a poorly paid class of laborers. For years the employers made use of child labor to such an extent that parliament in 1863 passed a law making it a criminal offense to employ a young person under the age of 18 years to work in a bakehouse between the hours of 9 o'clock p. m. and 5 o'clock a. m. As most of the work done by bakers is in the night, this statutory law in Great Britain virtually prohibits child labor in bake houses. In all countries of the world wheat flour is the principal material for making bread, although rye is used largely among the peasantry in some parts of Europe. The price of bread has always followed the market price of wheat very closely, and a recent rise in wheat advanced the price of a pound loaf in Chicago 25 per cent.—Chicago News.

Care of a Man's Wardrobe.

A man who has recently written very extensively on the subject of men's dress said the other day: "The utility and value of a cleaner cannot be overestimated when a man's wardrobe is considered. Many New Yorkers throw a suit of clothes aside or discard a coat or trousers because there is a spot or two visible and a general mustiness about the color. If they would open negotiations with some little tailor in a side street and have him inspect their clothes regularly once a month and repair the attacks of dust and travel they would find that the improvement, as far as appearances are concerned, would amount to something like 75 per cent. A skillful and hard working tailor can take a disreputable looking suit of clothes and make them look almost as good as new within three or four days. There are certain properties in soap, water, benzine, and the flatiron which are exceedingly valuable, and men who believe in dressing well should remember it."—New York Sun.

The Growth of Jerusalem.

The Neuesten Nachrichten aus dem Morgenland, a German newspaper published in Palestine, states that the city of Jerusalem is growing in size and population at a remarkable rate. Its growth is all the more surprising because neither its situation nor its trade are favorable to a rapid increase; it lies among a not very fertile group of mountains; it has next to no commerce, and it has no manufactures. Nevertheless, new buildings are rising daily; churches, gardens and institutes of various kinds are filling up the formerly desolate neighborhood to the distance of half an hour's walk beyond the old limits of the city.

The Jews are to the front as builders. Their houses spring out of the ground like mushrooms—uniform, ugly, one storied, plentifully supplied with windows, but with no manner of adornment. The Rothschilds have completed a new hospital. Close beside it there is a new Abyssinian church. The Russians are also great builders; they have erected a new church, consulate, lodging houses for pilgrims of the orthodox national churches, and a hospital. Near to the Russian group stands the "German house" for German Roman Catholics, from whose top the German and papal flags float side by side. The Russians have also built a high tower upon the Mount of Olives, from whose summit the Mediterraneau and the Dead sea can both be seen. The Greeks and Armenians are also busy builders, but they provide for the bodily rather than the religious demands of the pilgrims. The former build cafes and bazars, and the latter set up shops.—New York Times.

THE FLIGHT OF JOY.

As sometimes in the very heart of June,
Which still remembers all the buds of May
And half foresees the autumn's rich display
And all the splendor of the harvest moon,
As if November had returned too soon,
Cold winds blow, and the sky is chill and gray,
And all is dreary that but now seemed gay,
And Nature with herself seems out of tune.
So in the early summer of my life,
Instead of happy strength and strenuous play
Eld's cares have come, long wearied of the strife
That youth delights in, and my summer day
Is darkened as by Death's impending knife.
And I would die, for joy is far away.
—Henry Shelton Sanford, Jr., in Scribner's Magazine.

HER MAJESTY'S CORSET!

3 reasons why every lady in Duluth should purchase one of Her Majesty's Corsets.

FIRST—It is the only Corset ever made that will reduce the SIZE and INCREASE the LENGTH of the WAIST of FLESHY LADIES without injurious tight lacing. It is also the only ABDOMINAL and SPINAL supporter in existence.

SECOND—It is proof against PERSPIRATION and MOISTURE and will neither corrode nor soil the Underwear, stretch at the waist, NOR DO THE BONES MOVE OR COME OUT IN WEAR.

THIRD—IT ALWAYS RETAINS ITS ORIGINAL SHAPE never comforming to the form of the wearer. It is invaluable to young ladies, because it REMOVES and PREVENTS stooping and round shoulders. In this respect it will be found beneficial to all ladies as it aids the wearer to assume an erect and healthful position in walking or riding.

In relation to this CORSET we wish to state that we have had them thoroughly tested and will say they merit a trial from every lady who experiences difficulties in securing a SATISFACTORY CORSET. WE HAVE EXCLUSIVE CONTROL FOR SALE OF THEM.

Very Respectfully,

Silberstein & Bondy
